According to Visconti, the annual meeting marked a strong start to the model year, as the feedback from dealers about the Company's 2025 products was overwhelmingly positive. "For most of our customers, our dealers are the face of Twin Vee and AquaSport. They're vital to the sales and support process of our boats and they convey our Company's mission to their communities," remarked Visconti. "It's important that our dealer network sees the design and innovation improvements we've made, experience our all-new boats firsthand, and get excited about the direction we're headed. We want them to leave this event feeling inspired by the products they're selling and equipped with the knowledge and tools needed to make the 2025 model year a resounding success. And based on the discussions my team and I had with our dealer network, I believe we accomplished that."
