March 1, 2010

Intel's Sean Maloney to Take Medical Leave

SANTA CLARA, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Intel Corporation said today that Sean Maloney, executive vice president and general manager, Intel Architecture Group, is taking a medical leave of absence after suffering a stroke at his home.

Maloney's prognosis for a full recovery is excellent and he is expected to resume all of his business responsibilities after a period of recuperation which is thought to be several months, the company said. His duties in the interim will be assumed by Dadi Perlmutter, also executive vice president and general manager (with Maloney) of the Intel Architecture Group.

"I visited with Sean and his sense of humor and determination to return to work fill the room," said Intel President and CEO Paul Otellini. "We wish him a speedy recovery and look forward to his return."

About Intel

Intel (NASDAQ:INTC), the world leader in silicon innovation, develops technologies, products and initiatives to continually advance how people work and live. Additional information about Intel is available at www.intel.com/pressroom and blogs.intel.com.

Intel and the Intel logo are trademarks of Intel Corporation in the United States and other countries.

* Other names and brands may be claimed as the property of others.

Source: Intel Corporation