Novelis Reports Full Year 2006 Financial Results

ATLANTA, Mar. 1 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Novelis Inc. (NYSE: NVL) (TSX: NVL) today reported its financial results for the full year ended December 31, 2006. The Company incurred a net loss of $275 million, or $(3.71) per share, on net sales of $9.8 billion, compared with net income of $90 million, or $1.21 per share, on net sales of $8.4 billion for 2005.

In 2006, the Company reduced its total debt by $195 million. Despite a challenging metal price environment, Novelis has reduced its debt by $516 million since the Company's inception in January 2005. Cash and cash equivalents as of December 31, 2006, were $73 million.

Total rolled products shipments increased to 2,960 kilotonnes in 2006 from 2,873 kilotonnes in 2005. This increase was primarily due to increased shipments to the can market in North and South America and Europe, as well as increased shipments of hot- and cold-rolled intermediate products in Europe.

The 2006 net loss includes almost no tax benefit largely because the Company recorded $71 million of additional valuation allowances related primarily to tax losses in certain jurisdictions where it does not expect to be able to utilize those losses. Additionally, the Company incurred added tax expense associated with certain exchange items for which there was no pre-tax benefit. Cash taxes paid in 2006 were $68 million.

As previously reported, Novelis' earnings in 2006 were adversely affected by higher metal prices, which the Company was unable to completely pass through to certain customers as a result of metal price ceilings on a portion of its can sheet sales in North America. In 2006, Novelis was unable to pass through approximately $475 million of metal price increases associated with sales under these contracts. This impact was partially offset by internal and external hedges, including $63 million of gains from the change in fair value of derivative instruments. Additional items adversely affecting earnings include higher energy and transportation costs; the adverse effects of currency exchange rates; and expenses related to the Company's restatement and review process, delayed financial reporting and continued reliance on third- party consultants to support its financial reporting requirements.

Ed Blechschmidt, Acting Chief Executive Officer of Novelis, said, "In the past year we made significant progress in strengthening the company for the future. We have taken steps to streamline the manufacturing operations and to introduce supply chain improvements. We have also improved our financial controls and procedures and our risk management capabilities. At the same time, we have strengthened our focus on customer satisfaction, supported by innovations such as the Novelis Fusion(TM) technology for multi-alloy sheet products. We believe that the fundamentals of the business, our operations and our market position are strong, and that we are well positioned to build on our accomplishments as we look forward to our acquisition by Hindalco."

As previously announced, on February 11, 2007, Hindalco Industries Limited and Novelis announced that they have entered into a definitive agreement for Hindalco to acquire the outstanding shares of Novelis. Under the terms of the agreement, Novelis shareholders will receive $44.93 in cash for each outstanding common share upon the closing of the sale transaction.
