NIC Insurance Filings Introduces SR-22, SR-26 Filing Services for State of Washington

ARLINGTON, Va.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- NIC Insurance Filings now offers filing service for users to submit SR-22 and SR-26 forms to the Washington Department of Licensing. Insurance companies and agents can generate and file these high-risk personal auto insurance forms instantly online.

“We are thrilled to expand the filing services available to our users with clients licensed in Washington state,” said Laura Johnson, General Manager of NIC Insurance Filings, a division of digital solutions firm NIC Inc. “Now, personal auto insurers can join commercial insurers in experiencing the benefits of NIC Insurance Filings’ instant online process for Washington filings.”

The Washington Department of Licensing is the second Washington state agency to accept insurance filings through the system. In August 2020, the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission began accepting common motor carrier Forms E, H and K submitted through NIC Insurance Filings.

NIC Insurance Filings users also can submit SR-22 and SR-26 forms to the Iowa Department of Motor Vehicles.

NIC Insurance Filings, formerly known as MCInfo, speeds up the submission process and increases transparency by providing visibility and tracking of insurance filings through the approval process. Automatic data population helps save time and prevent data entry errors when submitting multiple forms at once. Currently, NIC Insurance Filings users can generate 16 forms through the system.

For participating states, NIC Insurance Filings provides a centralized system to receive and review insurance filings, automatically communicate with insurance companies and track trends and progress via the reporting feature. Twenty-three states currently participate in NIC Insurance Filings.
