1 THE COURT: Good afternoon, everyone.
2 This is Travis Laster joining. Do we have a court 3 reporter on?

4 THE COURT REPORTER: It's Juli, Your
5 Honor.

6 THE COURT: Great, Juli. Thank you
7 for being here.

8 I'm not going to ask for appearances.
9 Folks can deal with Juli directly. I'm going to go 10 ahead and give you my ruling.

11 We're here today for a matter
12 captioned Electrical Workers Pension Fund Local 103,
13 I.B.E.W. v. Fox Corporation, Civil Action No.
14 2022-1007-JTL. There is a coordinated case involving 15 Snap that is Civil Action No. 2022-1032-JTL. That 16 case is substantively identical to the Electrical 17 Workers case involving Fox, so for simplicity, I'm 18 going to focus on the Fox case.

19 The parties have filed cross-motions
20 for summary judgment on a discrete legal issue under 21 Section 242(b)(2) of the Delaware General Corporation
22 Law. There are no facts in dispute.

23 I am under no illusions that my ruling
24 will be the last word on this subject. However I

1 rule, the adversely affected party can be expected to 2 appeal. Under the circumstances, I think the best
3 path is to provide you with my ruling orally. You 4 then can move on to the Delaware Supreme Court to 5 obtain a definitive answer.

6 To provide my bottom line up front, I
7 am granting the defendant's motion and denying the 8 plaintiff's motion. All of you can now listen without 9 being in suspense.

10 I view this case as controlled by two 11 precedents. The First Is Hartford Accident &
12 Indemnity Co. v. W.S. Dickie Clay Manufacturing Co., 13 24 A.2d 315 (Del. 1942), which is generally known in 14 the corporate world as Dickie Clay. The second is 15 Orban v. Field, 1993 WL 547187 (Del. Ch. April 1, 16 1997).

17 Fealty to those precedents dictates
18 the outcome.

19 That said, I am sympathetic to the 20 plaintiff's arguments. Were I writing on a blank
21 slate and being asked to determine the plain meaning 22 of Section 242(b)(2) without the interpretive glosses
23 of Dickie Clay and Orban, I think the plaintiff's 24 position would be a quite strong one.

1 But I am not writing on a blank slate.
2 The Delaware Supreme Court interpreted 242(b)(2)'s 3 predecessor statute in Dickie Clay, and this Court 4 interpreted the current statute in Orban. I hew to 5 those precedents.

6 Let's start with the pertinent facts,
7 which are mercifully few. Fox Corporation has three 8 classes of stock: high-vote stock, low-vote stock, and 9 non-voting stock. I will call Fox Corporation the 10 "company."

11 The company proposed to amend its 12 charter to adopt an exculpation provision covering 13 officers, as contemplated by the recent amendment to 14 Section 102(b)(7). Let's call that the "officer 15 exculpation amendment."

16 As required by Section 242(b)(1), the 17 company secured the affirmative vote of holders of a 18 majority of the outstanding voting power of all 19 classes of stock entitled to vote thereon, voting
20 together as a single class. Holders of shares 21 carrying a majority of the outstanding voting power 22 associated with the high-vote stock voted in favor of 23 the amendment. So did holders of a majority of the 24 outstanding voting power associated with the low-vote

1 stock. Thus if either the high-vote stock or the 2 low-vote stock had voted separately as a class, then 3 the class vote would have been obtained.

4 The company did not seek or obtain A 5 vote from the non-voting stock, whether as a class or 6 otherwise.

7 The plaintiff contends that under
8 Section 242(b)(2) of the Delaware General Corporation
9 Law, the officer exculpation amendment required the 10 affirmative votes of holders of a majority of the 11 outstanding non-voting stock, voting as a separate 12 class. In my view, the same reasoning would mean that 13 the amendment also required a separate class vote of 14 the high-vote stock and a separate class vote of the 15 low-vote stock. Had those votes been sought, they 16 would have been obtained. But because no one polled 17 the non-voting stock, we do not know how they would 18 have voted.

19 The company argues strenuously that 20 the officer exculpation amendment is in the best 21 interest of the stockholders and, according to the 22 company, quite obviously so. I personally think that 23 reasonable minds could disagree on that question, with 24 the outcome depending on one's empirical assumptions

1 about the degree to which lawsuits enforcing an 2 officer's duty of care provide a valuable oversight 3 mechanism, particularly for purposes of ensuring full 4 disclosure where the officers often are more informed 5 than the directors. Arguments can be made both ways, 6 and the outcome would depend on empirical data that I 7 don't think we currently have.

8 Regardless, in light of the company's 9 confidence, one might wonder why the company did not 10 simply put the issue before the non-voting stock and 11 obtain their approval. One might also wonder why the 12 company would not simply do so at the next convenient 13 opportunity, such as in connection with the company's 14 annual meeting, so as to save the costs of a separate 15 solicitation.

16 But that has not happened. Instead, 17 this case has been fought on the battle ground of 18 Section 242(b)(2).

19 With that background, let's turn to 20 the legal analysis. The parties agree that the issue 21 can be presented on cross-motions for summary
22 judgment, and I apply the familiar summary judgment
23 standard contemplated by Rule 56.

24 Let's begin with some legal

1 level-setting.

2 A share of stock represents a bundle
3 of rights. It is often said that a share of stock 4 carries three basic rights: the right to vote, the 5 right to sell, and the right to sue. As the Delaware 6 Supreme Court discussed in Urdan v. WR Capital
7 Partners, LLC, and as I have discussed previously in 8 In re Activision Blizzard Stockholders Litigation, 9 those rights are not personal to the stockholder.
10 Those are rights that are appurtenant to and 11 associated with the shares, that transfer with the 12 shares when the shares are sold.

13 In particular, those cases make clear 14 that the ability to sue as a stockholder under 15 Delaware law is not a personal right of the individual 16 owner. It is a right appurtenant to the shares that 17 travels with the shares. That is why Delaware courts
18 readily grant broad, class-wide releases of Delaware 19 claims challenging mergers. The claims travel with 20 the shares so that the class need only consist of the 21 shares at the effective time. The Activision Blizzard
22 case discusses those matters in detail.

23 By default, the right to sue 24 appurtenant to a share includes the ability to sue for

1 breach of fiduciary duty in any jurisdiction where the 2 defendant can be found and to seek any remedy provided 3 by law.

4 As a matter of default law, a share of 5 common stock carries other rights as well. By 6 default, under Section 212(a) of the DGCL, a share 7 carries voting power equal to one vote per share. By 8 default, under Section 159 of the DGCL, a share is 9 personal property, alienable as such, and can be 10 transferred freely in accordance with Article 8 of the 11 UCC. We thus have the three principal rights that 12 everybody talks about: to vote, to sell, and to sue.

13 But that's not all. A basic share of 14 common stock also carries other default rights. It 15 carries the right to the residual distribution of the 16 value of the corporation in a liquidation under 17 Sections 280 or 281, after payment of creditors and 18 the satisfaction of any liquidation preferences held 19 by more senior stock paid out in order of priority.

20 It carries the right to receive 21 dividends when and as declared by the board.

22 It carries the right to seek books and 23 records under Section 220.

24 It carries the right under

1 Section 211(c) to compel an annual meeting if a 2 corporation has not held one in the last 13 months or 3 otherwise fulfilled the requirement through action by 4 written consent.

5 It carries the right to seek a
6 determination of the rightful directors or officers of 7 the corporation under Section 225, to sue for a 8 receiver or custodian under Sections 226 and 291, and 9 to sue to enforce other provisions of the DGCL.

10 All those rights exist by default
11 under the DGCL. Some of those rights may well be 12 mandatory statutory rights that cannot be modified in 13 the charter. I list them not to imply that they can 14 be modified in the charter, but only to make clear 15 that not all stockholder rights appear expressly in 16 the charter.

17 In fact, under Section 102(a)(4), if 18 the corporation is authorized to issue only one class 19 of stock, then the charter need only specify the total 20 number of shares of stock which the corporation shall 21 have authority to issue and the par value of each of 22 such shares, or a statement that all such shares are 23 to be without par value. Even if the charter says 24 only that, all of the foregoing rights that I have

1 identified remain established by law and are rights
2 associated with the shares. They exist even if the 3 charter states only that the corporation can issue X 4 number of shares of stock without par value, and 5 nothing else.

6 In fact, the charter need not say
7 much, even if the corporation is authorized to issue
8 multiple classes or series of stock. If the charter 9 does not specify the rights of those additional 10 classes or series, then they have the same basic 11 rights.

12 Section 102(a)(4) states that "[i]f 13 the corporation is to be authorized to issue more than 14 1 class of stock, the certificate of incorporation 15 shall set forth the total number of shares of all 16 classes of stock which the corporation shall have 17 authority to issue and the number of shares of each 18 class and shall specify each class the shares of which 19 are to be without par value and each class the shares 20 of which are to have par value and the par value of 21 the shares of each such class."

22 That is all Section 102(a)(4)
23 requires: an identification of the number of shares of 24 each class and their par value.

1 A certificate of incorporation thus 2 could provide for multiple classes of stock, such as 3 Class A Common, Class B Common, and Class C Common, 4 all with identical default rights. Why might someone 5 do that? Perhaps three founders each want to a 6 separate class of common, rather than simply 7 participating in the ownership of a single class of 8 common.

9 Let's call the rights that a share of 10 stock carries by default the "baseline rights." In 11 terms of our three principal rights, that means one 12 vote per share, freely alienable in accordance with 13 Article 8 of the UCC, and able to sue to enforce the 14 rights the stock carries, including to sue for breach 15 of fiduciary duty and seek any remedy available at law 16 or in equity.

17 A charter can give a class of shares
18 rights that are better than the baseline rights.
19 These are rights generally associated with preferred 20 shares, and this is what we usually think of when we 21 imagine the powers, privileges, and rights of shares 22 that are spelled out in a charter. Let's refer to 23 those type of rights as "superior" rights.

24 Now let's consider some examples of 1 superior rights. By default, a share has voting power

2 equal to one vote. A superior right would be voting
3 power of more than one vote per share, like ten votes
4 per share. The company's high-vote shares have this 5 type of superior voting right. Or a superior voting 6 right might be a special vote or consent, like a class
7 vote on a merger. We often see that type of superior 8 right associated with preferred shares.

9 For purposes of the right to sell, by 10 default, a share is freely alienable. But the owner 11 has no right to force the corporation to buy it. A 12 superior right might be a redemption put right by 13 which the corporation can be forced to redeem the 14 share, assuming it had both the surplus and funds 15 legally available to do so. Section 151(b) makes 16 clear that a redemption put right is an attribute of 17 the shares. We often see that type of superior right 18 associated with preferred shares.

19 There can be superior versions of 20 other default rights. By default, a share receives 21 dividends when and if declared by the board. A 22 superior right might be a right to a regular quarterly 23 or annual dividend. We often see that type of 24 superior right associated with preferred shares.

1 By default, a share participates pro
2 rata in the residual assets available in dissolution.
3 A superior right might be a liquidation preference
4 that enables the share to participate in dissolution 5 ahead of other classes of stock and then to 6 participate with the common in the residual 7 distribution. We often see that type of superior 8 right associated with preferred shares, and it's 9 called a participating preferred with a liquidation 10 preference.

11 We've now talked about baseline rights
12 and superior rights. A charter can also give a class 13 of shares rights that are worse than baseline rights.
14 Those rights are generally associated with classes of 15 common stock that are deprived of some or all of their 16 default rights. To keep things simple, let's refer to 17 these types of rights as "inferior" rights, which 18 creates a contrast with the superior rights.

19 Let's consider some examples of 20 inferior rights. By default, a share has voting power 21 of one vote per share. An inferior right would be no 22 voting power per share, or voting power of a fraction 23 of a vote per share, or the ability to exercise voting 24 power on only certain issues. The company's

1 non-voting shares are an example of disfavored shares
2 that carry inferior voting rights.

3 By default, a share is freely
4 alienable and the corporation has no right to redeem
5 the share. An inferior right would be a redemption 6 call right by which a corporation can force the 7 stockholder to sell at a given price such as fair 8 market value or par value.

9 By default, a share receives dividends
10 when and if declared by the board. An inferior right 11 would be a class of shares that cannot receive 12 dividends or can only receive dividends conditioned on 13 other events happening, such as a prior level of 14 payments to a more-senior class of stock.

15 By default, a share participates pro
16 rata in the residual assets available in dissolution, 17 however much might be available. There's no cap. An 18 inferior right would be a liquidation cap that limited 19 the share's ability to participate in liquidation to a 20 maximum amount. Stock with a liquidation cap is 21 generally called "nonparticipating preferred." The 22 preferred only gets to participate up to the 23 liquidation cap. Now, usually that type of preferred 24 has a conversion right, but focusing on the rights

1 available in liquidation, the share has a liquidation 2 cap.

3 Sections 102(a)(4) and 151(a) require 4 that any departure from the baseline rights appear in 5 the certificate of incorporation. Superior rights 6 must appear in the certificate of incorporation.
7 Inferior rights must appear in the certificate of 8 incorporation.

9 In the language of Section 102(a)(4), 10 "The certificate of incorporation shall set forth a 11 statement of the designations and the powers, 12 preferences and rights, and the qualifications, 13 limitations or restrictions thereof, which are 14 permitted by Section 151 of this title in respect of 15 any class or classes of stock or any series of any 16 class of stock of the corporation and the fixing of 17 which by the certificate of incorporation is desired, 18 and an express grant of such authority as it may then 19 be desired to grant the board of directors to fix by 20 resolution or resolutions any thereof that may be 21 desired but which shall not be fixed by the 22 certificate of incorporation."

23 That's a mouthful. But it reduces to 24 this: Section 102(a)(4) contemplates designations,

1 powers, preferences, rights, qualifications,
2 limitations, and restrictions.

3 From the perspective of a stockholder,
4 there are three types of good, positive things. Those 5 are powers, preferences, and rights. From the 6 perspective of a stockholder, there are three types of 7 not-so-good, negative things. Those are 8 qualifications, limitations, and restrictions.

9 There's also this concept of 10 "designations," which I think of as a neutral thing 11 referring to a certificate of designations, which is 12 what allows the board to implement blank-check 13 preferred. Thus "designations" encompasses all of the 14 types of specific things that one could put into a 15 charter to create superior or inferior rights. They 16 could be good things -- powers, preferences, and 17 rights -- or they could be not-so-good things -- 18 qualifications, limitations, and restrictions.

19 Section 151(a) uses similar language.
20 It states, "Every corporation may issue 1 or more 21 classes of stock or 1 or more series of stock within 22 any class thereof, any or all of which classes may be 23 a stock with par value or a stock without par value
24 and which classes or series may have such voting

1 powers, full or limited, or no voting powers, and such 2 designations, preferences and relative, participating, 3 optional or other special rights, and qualifications, 4 limitations or restrictions thereof, as shall be 5 stated and expressed in the certificate of 6 incorporation or of any amendment thereto, or in the 7 resolution or resolutions providing for the issuance 8 of such stock adopted by the board of directors 9 pursuant to authority expressly vested in it by the 10 provisions of its certificate of incorporation."

11 Once again you have the types of good,
12 positive things that lead to superior rights. You 13 also have the types of not-so-good, negative things 14 that lead to inferior rights.

15 So far we have divided the rights the 16 shares carry into three categories: baseline rights 17 that the share has even if the charter is silent, 18 superior rights that are better than baseline rights, 19 and inferior rights that are worse than baseline 20 rights.

21 Section 151(a) gives us another term:
22 "special rights." That term refers to rights that are 23 different from baseline rights. Special rights can be 24 superior or inferior. They can be good things, like

1 preferences. They can be relatively superior or 2 inferior rights. Or they can be rights with 3 qualifications, limitations, or restrictions thereon.

4 Now let's introduce a final
5 distinction. This distinction is between express
6 rights and unexpressed rights. Recall that shares
7 have certain baseline rights even if the certificate 8 of incorporation is silent. When the charter is 9 silent, those baseline rights are unexpressed rights.

10 One can, however, as a drafter of a 11 charter or a certificate of designations, make those 12 baseline rights express. A certificate of 13 incorporation can say that each share of stock of a 14 class carries voting power of one vote per share, just 15 as would be implied by Section 212(a) of the DGCL if 16 the charter were silent. The right has been made 17 express, but it is no different than a baseline right.

18 A certificate of incorporation can say 19 that each share of stock is freely alienable, just as 20 it is under Section 159 if the charter is silent.
21 That right has been made express, but it is no 22 different than the baseline right.

23 A certificate of incorporation can say
24 that each share of stock participates pro rata in

1 dissolution after all the debts of the corporation and 2 any liquidation preferences are paid, just as Delaware 3 law implies if a charter were silent. The right has 4 been made express, but it is no different than the 5 baseline right.

6 Baseline rights, therefore, can either
7 be unexpressed rights or express rights. Special 8 rights are always and necessarily express rights.

9 With that terminology in hand, let's 10 turn to Section 242(b)(2). The first sentence of 11 Section 242(b)(2) provides as follows: "The holders 12 of the outstanding shares of a class shall be entitled 13 to vote as a class upon a proposed amendment, whether 14 or not entitled to vote thereon by the certificate of 15 incorporation, if the amendment would increase or 16 decrease the aggregate number of authorized shares of 17 such class, increase or decrease the par value of the 18 shares of such class, or alter or change the powers, 19 preferences, or special rights of the shares of such 20 class so as to affect them adversely."

21 The plaintiffs advance a 22 straightforward argument based on the plain meaning of 23 the statute. They argue that Section 242(b)(2) 24 provides for a class vote when an amendment would

1 alter or change powers, preferences, or special
2 rights. The plaintiff's reading gives meaning to each 3 of these terms. Special rights means rights that are 4 different than baseline rights. They can be superior 5 rights or inferior rights, but they are special. They 6 are not baseline.

7 Preferences are a type of special
8 right. They are generally what preferred stock has.
9 It's a type of superior right.

10 That leaves powers. What does 11 "powers" mean? The plaintiffs offer a logical answer.
12 It means baseline rights. From the plaintiff's 13 standpoint, the analysis does not even need to go so 14 far as to include all baseline rights. All that 15 "powers" has to include is one particular baseline 16 right: the power to sue.

17 Here, we encounter a skirmish between 18 the parties. The company argues that the ability to 19 sue isn't a power, it's a right. The company also 20 says that the ability to sue doesn't belong to a 21 share, it belongs to some type of jural actor who is 22 the owner of the share – namely, the stockholder. The 23 second point does not survive Urdan.

24 On the first point, my big-picture

1 sense of the authorities is that concepts of "rights" 2 and "powers" are used relatively interchangeably. We 3 live in a world today that is filled with rights talk, 4 so rights is the logical word that a modern speaker 5 would resort to.

6 Not surprisingly, the company can find 7 cases, including some of my own, that refer to the 8 right to sue, the right to sell, and the right to 9 vote, rather than the power to sue, the power to sell, 10 or the power to vote.

11 I don't see any meaningful distinction
12 in those cases between those two terms. The cases 13 don't seem to be using the terms with any intent to 14 convey or imbue them with different legal meaning.
15 They seem to be used interchangeably, and when I look 16 at the scholarship on this subject, it also seems to 17 use the terms interchangeably.

18 Perhaps the best example of this is 19 the right to vote. We usually refer to that 20 framing -- namely, the "right to vote" -- but in 21 Section 151(a), the vote is referred to as a power.
22 Consistent with that, we refer to the voting power 23 associated with the shares, and when we refer to the 24 denominator in the vote calculation, we use the word

1 "power," such as a majority of the outstanding voting
2 power. We may colloquially refer to voting rights, 3 and we usually do, but the corporate concept is really 4 voting power.

5 The plaintiffs have advanced a strong
6 argument that the right to sue associated with a share
7 is also a power. The plaintiffs have identified a 8 series of sections of the DGCL in which the ability to 9 sue is referred to as a power. One is Section 122, 10 which lists specific powers of a corporation, 11 including under subsection (3), the power to sue or be 12 sued. Section 291, dealing with the powers of 13 receivers, is another example. It is true that those 14 sections generally refer to the power of a corporation
15 or another jural actor to sue, but those sections 16 nevertheless support the proposition that the ability 17 to sue is technically a power.

18 Section 123 suggests that, just as the 19 rights/powers distinction isn't a major issue for the 20 right to vote, it shouldn't be a major distinction for 21 the right to sue. Section 123 addresses the extent to 22 which a corporation can exercise powers, rights, and 23 privileges associated with the shares it owns. The 24 section states: "A corporation while owner of such

1 securities may exercise all the rights, powers and 2 privileges of ownership, including the right to sue."
3 That passage uses the words "right to sue," but it
4 follows "rights, powers and privileges." "Sue" is one 5 of that subset. Whether the noun is "right" or 6 "power" just doesn't seem to be driving the analysis.

7 The plaintiffs thus conclude that the 8 reference to "power" in Section 242(b)(2) at minimum 9 means the power to sue. Once the plaintiff has framed 10 the right to sue as a power, the officer exculpation 11 amendment easily falls within Section 242(b)(2).

12 Stepping back a level, the plaintiff
13 perceives a baseline in which the company's non-voting 14 stock had the power to sue and to assert claims and 15 seek remedies across a particular domain. That domain 16 included the right to assert direct claims against 17 officers for breach of the duty of care and to recover
18 damages.

19 The officer exculpation provision 20 reduced the scope of that right by eliminating the 21 ability to recover damages for breach of the duty of 22 care. However one views the extent of the area 23 covered by the domain of the power to sue before the 24 amendment, the domain covered after the amendment is

1 less than it was before.

2 For an analogy, imagine a football
3 field. That domain is the original area of coverage 4 for the right to sue. For over a hundred years, the 5 traditional football field has been 360 feet long,
6 including the end zones, and 160 feet wide, with a 7 playing field that is 300 feet long. Imagine a rules
8 change that reduces the size of that field. We can 9 debate about the size of the area that is cut out of 10 the field, but we know the football field no longer 11 has its original dimensions. Maybe it's now 95 yards, 12 maybe it's 99 yards, but something has been taken out 13 of it.

14 To bring this concept home even more, 15 let's compare the reduction in the scope of the 16 default right to sue to amendments that reduce other 17 default rights. Take an amendment that reduces the 18 voting power associated with a share from the 19 statutory default of one vote per share to a lower 20 figure of half a vote per share, or perhaps a tenth of 21 a vote per share. That is a reduction that is 22 adverse. The two amendments are analogous in terms of 23 reducing the scope of the default right.

24 The officer exculpation amendment is

1 also analogous to an amendment that reduces the 2 default right to participate pro rata with all
3 stockholders in A dissolution to a capped right TO A 4 liquidation amount and nothing more. And it's 5 analogous to an amendment that changes the power to 6 sell a share freely to anyone into a power to sell 7 subject to a redemption call right triggered by the 8 sale that gives the corporation the ability to redeem.

9 Each of the rights I just discussed is 10 a baseline power or right. In each case, the 11 amendment is adversely affecting the baseline power or 12 right.

13 An amendment can do the same thing
14 with special rights that are either superior or 15 inferior. It can happen with a special voting power.
16 An amendment can reduce a superior special voting 17 power equal to ten votes per share to five votes per 18 share. Or an amendment can reduce an inferior special 19 voting power, like .5 votes per share, to .1 vote per 20 share.

21 It can happen with alienability. An 22 amendment can reduce a superior power of alienability, 23 like the ability to sell freely plus the right to 24 exercise a redemption put right exercisable by the

1 stockholder by reducing the redemption price to a 2 lower amount. Or an amendment can reduce an inferior 3 power of alienability, like the ability to sell 4 subject to a redemption call right exercisable by the 5 corporation, and again reduce the redemption price to 6 a lower amount.

7 Returning to the first sentence of 8 Section 242(b)(2), the plaintiffs say that the officer 9 exculpation amendment altered or changed a power of 10 the shares of the non-voting stock so as to affect 11 them adversely. I think if one were to interpret the 12 plain language of Section 242(b)(2) on a blank slate, 13 that would be a fairly persuasive plain-meaning 14 analysis. It would be a strong argument.

15 Now let's take the other side of the 16 argument. The problem with the plaintiff's 17 plain-meaning theory is how the statute has evolved 18 over time and how it has been interpreted during its 19 evolution.

20 The principal authority is the 21 Delaware Supreme Court's decision in Dickie Clay, 22 which is an opinion from 1942. The company in Dickie
23 Clay had three classes of stock: preferred stock that 24 carried a mandatory dividend and a liquidation

1 preference, Class A stock that carried a cumulative
2 dividend but was generally non-voting, and common 3 stock that had no right to dividends until the 4 preferred stock had received a specified amount of 5 dividends and the Class A stock had been retired.
6 Note that all three classes of stock had a mix of 7 superior rights, inferior rights, and baseline rights.

8 The corporation proposed an amendment 9 that would increase the number of authorized shares of 10 Class A. By increasing the authorized number of Class
11 A shares, the corporation could issue more Class A 12 shares, and those shares would be ahead of the common 13 stock for purposes of its ability to receive 14 dividends. The corporation sought and obtained a vote 15 of the preferred and common voting together plus a 16 class vote of the Class A. The corporation did not 17 obtain a class vote of the common.

18 At the time, the governing statute of 19 was Section 26 of the DGCL. It only addressed 20 preferred stock, and it provided for a class vote for 21 any amendment that would alter or change "the 22 preferences, special rights or powers given to one or 23 more classes of stock held by the certificate of 24 incorporation, so as to affect such class or classes

1 of stock adversely."

2 One of the common stockholders sued, 3 arguing that the amendment adversely affected the 4 common and required a class vote under Section 26
5 precisely because the increase in the authorized 6 number of Class A shares meant that the corporation 7 could issue more Class A that would be ahead of the 8 common for purposes of its ability to receive 9 dividends.

10 The Delaware Supreme Court rejected
11 that argument. The Court held that increasing the 12 authorized number of the shares of the Class A did not 13 alter or change adversely the privileges or special 14 rights and powers of the common. In my view, that was 15 a relatively easy conclusion to reach, since the 16 amendment did not make any change to the rights of the 17 common at all.

18 But the Court in Dickie Clay did not 19 rest on that basic point. It, rather, used language 20 that could support three different interpretations.

21 The first interpretation is that a
22 class vote is only triggered if it affects a superior
23 right of the shares. That interpretation rests
24 initially on the observation of the Dickie Clay court

1 that the language of Section 26 permits an amendment
2 to change the "number, par value, designations, 3 preferences, or relative, participating, optional, or 4 other special rights of the shares, or the 5 qualifications, limitations or restrictions of such 6 rights."

7 Interpreting this language, the Dickie
8 Clay court stated: "The statute, in listing the 9 amendable rights, or rights and powers, attached to 10 stock, first speaks of preferences. It then speaks of 11 rights, and employs specific descriptive words, 12 followed by the general and embracive words, 'other 13 special'. Whatever may be said with respect to the 14 necessity for the use of the word 'special', as 15 applied to a right attached to stock, in view of the 16 prior descriptive words, it is clear enough that the 17 word was used in the sense of shares having some 18 unusual or superior quality not possessed by another 19 class of shares." That's a quote from page 318 of the 20 decision.

21 The important language is the 22 reference to some "unusual or superior quality not 23 possessed by another class of shares." The reference 24 to "superior quality" means, in the parlance that I am

1 using, a superior special right. I will call this the 2 "superior right interpretation" or "superior right
3 argument."

4 That interpretation finds support in 5 the fact that, at the time, Section 26 was focused on 6 preferred stock, which was understood to have superior
7 rights. Under the superior right interpretation, a 8 class vote is only required if the change affects a 9 special right that is better than what the baseline 10 right would be – i.e., only if it changes a superior 11 right.

12 A second interpretation supported by 13 Dickie Clay requires a special right distinct from 14 baseline rights, but it does not matter whether the 15 special right is superior or inferior. That 16 interpretation fixates on the word "unusual," rather 17 than the word "superior." So the emphasis for 18 purposes of this interpretation is on the reference in 19 the decision to an "unusual ... quality not possessed 20 by another class of shares."

21 The Dickie Clay court later explained
22 that a class vote was not required for the amendment 23 at issue because "Where the corporate amendment does 24 no more than to increase the number of shares of a

1 preferred or superior class, the relative position of 2 subordinated shares is changed in the sense that they 3 are subjected to a greater burden. The peculiar, or 4 special, quality with which they are endowed, and 5 which serves to distinguish them from shares of 6 another class, remains the same." That's from pages 7 318 to 319.

8 Under this view, the reference to 9 "analogous peculiar, or special, quality" with which 10 the shares are endowed, and which serves to 11 distinguish them from the shares of another class, 12 means something that is different from baseline. In 13 my parlance, I have described that as a "special 14 right." So I will call this the "special right 15 interpretation" or the "special right argument."

16 There is a third interpretation of 17 Dickie Clay which reads the decision as not requiring 18 that a right be special or superior at all, only that 19 it be express in the certificate of incorporation.
20 This reading is different because an express right 21 could be the express manifestation of a baseline 22 right. For example, instead of being silent regarding 23 voting, a charter could say that each share of a 24 particular class of shares carries voting power of one

1 vote, which is the same as the default baseline right
2 under Section 212(a).

3 Or the charter could say that the 4 class of shares is freely alienable, which is the same 5 as the default baseline right under Section 159. What 6 matters under this interpretation of Dickie Clay is 7 that the right, whether superior, inferior, or 8 baseline, is made express. I will call this the 9 "express right interpretation" or "express right
10 argument."

11 It bears noting that none of these 12 interpretations represent the bottom-line holding of 13 Dickie Clay. The statement that supported the actual 14 holding is as follows: "It is entirely clear that the 15 statute in its mention of relative rights of shares 16 did not refer to the position of shares in the plan of 17 capitalization, but to the quality possessed by the 18 shares; and it is only by a refinement of 19 interpretation that it can be said that a relative 20 position is a relative right."

21 The holding of Dickie Clay is thus 22 that relative position in the capital structure is not 23 a right of the shares or, in the language of the 24 decision, a quality of the shares such that

1 authorizing more of a senior class or series or adding 2 a senior class or series does not make an adverse 3 change to the rights of the junior class or series.

4 That's the holding. The superior
5 right interpretation, the special right
6 interpretation, and the express right interpretation
7 all flow from various adjectives in the decision's 8 discussion of the statute but not from the actual 9 holding.

10 We now move forward 55 years to 1997
11 and the decision in Orban v. Field. In the interim, 12 in 1969, the General Assembly amended
13 Section 242(b)(2) to change the order of the terms.
14 In lieu of referring to "preferences, special rights 15 and powers," the language now refers to "powers, 16 preferences, and special rights." Where there was 17 ambiguity about whether "special" modified just rights 18 or both rights and powers, the reference to "powers" 19 now stands alone.

20 In Orban, a corporation named Office
21 Depot had issued common stock, Series A preferred
22 stock, and Series B preferred stock. The preferred
23 stockholders wanted to sell Office Depot to Staples, a 24 third-party acquirer, and to effectuate the

1 transaction by merger. The preferred stock carried 2 liquidation preferences, and the value of the deal was 3 such that the preferred stock would soak up all of the 4 consideration and the common stockholders would 5 receive nothing.

6 The merger agreement required that the 7 merger receive the approval of holders of 90 percent 8 of the outstanding share of each class of stock voting 9 separately. The opinion does not dilate on why the 10 merger agreement contained that requirement, but it 11 did.

12 One common stockholder -- the 13 plaintiff Orban -- held 96 percent of the common stock 14 and, therefore, had the ability to block the deal. To 15 create a path to approve the merger, the board 16 redeemed certain outstanding notes in exchange for 17 shares of common stock and Series C preferred stock.
18 The issuances of those shares of common stock
19 sufficiently diluted Orban's holdings in the common 20 and the associated voting power from 96 percent to 42 21 percent of the class.

22 The corporation then redeemed the 23 Series C stock for cash, and the holders used the 24 funds to exercise warrants to purchase additional

1 shares of common stock. Those shares of common stock
2 further reduced Orban's holdings in the common and his 3 associated voting power to less than 10 percent of the 4 class, eliminating his ability to block the deal.

5 Orban sued. The deal had closed and a 6 class vote, if it had been recognized, could have 7 required rescinding the whole ball of wax. The 8 decision evidenced the Court's skepticism of Orban's 9 lawsuit as a holdup play.

10 For his class vote theory, Orban
11 alleged that the creation of the Series C preferred 12 was an essential part of the recapitalization and 13 required a class vote under 242(b)(2). As in Dickie 14 Clay, that was an easy argument to reject because the 15 creation of a senior security does not effect any 16 change or amendment to the rights or powers of the 17 common stock. Nothing about the legal rights or 18 powers associated with the common stock changed in any 19 way. The same was true for the issuance of additional 20 shares of common stock.

21 But as in Dickie Clay, the opinion
22 went further. The Orban court interpreted Dickie Clay
23 to stand for the following proposition: "The language 24 of the statute makes clear that it affords a right to 1 a class vote when the proposed amendment adversely 2 affects the peculiar legal characteristics of that 3 class of stock. The right to vote is not a peculiar 4 or special characteristic of common stock in the 5 capital structure of Office Mart. All classes of 6 stock share that characteristic; the voting power of 7 each class of stock would be pro-rata diluted by the 8 issuance of Series C Preferred Stock and thus we're 9 all entitled to vote equally (in one general class)."

10 The language in Orban thus appears to 11 provide strong support for the special right
12 interpretation of Dickie Clay. That interpretation 13 focuses on the use of the words "peculiar, or 14 special," and distinguishes those types of rights from 15 characteristics that all classes of stock share.

16 The language of Orban also provides 17 support for yet a fourth interpretation, or at least 18 another aspect of the interpretation, which is that 19 Section 242(b)(2) does not provide a class vote when 20 all shares are affected equally by the amendment.
21 That interpretation draws on the language in Orban
22 which states "the voting power of each class of stock
23 would be pro-rata diluted by the issuance of Series C
24 Preferred Stock and thus all were entitled to vote

1 equally (in one general class)."

2 I will call this the "equal treatment 3 exception" or the "same treatment exception," because 4 the language seems to suggest that if an amendment 5 treats all shares equally or in the same way, then 6 there is no class vote.

7 As in Dickie Clay, the reference to 8 the peculiar or special characteristics of the common 9 stock was not necessary to the holding in Orban. The 10 issuance of the Series C and additional shares of 11 common stock did not alter any characteristic of the 12 common, whether or not they were peculiar or special 13 and whether or not they were express or implied.

14 The holding was thus that a class vote 15 was not required when nothing about the rights or 16 powers associated with the common stock was changed.
17 But the Court went further and included language 18 supporting the special right interpretation and the 19 equal treatment exception.

20 The company did a great job canvassing 21 all this law in their briefs. They were very 22 thorough, and I appreciate it. As a result, however, 23 it was not clear to me whether they were advancing the 24 superior right argument, the special right argument,

1 the express right argument, or the same treatment
2 exception.

3 Based on a combination of a letter I
4 sent to the parties before argument and helpful
5 dialogue that I had with counsel during argument, I 6 now understand that the company is only relying on the 7 express right argument - i.e., the express right
8 interpretation.

9 They say that the officer exculpation
10 amendment cannot trigger a class vote under 11 Section 242(b)(2) because the right to sue is not a 12 power or right expressly set forth in the certificate 13 of incorporation, but rather, is a power or right
14 established or implied by law. The generalized 15 proposition is that Section 242(b)(2) only applies to 16 power or rights expressly set forth in the certificate 17 of incorporation.

18 Let's engage with that argument. And 19 because Dickie Clay and Orban also provide support for 20 the superior right argument, the special right 21 argument, and the same treatment exception, let's 22 engage with those arguments too and try to figure out 23 how this statute operates.

24 Let's start out with the express right

1 argument and the two narrower versions that are 2 included within it, because both the superior right 3 argument and the special right argument are more 4 specific versions of the express right argument that 5 only apply to a subset of those express rights.

6 The obvious purpose of 7 Section 242(b)(2) seems to be to protect a class of 8 stock against having its powers, preferences, and 9 special rights adversely affected. That's what it 10 says.

11 Why would that concern only apply to 12 express rights, and not to rights established by law 13 when the charter is silent? And why would that 14 concern only apply to superior rights or special 15 rights, and not to baseline rights?

16 Let's start with a hypothetical that 17 stress tests the superior right interpretation and the 18 special right interpretation. I note at the outset 19 that the hypotheticals that I am presenting in this 20 ruling are not the same as the hypotheticals provided 21 to counsel in my letter, which were intended to help 22 focus discussion on particular issues for the hearing.

23 The company raised objections to 24 aspects of those hypotheticals that introduce other

1 legal issues. For example, in the hypotheticals in my 2 letter, I followed the plaintiff's lead and treated a 3 right of first refusal that was baked into the charter 4 as a special right of the shares.

5 The company cited a 2001 decision
6 involving a nonstock member corporation, Capano v.
7 Wilmington Country Club, 2001 WL 1359254 (Del. Ch.
8 Nov. 1, 2001), to argue that a transfer restriction is 9 not a special right of the shares even if it's baked 10 into the charter.

11 There's more that could be said on 12 that issue, but since the purpose of the hypothetical 13 is to stress test Section 242(b)(2), objections like 14 that are distracting. So I've shifted in these 15 hypotheticals to using a redemption right, which, 16 under Section 151, is necessarily and expressly by 17 statute an attribute of a class of shares.

18 Before proceeding further, let me
19 acknowledge that there may well be other arguments 20 against the amendments that are the subject of my 21 hypotheticals. Most notably, every corporate act is 22 twice tested, and none of these hypotheticals address 23 the Berle'ian second test. The point of these 24 hypotheticals is to explore the contours of 242(b)(2),

1 not to issue-spot for any and all arguments that might 2 possibly be made.

3 Here is Hypothetical No. 1: Assume 4 that a certificate of incorporation provides for two 5 classes of common stock, Class A and Class B, 6 specifies expressly that they each carry one vote per 7 share and is otherwise silent on the powers, 8 preferences, and rights of each class.

9 Each share thus has the same number of 10 votes that the shares would have by default under 11 Section 212(a), which provides that "[u]nless 12 otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation
13 and subject to Section 213 of this title, each 14 stockholder shall be entitled to 1 vote for each share 15 of capital stock held by such stockholder."

16 The power to vote in this hypothetical
17 is thus not a special right. It is not a superior 18 right. It is simply the baseline voting right made 19 express. Assume that the corporation has issued 20 shares of both classes of common. Assume that the 21 corporation proposes a charter amendment to reduce the 22 voting power of the Class B common from voting power 23 of one vote per share to zero votes per share.

24 It seems to me that Section 242(b)(2)

1 gives the Class B common a class vote in this 2 situation. The charter expressly gave the Class B
3 common voting power of one vote per share. That vote 4 is being taken away and reduced to zero. My 5 impression at oral argument was that the company 6 agreed that the Class B would have a class vote under 7 an analogous hypothetical that was in my letter.

8 But this means that neither the 9 superior right interpretation nor the special right 10 interpretation can be accurate interpretations of 11 Section 242(b)(2), because in this hypothetical, a 12 class vote is triggered by the modification of a 13 baseline right that has been made express. That right 14 is not "special" in the sense of being different than 15 baseline. It is not "superior" because it is the same 16 as the baseline. We can thus exclude those 17 interpretations as nonviable. That also means we have 18 to exclude, or at least discount, the language in 19 Dickie Clay and Orban which suggests that those 20 interpretations are viable.

21 Now let's move to Hypothetical 2 and 22 stress test the express power interpretation. Assume 23 the same facts as in my first hypothetical, but now 24 the voting power is not express. It is implied by law

1 under Section 212(a).

2 This scenario, therefore, does not
3 satisfy the express power interpretation. But why 4 should there be any difference? The amendment is 5 still eliminating the voting power associated with the 6 Class B common. The fact that the power is not 7 express should not matter. Yet under the express 8 power interpretation, no class vote is available in 9 this instance simply because the right is not express.

10 It does not make sense to me why a 11 class vote would be available in Hypothetical 1 and 12 not in Hypothetical 2 when the amendment is exactly 13 the same, the effect is exactly the same, and the only 14 difference is that in Hypothetical 1 the voting power
15 is specified in the charter, while in Hypothetical 2, 16 it is established by default under Section 212(a).

17 These two hypotheticals addressed the 18 power to vote. We can create a similar test for the 19 power to sell.

20 So let's try Hypothetical No. 3.
21 Assume the same facts as in Hypothetical 1, except 22 that the charter provides that "[a]ll shares of stock 23 of this corporation are freely alienable and may be 24 transferred in accordance with Article 8 of Title 1 of 1 subchapter 6." For those of you who don't recognize 2 it immediately, that was a direct quote from 3 Section 159. In our hypothetical, that language is 4 expressly included in the charter.

5 Assume that the corporation proposes a 6 charter amendment which provides that if any share of 7 Class B common is sold to a party that the board 8 determines is a competitor, then the corporation can 9 redeem the shares at 10 percent below fair market 10 value. Again, Section 151(b) provides expressly that 11 shares can be made redeemable as an attribute of the 12 shares.

13 Section 151 also provides that a 14 qualification, limitation, or restriction like a 15 redemption call "may be made dependent upon facts 16 ascertainable outside the certificate of incorporation 17 ... provided that the manner in which such facts shall 18 operate upon the voting powers, designations, 19 preferences, rights and qualifications, limitations or 20 restrictions of such class or series of stock is 21 clearly and expressly set forth in the certificate of 22 incorporation." Section 151(a) explains that "[t]he 23 term 'facts,' as used in this subsection, includes, 24 but is not limited to, the occurrence of any event,

1 including a determination or action by any person or 2 body, including the corporation." A board 3 determination that a buyer was a competitor thus could 4 trigger a redemption right.

5 The analysis of the amendment in 6 Hypothetical 3 is the same as in Hypothetical 1, but 7 with the power to sell substituted for the power to 8 vote. In this scenario, the power to sell is an 9 express power, but it's not a superior power or a 10 special power because its language tracks the language 11 of Section 159. It is a baseline power made express.

12 The competitor redemption right
13 amendment will reduce the scope of the express power 14 to sell by imposing the competitor redemption call 15 right in favor of the corporation. It seems to me 16 that Section 242(b)(2) should give the Class B common 17 a class vote in this situation. The charter expressly 18 gave the Class B common a power to sell, and the 19 amendment is reducing the scope of that power by 20 adding a redemption right in favor of the corporation.
21 An express power of the class is being adversely 22 affected.

23 But now let's try Hypothetical 4, 24 where we tweak the hypothetical so that the power to 1 sell is no longer express. Assume the same facts as 2 in Hypothetical 1, but the charter is silent on the 3 issue of alienability. The corporation's shares are 4 nevertheless still freely alienable under Section 159

5 and to exactly the same degree. Assume that the 6 corporation proposes the same charter amendment to 7 impose a competitor redemption call right in favor of 8 the corporation on the Class B stock.

9 The analysis under Section 242(b)(2)
10 ins the same as in Hypothetical 2, but with the power 11 to sell substituted for the power to vote. The power 12 to sell is now no longer express. It is implied by 13 law by Section 159.

14 The scenario, therefore, no longer
15 satisfies the express right argument. But again, so 16 what? The amendment is still reducing the scope of 17 the Class B common's power to sell by making the 18 shares subject to the competitor redemption call 19 right. That is an adverse effect on a power
20 appurtenant to a class of stock, and Section 242(b)(2)
21 should provide the Class B common with a class vote.

22 We have now seen through the lenses of 23 the power to vote and the power to sell that the 24 express right argument, the special right argument,

1 and the superior right argument treat like 2 circumstances differently. That suggests that the 3 interpretations of the statute that they support are 4 incoherent, because they create conflicting results in 5 substantively identical circumstances. An incoherent 6 interpretation of a statute should be an unpersuasive
7 one.

8 Those arguments, those 9 interpretations, should not have any more force for 10 purposes of the power to sue, which is another right 11 established by law.

12 To understand that, let's try 13 Hypothetical 5. Assume the same facts as in 14 Hypothetical 1. Assume that the corporation proposes 15 to adopt an amendment which provides that any holder
16 of Class B common stock who wishes to sue for breach 17 of fiduciary duty, whether through an individual or 18 derivative action, must own individually or 19 collectively with other plaintiffs, as of the date of 20 instituting such action, at least 2 percent of the 21 corporation's outstanding shares or, in the case of a 22 corporation with shares listed on a national 23 securities exchange, the lesser of such percentage or 24 shares of the corporation with a market value of at 1 least $2 million.

2 Let's call this the "litigation
3 threshold Amendment." For those who don't immediately 4 recognize the language, it's drawn verbatim from 5 Section 367 of the DGCL, which includes a provision of 6 that sort to limit the ability of stockholders to file
7 any action to enforce the balancing-of-interests 8 requirement found in Section 365(a) of the public 9 benefit corporation statute.

10 In this hypothetical, the power to sue
11 is being affected adversely. Before the litigation
12 threshold amendment, any holder of Class B common 13 stock could sue individually or derivatively. After 14 the amendment, a Class B common stockholder could sue 15 only by meeting the requirements of the litigation 16 threshold amendment. For purposes of 17 Section 242(b)(2), the amendment adversely affects a 18 power that the Class B common stock otherwise would 19 have. The plain language of Section 242(b)(2) would 20 seem to call for the Class B common stock to receive a 21 separate class vote to protect its power to sue.

22 The analysis of the officer
23 exculpation amendment should be identical to the 24 litigation threshold amendment. The restrictions on

1 the power to sue differ in degree, but not in kind.

2 I should note as an aside that when I
3 floated a similar litigation threshold amendment with 4 the parties, the company responded that this type of 5 provision would be invalid. Perhaps. But as I noted, 6 a version of the litigation threshold amendment is 7 expressly authorized for public benefit corporations 8 under Section 367, so it's difficult to say that it's 9 contrary to Delaware public policy. One would have to 10 posit some fundamental difference between C corps and 11 public benefit corps to support an argument as to why 12 a provision like this is warranted for a public 13 benefit corporation but beyond the pale for a 14 traditional C corp.

15 Regardless, the point of this exercise 16 is not to ask whether some other doctrine or source of 17 law might provide a constraint. The point is to 18 assess whether Section 242(b)(2) provides a constraint
19 by imposing a class vote when an amendment modifies
20 the power to sue. And the idea is to use the concept 21 of this amendment to pressure test the validity of the 22 various interpretations of 242(b)(2).

23 Now let's talk briefly about the same 24 treatment exception. Recall that the language of

1 Orban suggests that Section 242(b)(2) does not apply 2 when an amendment affects all classes in the same way.

3 There is nothing in the plain language
4 of Section 242(b)(2) that supports that assertion. In 5 fact, the contrast between the first and second 6 sentence of Section 242(b)(2) negates it. The second 7 sentence states, "[i]f any proposed amendment would 8 alter or change the powers, preferences, or special 9 rights of 1 or more series of any class so as to 10 affect them adversely, but shall not so affect the 11 entire class, then only the shares of the series so 12 affected by the amendment shall be considered a 13 separate class for purposes of this paragraph."

14 For purposes of a series vote, the 15 statute expressly includes the concept of same or 16 different treatment. There's nothing similar for a 17 class vote under the first sentence. If an amendment 18 affects all classes and the effect is adverse as to 19 each class, then each class gets a class vote.

20 Let's test the same treatment
21 exception with our last hypothetical, and I'm sure 22 you're thrilled to hear we've reached the end. It's 23 Hypothetical 6. Start with the same facts as 24 Hypothetical 1. This time, assume that one holder

1 owns all of the Class A common stock and that there
2 are enough Class A common shares to comprise a 3 majority of the outstanding voting power.

4 The Class A holder causes the 5 corporation to propose to amend its charter to adopt a 6 provision contemplated by 102(b)(6), which authorizes 7 a provision "imposing personal liability for the debts
8 of the corporation on its stockholders to a specified 9 extent and upon specified conditions; otherwise, the 10 stockholders of a corporation shall not be personally 11 liable for the payment of the corporation's debts 12 except as they may be liable by reason of their own 13 conduct or acts."

14 Assume that this amendment makes all 15 stockholders liable for a pro rata share of the 16 corporation's liability on a senior bank loan in the 17 event the corporation defaults. Assume that the 18 holder of the Class A common personally guaranteed 19 that loan. Imposing this amendment on all shares is 20 rational from the Class A stockholders' perspective, 21 because the holder of the Class A common is already on 22 the hook personally. This amendment puts all the 23 other stockholders on the hook proportionately as 24 well, diluting the Class A holder's potential

1 liability.

2 This amendment represents an adverse 3 change to a baseline and unexpressed right of the 4 shares, under which the owners are not personally 5 liable for the debts of the corporation. Yet the 6 amendment nominally treats all stockholders equally.
7 If the same treatment exception were correct, then 8 there would be no class vote in this situation. Yet 9 the amendment is plainly and obviously adverse to each 10 class. I would suggest that, based on this example, 11 we can rule out the same treatment exception. In this 12 setting, each class gets a class vote.

13 During oral argument, I was eventually 14 able to discern that the company is not relying on the 15 same treatment exception. I did have the impression 16 at oral argument that the company agrees that if a 17 corporation has multiple classes of stock and an 18 amendment makes an adverse change to each of these 19 classes, even if it is the same adverse change, then 20 each class gets a class vote.

21 That's all helpful. It's nice to be 22 on the same page as to that. But what it means is we 23 have to discount the language in Orban that supports 24 the same treatment exception, because the same

1 treatment exception doesn't work under Section
2 242(b)(2).

3 The company has said that it's not 4 relying on the superior right argument or the special 5 right argument. The company says it is only relying 6 on the express right argument. The company is not 7 asserting that a right must be superior, nor that the 8 right must be special and different from the rights
9 held by the other shares. The company agrees that all 10 shares could have the same exact right, or even that 11 it could be an express version of a baseline right.
12 The company says only that to trigger a class vote, 13 the right must appear expressly in the charter.

14 As I have noted, the express right
15 argument results in the exact same charter amendment 16 operating differently, depending on whether the right 17 is expressed in the charter or established by law.
18 That suggests a degree of incoherence in the express 19 right argument that should fatally undermine it.

20 In response, the company argues that
21 the express right argument is necessarily the answer
22 under Dickey Clay and Orban. As I have discussed, 23 there's actually language in those cases that support 24 multiple different interpretations. The express right

1 interpretation is one of them, but it is not 2 indisputably clear that Dickey Clay and Orban
3 necessarily lead to the express right argument.

4 As a fallback, the company argues that
5 the express right argument is necessarily the answer
6 because, otherwise, how would a corporation know 7 whether a class vote was necessary. I don't think 8 there would be any great mystery. There are three 9 fundamental stockholder powers: to vote, to sell, and 10 to sue. There are other rights set forth in the DGCL.
11 And there are express rights. If you affect any of 12 those adversely, you trigger a class vote for the 13 affected class.

14 The company argues that without the 15 express right interpretation, more charter amendments
16 would require class votes. That undoubtedly is true.
17 For example, in a multi-class company, class votes 18 could be required for charter amendments eliminating 19 the right to act by written consent or approving a 20 conversion to a private benefit corporation.

21 In my experience, corporate planners
22 would like to avoid class votes. But that does not 23 mean more class votes is a bad thing. By my lights, 24 whether more class votes is good or bad is another

1 debatable proposition that depends on your underlying 2 empirical assumptions.

3 Let's start from a theoretical
4 standpoint. From that perspective, granting a class 5 vote to each class in a particular setting ensures the 6 transaction that triggers the class vote is what 7 economists call Kaldor-Hicks efficient, because the 8 class can block the amendment unless it receives 9 sufficient consideration to outweigh any loss.

10 For anyone who doesn't immediately
11 recall the concept of Kaldor-Hicks efficiency from 12 your law and economics class -- and there's no reason 13 why you necessarily should -- the idea is that a 14 transaction is efficient if one side is sufficiently 15 better off that it can compensate the other side for 16 its losses so that everyone is at least not worse off.

17 The concept is distinct from Pareto
18 optimality, where everyone in a transaction 19 necessarily is made better off. The idea under 20 Kaldor-Hicks efficiency is that, on net, the 21 transaction makes everyone better off, so that even if 22 one side loses, society gains. If the adversely 23 affected side has a blocking right, it will veto 24 transactions that are not Kaldor-Hicks efficient, and

1 it will withhold approval under conditions of 2 Kaldor-Hicks efficiency until those who benefit from 3 the transaction and want it to go forward share some 4 of the benefit to offset the detriment.

5 A class vote has that effect. A class 6 vote thus ensures that amendments go through that will 7 be value creating rather than value destroying.

8 A less theoretical way of framing the 9 problem is that midstream amendments enable both 10 permanent and temporary majorities to impose their 11 will on minority classes of stock and potentially 12 reallocate value through amendments. It is easy to 13 imagine settings where one or more classes dominate 14 the total voting power and seek to make adverse 15 changes to a right that one of the classes would want 16 to preserve. Hypothetical 6 provided an example of 17 that with the amendment that sought to impose personal 18 liability for a corporate debt on all stockholders.

19 For an example, using the power to 20 sue, envision a group of venture capital funds who own 21 all the preferred stock and, through it, the bulk of 22 the corporation's outstanding voting power. They 23 might well seek to impose amendments on the common 24 stock that alter unexpressed rights, such as the right

1 to sue.

2 For a concrete example, let's assume 3 the preferred stockholders foresee having to engage in 4 the type of transaction at issue in Orban and later in 5 Trados, where their liquidation preferences will soak 6 up all the consideration and the common will receive 7 nothing. As an advance-planning measure, the 8 preferred might well seek to impose something like the 9 litigation threshold amendment. If the corporation 10 were privately held after the amendment, only a 11 stockholder who owned, individually or collectively 12 with other plaintiffs, at least 2 percent of the class 13 would be able to sue.

14 For purposes of Section 242(b)(2), the 15 amendment would adversely affect a power that the 16 common otherwise would have, and the plain language of 17 the statute would seem to call for a class vote by the 18 common on that type of amendment to protect its power 19 to sue.

20 With a class vote, the common could 21 reject the amendment unless the amendment was part of 22 a transaction in which they received something in 23 return, such as a modification of the preferred's 24 liquidation preference.

1 This is not heresy. Nor is it novel.
2 It's how restructurings happen in bankruptcy, where 3 multiple classes in the capital structure receive 4 class votes. It's also how bond restructurings
5 happen, because a class of bondholders often receive 6 some form of consideration for agreeing to 7 modifications in their contract rights.

8 It is not unthinkable to envision that 9 the same type of structure would happen in this type 10 of setting and that 242(b)(2) would be intended to 11 protect the powers of a class of stock so that they 12 could not be adversely affected and value reallocated.

13 Now, what would the real-world 14 consequences of this interpretation of 15 Section 242(b)(2) actually be? I would say not much.
16 It would have no effect on new IPOs, where the issuing 17 company can still put whatever it wants in its 18 charter. It would have no effect on single-class 19 corporations. The main effect would be to provide 20 protection for stockholders in multi-class 21 corporations where one or more issuances dominate the 22 voting power and another issuance is vulnerable.

23 Even then, if the amendment is good 24 for all stockholders, then the class votes should be

1 easy to get. And if the corporation times the 2 amendment to coincide with its annual meeting, there 3 is no need for significant additional expense.

4 And, as is often the case, in Delaware
5 there is still a workaround. Recall that the merger
6 statute, Section 251, permits a corporation to amend 7 its charter and does not require a class vote. That's 8 the landmark decision of Federated United Corporation
9 v. Havender, a case from 1940, decided just two years
10 before Dickey Clay, as well as Warner Communications 11 v. Chris-Craft, a decision from Chancellor Allen in 12 1989, just seven years before Orban. There's a nice 13 symmetry there. The only likely real-world effect of 14 providing a class vote would thus be to channel 15 corporations to use mergers to amend their charters
16 rather than charter amendments under Section 242.

17 Now for a contrary policy argument.
18 During the hearing, the company argued that when 19 stockholders purchase no-vote shares, like the 20 non-voting shares issued by the company, the buyers 21 know they have no right to vote and cannot object to 22 not receiving a class vote on the officer exculpation
23 amendment. But that begs the question. Stockholders 24 who buy non-voting stock know they have no right to

1 vote unless required by law. Namely, unless required
2 by Section 242(b)(2). If Section 242(b)(2) provides a 3 vote in this setting, then they bought shares with 4 that baseline understanding – in other words, the 5 baseline expectation that they would have a vote.

6 This points to a larger problem with 7 arguments about the baseline expectations of buyers.
8 One cannot assume a baseline expectation and then use 9 it to answer the question that the case poses which 10 actually determines the nature of the expectation.
11 That is circular reasoning.

12 To reiterate, the issue presented by 13 the officer exculpation amendment is identical to the 14 litigation threshold amendment. It affects a power 15 that is not express, but that should not matter. It 16 affects a power that is not special or superior, but 17 that should not matter either. I personally view the 18 officer exculpation amendment as reasonable, so it's 19 hard to see out of the box the implications of the 20 underlying rule. Analytically, however, the issue is 21 the same.

22 Given the foregoing analysis, there's 23 a lot to be said for the plaintiff's plain-meaning 24 argument. But I cannot adopt it.

1 The company has been able to trace a 2 textual argument that links powers, preferences, and 3 special rights to the powers, preferences, and special 4 rights made express in a charter under 5 Section 102(a)(4).

6 My discussion has shown that the 7 express rights interpretation breaks down for the 8 baseline right to vote and the baseline right to sell.
9 My discussion suggests that the law should imply a 10 similar outcome for the baseline right to sue.

11 But one could address the 12 inconsistencies created by the baseline right to vote 13 and the baseline right to sue and steel-man the 14 express right interpretation by framing it as not just 15 encompassing any power or preference or special right 16 that is stated expressly in the charter, but also, any 17 power, preference, or special right that is stated 18 expressly in the DGCL.

19 That version of the express rights
20 argument would follow from Section 394 of the DGCL, 21 which states -- and I'm quoting -- "[t]his chapter and 22 all amendments thereof shall be a part of the charter 23 or certificate of incorporation of every corporation."

24 The Delaware Supreme Court noted this

1 reality in STAAR Surgical v. Waggoner in 1991, when it
2 stated: "[I]t is a basic concept that the General 3 Corporation Law is a part of the certificate of 4 incorporation of every Delaware company."

5 Coincidentally, that statement also appears in Dickey 6 Clay, where the Court said, at page 321, "[T]here is 7 impliedly written into every corporate charter as a 8 constituent part thereof the pertinent provisions of 9 the State Constitution and statutes."

10 So under this steel-man version of the 11 express rights interpretation, the power to sue for 12 breach of fiduciary duty would be an attribute of the 13 shares, but it would be different from the right to 14 vote or the right to sell, because there is no express 15 provision in the DGCL that addresses the right to sue.
16 Except for Section 327, which imposes the 17 contemporaneous ownership requirement for derivative
18 claims, the DGCL says nothing about the power to sue.

19 It follows that, under this steel-man 20 version of the express rights argument, the power to 21 sue would not be protected by Section 242(b)(2).

22 I have to admit that if I were writing 23 on a blank slate, I would be inclined to add in the 24 power to sue. I think there is a strong argument that

1 the power to sue is the foundational power, meaning
2 that it is the power that is essential to all others 3 and on which the legal regime is built. Why? Because 4 if you cannot go to court, then you cannot enforce 5 your other rights. If you cannot obtain a judgment, 6 backed by the power of the state, that allows you to 7 invoke the power of the state on your behalf to 8 enforce your other rights, such as the power to vote 9 or the power to sell, you might as well not have those 10 powers. Unless you have some ability to coerce 11 compliance from the corporation on your own, whether 12 through violence or economic power, those powers 13 become just words on a page.

14 Interestingly, the company seems to 15 acknowledge the importance of the power to sue as a 16 foundational power. When I circulated the earlier 17 versions of my hypotheticals to the parties by letter, 18 the company responded to some of them by saying that a 19 particular amendment that affected the power to sue 20 would be invalid as a matter of public policy because 21 Delaware law will not permit certain limitations on 22 the power to sue.

23 That is doubtless true. And the 24 superficial distinction for the officer exculpation

1 amendment is that the Delaware General Assembly has 2 specifically authorized it. But while that fact makes 3 clear that the amendment is permissible, it does not 4 answer whether the amendment sufficiently impairs a 5 power associated with a class of stock such that the 6 class should receive a class vote under 7 Section 242(b)(2).

8 To reiterate, an amendment that 9 imposes a reduction in voting power is plainly 10 permissible. Section 242(a)(3) says that. But it
11 still may implicate a class vote under Section 12 242(b)(2). An amendment that imposes a redemption 13 right is plainly permissible under Section 151(b).
14 But it still may implicate a class vote under 15 Section 242(b)(2). If anything, the fact that the 16 amendment to the DGCL under 102(b)(7) was deemed 17 necessary to validate officer exculpation suggests the 18 limitation is a big deal. And therefore, while now 19 permissible as a statutory matter, it could be a 20 sufficient impairment to a power associated with stock 21 to require a class vote under Section 242(b)(2).

22 If I were writing on a blank slate,
23 therefore, I would say that the power to sue is the 24 foundational power which, while not express, is the 1 most important baseline power, essential for the 2 others to exist, and therefore, less subject to 3 modification than other powers and preferences and 4 special rights, not more so. Indeed, I would suggest 5 that one could flip the argument about the power to 6 sue being readily modifiable because it is not an 7 express power. I would suggest that it is so 8 important, so fundamental, that no one needed to 9 provide for it expressly, and therefore it is not 10 readily modifiable.

11 Under this approach, the power to sue 12 would only be modifiable to the same degree as any 13 special right appearing in the charter or identified 14 in the DGCL. And that would mean that the officer 15 exculpation provision would require a class vote.

16 That said, I do not think that such an 17 interpretation reflects the language of Dickey Clay
18 and Orban. I think the language of those cases 19 supports the company's version of the express rights
20 interpretation.

21 I also think, consistent with the 22 company's showing in its briefing, that Delaware 23 practitioners have long viewed Dickey Clay as 24 supporting the express rights interpretation. The 1 company has cited treatise passages to that effect.

2 The company has pointed to the absence of any 3 commentary saying anything different over the past 4 decades.

5 The company also cited the experience
6 with the director exculpation amendments that were 7 adopted after the original enactment of 8 Section 102(b)(7). Those amendments pose the same 9 issue as the officer exculpation amendments, yet there 10 is no evidence of any commentary suggesting that in a 11 multi-class structure, a class vote would be required.

12 The company has identified nine
13 examples of multi-class companies that adopted 14 director exculpation amendments where no class vote
15 was required. One corporation was a New York company, 16 true, but no one has suggested that New York's law is 17 different from Delaware in this respect.

18 Another corporation, The Washington
19 Post Company, provided a class vote voluntarily on the 20 joint adoption of both a director exculpation 21 amendment and a director indemnification provision, 22 believing that the latter could be viewed as an 23 interested transaction such that a class vote would be 24 helpful.

1 In the nearly 40 years since 1986 and 2 the adoption of Section 102(b)(7) for directors, no 3 one has taken the position until this case that an 4 exculpation amendment requires a class vote.

5 Speaking for myself, I never 6 previously thought that an exculpation amendment
7 required a class vote. Until I read the plaintiff's 8 briefs, I thought this case was a no-brainer and an 9 easy call.

10 Once I read the plaintiff's briefs, I
11 decided they had a good plain-language argument. As I 12 noted at the outset, if this were the first case to 13 consider section 242(b)(2), then there might be a good 14 reason to adopt it.

15 But this is not the first case to 16 consider 242(b)(2). The decisions in Dickey Clay and 17 Orban have paved the way, and there's an established 18 understanding as to how Section 242(b)(2) works.

19 My deference to long-standing
20 practitioner expectation in this case does not mean 21 that a court will always defer to practitioner views.
22 The Delaware Supreme Court did not do so in CML v.
23 Bax. I did not do so in Vaalco. Then-Chancellor 24 Strine did not do so in Sandridge. And the recent

1 SPAC apocalypse brought on by Garfield v. Boxed shows
2 that the fact that many transactions deploy a 3 particular structure does not mean it is right.
4 Indeed, it can be fundamentally wrong.

5 Here, however, the company's 6 interpretation is deeply settled, and it draws on 7 Dickey Clay, which is a Delaware Supreme Court
8 decision. I therefore do not feel at liberty to adopt 9 a different interpretation of Section 242(b)(2).
10 Accordingly, under Dickey Clay and Orban, the officer 11 exculpation amendment does not require a class vote of 12 the company's non-voting stock because the officer 13 exculpation amendment does not affect a power, 14 preference, or special right that appears expressly in 15 the charter.

16 As I noted, there is a companion case
17 involving Snap that presents the same issues. Its 18 motion for summary judgment is granted on the same
19 basis.

20 To reiterate, for the reasons that 21 I've stated, the plaintiff's motion for summary 22 judgment is denied, and the company's motion is 23 granted.

24 I will enter an order to that effect.

1 It is my intention for that order to 2 be my last act in the case, such that it constitutes a 3 final judgment, from which the aggrieved party can 4 appeal as of right.

5 Thank you for listening to this 6 ruling. I appreciate everyone bearing with me. And I 7 hope everyone has a good day. Goodbye.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. Reports First Quarter 2023 Results

LEAWOOD, KANSAS - (May 5, 2023) -- AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: AMC and APE) ("AMC" or "the Company"), today reported results for the first quarter ended March 31, 2023.

Summary First Quarter 2023 Compared to First Quarter 2022:

- Total revenues grew 21.5% to $954.4 million.
- Net loss improved by $101.9 million to $235.5 million.
- Adjusted net loss was $179.7 million compared to an adjusted net loss of $266.3 million.
- Diluted loss per share was $0.17 compared to a diluted loss per share of $0.33.
- Adjusted diluted loss per share was $0.13 compared to an adjusted diluted loss per share of $0.26.
- Adjusted EBITDA improved by $68.8 million to $7.1 million.
- Net cash used in operating activities for the quarter was $189.9 million.
- Non-GAAP Operating Cash Burn¹ for the quarter was $139.4 million compared to $223.9 million.
- Available liquidity at March 31, 2023 was $703.7 million, including $208.1 million of undrawn capacity under the Company's revolving credit facility.

In announcing the quarterly results, Adam Aron, Chairman and CEO of AMC said, "Our results for the first quarter of 2023 represent AMC's strongest first quarter in four full years. We kicked off 2023 by continuing on our positive glide path to recovery, with more than a 21% growth in total revenues and a $69 million improvement in Adjusted EBITDA compared to the previous year. The first quarter of 2023 and fourth quarter of 2022 mark the first two consecutive quarters of positive Adjusted EBITDA since March of 2020. This progress is a testament to the ongoing recovery in the industrywide box office, as well as AMC's enduring commitment to excellence and innovation as our guests enjoy a superb movie-going experience at our theatres."

Aron added, "AMC theatres across the globe welcomed nearly 48 million guests in the first quarter thanks to the continued strength of James Cameron's AVATAR: THE WAY OF WATER and the knockout power of first quarter releases like Marvel's ANT-MAN AND THE WASP: QUANTUMANIA, CREED III, SCREAM VI, SHAZAM! FURY OF THE GODS and JOHN WICK CHAPTER 4. All told, the first quarter North American box office easily surpassed 2022 by some 29%, totaling more than $1.7 billion. The recovery in the European box office was even stronger in getting to pre-pandemic norms than that in the U.S. As I have said for years, when our studio partners showcase their magical storytelling, there is robust demand to be realized at AMC theatres both in the U.S. and abroad."

Aron continued, “We believe the first quarter of 2023 is just the tip of the iceberg for what’s to come in the remainder of the year. To that end, the second quarter of 2023 has already begun with the notable success of THE SUPER MARIO BROTHERS MOVIE, currently the highest-grossing movie of 2023 and over $1 billion in ticket sales worldwide. With so many compelling movies coming just in the next few months like GUARDIANS OF THE GALAXY VOL 3; THE LITTLE MERMAID, ELEMENTAL, FAST X, SPIDER-MAN: ACROSS THE SPIDER-VERSE, THE FLASH, INDIANA JONES AND THE DIAL OF DESTINY, MISSION IMPOSSIBLE - DEAD RECKONING PART ONE, OPPENHEIMER, BLUE BEETLE, GRAN TURISMO, HAUNTED MANSION, ABOUT MY FATHER, BARBIE, THE MEG 2: THE TRENCH, STRAYS, NO HARD FEELINGS, JOY RIDE, ASTEROID CITY, and THE EQUALIZER 3, among others, the remainder of the year promises something for everyone, and AMC stands ready to welcome movie-goers in significant numbers. We could not be more optimistic about the prospects for the 2023 box office, except to say that 2024 looks even better.”

Aron highlighted, “Of particular note, food and beverage spending per patron of $6.90 globally and $7.99 in the U.S., continued at a blistering pace compared to pre-pandemic levels. This is especially welcome given the high-margin nature of our food and beverage activity.”

Aron concluded, “During the first quarter of 2023, we continued to strengthen our balance sheet by raising more than $155 million of cash through the sale of APE units, and by reducing the principal balance of our debt by more than $200 million in repurchasing debt or exchanging APE units for debt. Our optimism about a clearly increasing industrywide box office notwithstanding, we have been very transparent that it will take a few more years for the industry box office to return near to pre-pandemic levels, and our ability to raise additional capital during this extended recovery period will be a crucial component of our success. We will continue our fight to preserve our agility and to remain on our recovery trajectory, as we work hard to position AMC for long-term success.”

AMC Preferred Equity Unit At-The-Market Equity Program

In September 2022, AMC launched an at-the-market (“ATM”) equity program to sell up to 425 million shares of its AMC Preferred Equity Units (“APE units”).

Since the inception of the ATM in September 2022, as of March 31, 2023, AMC had raised gross proceeds of approximately $309.1 million, before commissions and fees, from the sale of approximately 257.0 million APE units.

During the first quarter of 2023, AMC raised gross proceeds of $80.3 million through the sale of approximately 49.3 million APE units.

During the second quarter of 2023, AMC has raised additional gross proceeds of approximately $34.2 million, before commission and fees, from the sale of approximately 21.2 million shares of APE units.

There are currently no APE units available to be issued under the September ATM equity program and board authorization.

Balance Sheet, Cash and Liquidity

During the first quarter 2023, AMC:

- Repurchased $99.4 million aggregate principal amounts of the Second Lien Notes due 2026 for $54.8 million or a 45% discount.
- Repurchased $4.1 million aggregate principal amount of the 5.875% Senior Subordinated Notes due 2026 for $1.7 million, or a 59% discount.

- Issued approximately 91.0 million shares of APE units on a private basis to extinguish $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company's 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026.
- Raised $75.1 million through the private sale of approximately 106.6 million APE Units.
- Received $30 million from Saudi Entertainment Ventures, AMC's Saudi joint venture partner, as AMC begins to transition from a management and investment role to a pure licensing relationship.

Cash at March 31, 2023 was $495.6 million excluding restricted cash of $23.1 million. AMC currently has liquidity availability of $703.7 million (including cash and undrawn capacity under the Company's revolving credit facility).

Forward-Looking Statements

This communication includes "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of the federal securities laws, including the safe harbor provisions of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. In many cases, these forward-looking statements may be identified by the use of words such as "will," "may," "could," "would," "should," "believes," "expects," "anticipates," "estimates," "intends," "indicates," "projects," "goals," "objectives," "targets," "predicts," "plans," "seeks," and variations of these words and similar expressions. Examples of forward-looking statements include statements we make regarding our expected revenue, net loss, capital expenditure, Adjusted EBITDA and estimate cash and cash equivalent. Any forward-looking statement speaks only as of the date on which it is made. These forward-looking statements may include, among other things, statements related to AMC's current expectations regarding the performance of its business, financial results, liquidity and capital resources, and the impact to its business and financial condition of, and measures being taken in response to, the COVID-19 virus, and are based on information available at the time the statements are made and/or management's good faith belief as of that time with respect to future events, and are subject to risks, trends, uncertainties and other facts that could cause actual performance or results to differ materially from those expressed in or suggested by the forward-looking statements. These risks, trends, uncertainties and facts include, but are not limited to: the sufficiency of AMC's existing cash and cash equivalents and available borrowing capacity; availability of financing upon favorable terms or at all; AMC's ability to obtain additional liquidity, which if not realized or insufficient to generate the material amounts of additional liquidity that will be required unless it is able to achieve more normalized levels of operating revenues, likely would result with AMC seeking an in-court or out-of-court restructuring of its liabilities; the impact of the COVID-19 virus on AMC, the motion picture exhibition industry, and the economy in general; increased use of alternative film delivery methods or other forms of entertainment; the continued recovery of the North American and international box office; AMC's significant indebtedness, including its borrowing capacity and its ability to meet its financial maintenance and other covenants and limitations on AMC's ability to take advantage of certain business opportunities imposed by such covenants; shrinking exclusive theatrical release windows; the seasonality of AMC's revenue and working capital; intense competition in the geographic areas in which AMC operates; risks relating to impairment losses, including with respect to goodwill and other intangibles, and theatre and other closure charges; motion picture production and performance; general and international economic, political, regulatory and other risks; AMC's lack of control over distributors of films; limitations on the availability of capital, including on the authorized number of common stock; dilution of voting power through the issuance of preferred stock; AMC's ability to achieve expected synergies, benefits and performance from its strategic initiatives; AMC's ability to refinance its indebtedness on favorable terms; AMC's ability to optimize its theatre circuit; AMC's ability to recognize interest deduction carryforwards, net operating loss carryforwards, and other tax attributes to reduce future tax liability; supply chain disruptions, labor shortages, increased cost and inflation; the ongoing stockholder litigation preventing AMC from implementing its 1:10 reverse stock split of Class A common stock and conversion of the AMC Preferred Equity Units into Class A common stock; and other factors discussed in the reports AMC has filed with the SEC. Should one or more of these risks, trends, uncertainties, or facts materialize, or should underlying assumptions prove incorrect, actual results may vary materially from those indicated or anticipated by the forward-looking statements contained herein. Accordingly, we caution you against relying on forward-looking statements, which speak only as of the date they are made. Forward-looking statements should not be read as a guarantee of future performance or results and will not necessarily be accurate indications of the times at, or by, which such performance or results will be achieved. For a detailed discussion of risks, trends and uncertainties facing AMC, see the section entitled "Risk Factors" in AMC's 2022 Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2022 and Form 10-Q for the quarter ended March 31, 2023, each as filed with the SEC, and the risks, trends and uncertainties identified in AMC's other public filings. AMC does not intend, and undertakes no duty, to update any information contained herein to reflect future events or circumstances, except as required by applicable law.

- 1) We present Adjusted EBITDA as a supplemental measure of our performance. We define Adjusted EBITDA as net earnings (loss) plus (i) income tax provision (benefit), (ii) interest expense and (iii) depreciation and amortization, as further adjusted to eliminate the impact of certain items that we do not consider indicative of our ongoing operating performance and to include attributable EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operations in International markets and any cash distributions of earnings from other equity method investees. These further adjustments are itemized above. You are encouraged to evaluate these adjustments and the reasons we consider them appropriate for supplemental analysis. In evaluating Adjusted EBITDA, you should be aware that in the future we may incur expenses that are the same as or similar to some of the adjustments in this presentation. Our presentation of Adjusted EBITDA should not be construed as an inference that our future results will be unaffected by unusual or non-recurring items. Adjusted EBITDA is a non-U.S. GAAP financial measures commonly used in our industry and should not be construed as an alternative to net earnings (loss) as an indicator of operating performance (as determined in accordance with U.S. GAAP). Adjusted EBITDA may not be comparable to similarly titled measures reported by other companies. We have included Adjusted EBITDA because we believe it provides management and investors with additional information to measure our performance and estimate our value. The preceding definition of Adjusted EBITDA is broadly consistent with how Adjusted EBITDA is defined in our debt indentures.

Adjusted EBITDA has important limitations as an analytical tool, and you should not consider it in isolation, or as a substitute for analysis of our results as reported under U.S. GAAP. For example, Adjusted EBITDA:

- does not reflect our capital expenditures, future requirements for capital expenditures or contractual commitments;
- does not reflect changes in, or cash requirements for, our working capital needs;
- does not reflect the significant interest expenses, or the cash requirements necessary to service interest or principal payments, on our debt;
- excludes income tax payments that represent a reduction in cash available to us; and

- does not reflect any cash requirements for the assets being depreciated and amortized that may have to be replaced in the future.
- 2) Amounts represent preopening expense related to temporarily closed screens under renovation, theatre and other closure expense for the permanent closure of screens, including the related accretion of interest, disposition of assets and other non-operating gains or losses included in operating expenses. We have excluded these items as they are non-cash in nature or are non-operating in nature.
- 3) Includes U.S. non-theatre distributions from equity method investments and International non-theatre distributions from equity method investments to the extent received. We believe including cash distributions is an appropriate reflection of the contribution of these investments to our operations.
- 4) Attributable EBITDA includes the EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operators in certain International markets. See below for a reconciliation of our equity in loss of non-consolidated entities to attributable EBITDA. Because these equity investments are in theatre operators in regions where we hold a significant market share, we believe attributable EBITDA is more indicative of the performance of these equity investments and management uses this measure to monitor and evaluate these equity investments. We also provide services to these theatre operators including information technology systems, certain on-screen advertising services and our gift card and package ticket program.

Net cash used in operating activities	$ (189.9)	$ (295.0)
Plus: total capital expenditures	(47.4)	(34.8)
Free cash flow (1)	$ (237.3)	$ (329.8)

Reconciliation of Capital Expenditures:

Capital expenditures
Growth capital expenditures (5)	$ 14.0	$ 9.5
Maintenance capital expenditures (4)	19.4	14.5
Change in construction payables (6)	14.0	10.8
Total capital expenditures	$ 47.4	$ 34.8

- 1) We present "Operating Cash Burn" and "Free Cash Flow" as supplemental measures of our liquidity. Free Cash Flow is an important financial measure for use in evaluating our liquidity, as it measures our ability to generate additional cash from our business operations. Free Cash Flow should be considered in addition to, rather than as a substitute for, net cash used in operating activities as a measure of our liquidity. Additionally, our definition of Operating Cash Burn is limited and does not represent residual cash flows available for discretionary expenditures due to the fact that the measure does not deduct the payments required for interest expense and the deferral or repayment of lease amounts that were due and not paid during the COVID-19 pandemic. Therefore, we believe it is important to view Operating Cash Burn and Free Cash Flow as supplemental to our entire statement of cash flows. The term Operating Cash Burn and Free Cash Flow may differ from similar measures reported by other companies.

- 2) Repayment of deferred lease amounts represent those lease amounts that were due and not paid during the COVID-19 pandemic. Their impact is excluded from operating cash burn to provide a more normalized cash rent payment stream.
 - 3) Non-recurring lease receipts represent lease termination cash payments received during the three months ended March 31, 2023. Their impact is excluded from operating cash burn to provide a more normalized cash rent payment stream.
 - 4) Maintenance capital expenditures are amounts required to keep our existing theatres in compliance with regulatory requirements and in a sustainable good operating condition, including expenditures for repair of HVAC, sight and sound systems, compliance with ADA requirements and technology upgrades of existing systems.
 - 5) Growth capital expenditures are investments that enhance the guest experience and grow revenues and profits and include initiatives such as theatre remodels, acquisitions, newly built theatres, premium large formats, enhanced food and beverage offerings and service models and technology that enable efficiencies and additional revenue opportunities.
 - 6) Change in construction payables are changes in amounts accrued for capital expenditures that fluctuate significantly from period to period based on the timing of actual payments.

- 1) We present Adjusted EBITDA as a supplemental measure of our performance. We define Adjusted EBITDA as net earnings (loss) plus (i) income tax provision (benefit), (ii) interest expense and (iii) depreciation and amortization, as further adjusted to eliminate the impact of certain items that we do not consider indicative of our ongoing operating performance and to include attributable EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operations in International markets and any cash distributions of earnings from other equity method investees. These further adjustments are itemized above. You are encouraged to evaluate these adjustments and the reasons we consider them appropriate for supplemental analysis. In evaluating Adjusted EBITDA, you should be aware that in the future we may incur expenses that are the same as or similar to some of the adjustments in this presentation. Our presentation of Adjusted EBITDA should not be construed as an inference that our future results will be unaffected by unusual or non-recurring items. Adjusted EBITDA is a non-U.S. GAAP financial measure commonly used in our industry and should not be construed as an alternative to net earnings (loss) as an indicator of operating performance (as determined in accordance with U.S. GAAP). Adjusted EBITDA may not be comparable to similarly titled measures reported by other companies. We have included Adjusted EBITDA because we believe it provides management and investors with additional information to measure our performance and estimate our value. The preceding definition of Adjusted EBITDA is broadly consistent with how Adjusted EBITDA is defined in our debt indentures.

Adjusted EBITDA has important limitations as analytical tools, and you should not consider it in isolation, or as a substitute for analysis of our results as reported under U.S. GAAP. For example, Adjusted EBITDA:

- does not reflect our capital expenditures, future requirements for capital expenditures or contractual commitments;
- does not reflect changes in, or cash requirements for, our working capital needs;

- does not reflect the significant interest expenses, or the cash requirements necessary to service interest or principal payments, on our debt;
 - excludes income tax payments that represent a reduction in cash available to us; and
 - does not reflect any cash requirements for the assets being depreciated and amortized that may have to be replaced in the future.
- 2) Amounts represent preopening expense related to temporarily closed screens under renovation, theatre and other closure expense for the permanent closure of screens, including the related accretion of interest, disposition of assets and other non-operating gains or losses included in operating expenses. We have excluded these items as they are non-cash in nature or are non-operating in nature.
 - 3) Includes U.S. non-theatre distributions from equity method investments and International non-theatre distributions from equity method investments to the extent received. We believe including cash distributions is an appropriate reflection of the contribution of these investments to our operations.
 - 4) Attributable EBITDA includes the EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operators in certain International markets. See below for a reconciliation of our equity in loss of non-consolidated entities to attributable EBITDA. Because these equity investments are in theatre operators in regions where we hold a significant market share, we believe attributable EBITDA is more indicative of the performance of these equity investments and management uses this measure to monitor and evaluate these equity investments. We also provide services to these theatre operators including information technology systems, certain on-screen advertising services and our gift card and package ticket program.

- 6) Other expense during the quarter ended March 31, 2023 included a non-cash litigation contingency reserve charge of $116.6 million, partially offset by foreign currency transaction gains of $(9.3) million and gains on debt extinguishment of $(65.1) million.
- 7) Reflects amortization of certain intangible assets reclassified from depreciation and amortization to rent expense due to the adoption of ASC 842, Leases and deferred rent benefit related to the impairment of right-of-use operating lease assets.

- 8) Merger, acquisition and other costs are excluded as it is non-operating in nature.
 - 9) Non-cash expense included in General and Administrative: Other.
 - 10) The International segment information for the quarter ended March 31, 2023 has been adjusted for constant currency. Constant currency amounts, which are non-GAAP measurements were calculated using the average exchange rate for the corresponding period for 2022. We translate the results of our International operating segment from local currencies into U.S. dollars using currency rates in effect at different points in time in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Significant changes in foreign exchange rates from one period to the next can result in meaningful variations in reported results. We are providing constant currency amounts for our International operating segment to present a period-to-period comparison of business performance that excludes the impact of foreign currency fluctuations.
 - 11) The International segment information for the quarter ended March 31, 2023 has been adjusted for constant currency. Constant currency amounts, which are non-GAAP measurements were calculated using the average exchange rate for the corresponding period for 2019. We translate the results of our International operating segment from local currencies into U.S. dollars using currency rates in effect at different points in time in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Significant changes in foreign exchange rates from one period to the next can result in meaningful variations in reported results. Adjusted diluted loss per share	$ (0.13)	$ (0.26)

We present adjusted net loss for diluted loss per share and adjusted diluted loss per share as supplemental measures of our performance. We have included these measures because we believe they provide management and investors with additional information that is helpful when evaluating our underlying performance and comparing our results on a year-over-year normalized basis. Adjusted net loss for diluted loss per share eliminates the impact of certain items that we do not consider indicative of our underlying operating performance. These adjustments are itemized above. Adjusted diluted loss per share is adjusted net loss for diluted purposes divided by weighted average diluted shares outstanding. Weighted average shares for diluted purposes include common equivalents for restricted stock units ("RSUs") and performance stock units ("PSUs"). The impact of RSUs and PSUs was anti-dilutive in each period. You are encouraged to evaluate the adjustments itemized above and the reasons we consider them appropriate for supplemental analysis. In evaluating adjusted net loss and adjusted net loss per share, you should be aware that in the future we may incur expenses that are the same as or similar to some of the adjustments in this presentation. Our presentation of adjusted net loss and adjusted diluted loss per share should not be construed as an inference that our future results will be unaffected by unusual or non-recurring items. Adjusted net loss for diluted loss per share and adjusted diluted loss per share are non-U.S. GAAP financial measures and should not be construed as alternatives to net loss and net loss per share (basic and diluted) as indicators of operating performance (as determined in accordance with U.S. GAAP). Adjusted net loss for diluted loss per share and adjusted diluted loss per share may not be comparable to similarly titled measures reported by other companies.

AMC ENTERTAINMENT HOLDINGS, INC.

NOTES TO CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

March 31, 2023

(Unaudited)

NOTE 1-BASIS OF PRESENTATION

AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. (“Holdings”), through its direct and indirect subsidiaries, including American Multi-Cinema, Inc. and its subsidiaries, (collectively with Holdings, unless the context otherwise requires, the “Company” or “AMC”), is principally involved in the theatrical exhibition business and owns, operates or has interests in theatres located in the United States and Europe.

Liquidity. The Company believes its existing cash and cash equivalents, together with cash generated from operations, will be sufficient to fund its operations, satisfy its obligations, and comply with the minimum liquidity covenant requirement under its Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility for at least the next twelve months. Pursuant to the Twelfth Amendment to Credit Agreement, the requisite revolving lenders party thereto agreed to extend the suspension period for the financial covenant applicable to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility under the Credit Agreement through March 31, 2024. The current maturity date of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility is April 22, 2024; since the financial covenant applicable to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility is tested as of the last day of any fiscal quarter for which financial statements have been (or were required to have been) delivered, the financial covenant has been effectively suspended through maturity of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility. As of March 31, 2023, the Company was subject to a minimum liquidity requirement of $100 million as a condition to the financial covenant suspension period under the Credit Agreement.

The Company’s current cash burn rates are not sustainable long-term. In order to achieve net positive operating cash flows and long-term profitability, the Company believes that operating revenues will need to increase significantly to levels in line with pre-COVID operating revenues. Until such time as the Company is able to achieve positive operating cash flow, it is difficult to estimate the Company’s liquidity requirements, future cash burn rates, future operating revenues, and attendance levels. Depending on the Company’s assumptions regarding the timing and ability to achieve significantly increased levels of operating revenue, the estimates of amounts of required liquidity vary significantly.

There can be no assurance that the operating revenues, attendance levels, and other assumptions used to estimate our liquidity requirements and future cash burn rates will be correct, and our ability to be predictive is uncertain due to limited ability to predict studio film release dates, the overall production and theatrical release levels and success of individual titles. Further, there can be no assurances that the Company will be successful in generating the additional liquidity necessary to meet the Company’s obligations beyond twelve months from the issuance of these financial statements on terms acceptable to the Company or at all.

The Company may, at any time and from time to time, seek to retire or purchase its outstanding debt through cash purchases and/or exchanges for equity (including AMC Preferred Equity Units) or debt, in open-market purchases, privately negotiated transactions or otherwise. Such repurchases or exchanges, if any, will be upon such terms and at such prices as it may determine, and will depend on prevailing market conditions, its liquidity requirements, contractual restrictions and other factors. The amounts involved may be material and to the extent equity is used, dilutive.

On December 22, 2022, the Company entered into a forward purchase agreement (the “Forward Purchase Agreement”) with Antara Capital LP (“Antara”) pursuant to which the Company agreed to (i) sell to Antara 106,595,106 AMC Preferred Equity Units for an aggregate purchase price of $75.1 million and (ii) simultaneously purchase from Antara $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company’s 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 in exchange for 91,026,191 AMC Preferred Equity Units. On February 7, 2023, the Company issued 197,621,297 AMC Preferred Equity Units to Antara in exchange for $75.1 million in cash and $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company’s 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026. The Company recorded $193.7 million to stockholders’ deficit as a result of the transaction. The Company paid $1.4 million of accrued interest in cash upon exchange of the notes. See Note 7-Stockholders’ Equity for more information.

During the three months ended March 31, 2023 the Company raised gross proceeds of approximately $80.3 million and paid fees to a sales agent and incurred other third-party issuance costs of approximately $2.0 million and $7.8 million, respectively, through its at-the-market offering of approximately 49.3 million shares of its AMC Preferred Equity Units. The Company paid $6.8 million of other third-party issuance costs during the three months ended March 31, 2023. See Note 7-Stockholders' Equity and Note 13-Subsequent Events for further information regarding at-the-market offerings.

The below table summarizes the cash debt repurchase transactions during the three months ended March 31, 2023, including related party transactions with Antara, which became a related party on February 7, 2023. See Note 6-Corporate Borrowings and Finance Lease Liabilities for more information.

Use of Estimates. The preparation of financial statements in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the condensed consolidated financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Principles of Consolidation. The accompanying unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements include the accounts of AMC, as discussed above, and should be read in conjunction with the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2022. The accompanying condensed consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 2022, which was derived from audited financial statements, and the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America for interim financial information and in accordance with the instructions to Form 10-Q. Accordingly, they do not include all of the information and footnotes required by the accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America for complete consolidated financial statements. In the opinion of management, these interim financial statements reflect all adjustments (consisting of normal recurring adjustments) necessary for a fair presentation of the Company's financial position and results of operations. All significant intercompany balances and transactions have been eliminated in consolidation. Due to the seasonal nature of the Company's business, results for the three months ended March 31, 2023 are not necessarily indicative of the results to be expected for the year ending December 31, 2023. The Company manages its business under two reportable segments for its theatrical exhibition operations, U.S. markets and International markets.

Cash and Cash Equivalents. At March 31, 2023, cash and cash equivalents for the U.S. markets and International markets were $383.9 million and $111.7 million respectively, and at December 31, 2022, cash and cash equivalents were $508.0 million and $123.5 million, respectively.

Restricted Cash. Restricted cash is cash held in the Company's bank accounts in International markets as a guarantee for certain landlords. The following table provides a reconciliation of cash, cash equivalents and restricted cash reported in the condensed consolidated balance sheets to the total of the amounts in the condensed consolidated statements of cash flows.

The Company leases theatres and equipment under operating and finance leases. The Company typically does not believe that exercise of the renewal options is reasonably certain at the lease commencement and, therefore, considers the initial base term as the lease term. Lease terms vary but generally the leases provide for fixed and escalating rentals, contingent escalating rentals based on the Consumer Price Index and other indexes not to exceed certain specified amounts and variable rentals based on a percentage of revenues. The Company often receives contributions from landlords for renovations at existing locations. The Company records the amounts received from landlords as an adjustment to the right-of-use asset and amortizes the balance as a reduction to rent expense over the base term of the lease agreement. Equipment leases primarily consist of sight and sound and food and beverage equipment.

The Company received rent concessions from lessors that aided in mitigating the economic effects of COVID-19 during the pandemic. These concessions primarily consisted of rent abatements and the deferral of rent payments. As a result, deferred lease amounts were approximately $123.6 million as of March 31, 2023. In instances where there were no substantive changes to the lease terms, i.e., modifications that resulted in total payments of the modified lease being substantially the same or less than the total payments of the existing lease, the Company elected the relief as provided by the FASB staff related to the accounting for certain lease concessions. The Company elected not to account for these concessions as a lease modification, and therefore the Company has remeasured the related lease liability and right-of-use asset but did not reassess the lease classification or change the discount rate to the current rate in effect upon the remeasurement. The deferred payment amounts have been recorded in the Company's lease liabilities to reflect the change in the timing of payments. Those leases that did not meet the criteria for treatment under the FASB relief were evaluated as lease modifications. The deferred payment amounts included in accounts payable for contractual rent amounts due and not paid are reflected in accounts payable on the condensed consolidated balance sheets and in the condensed consolidated statements of cash flows as part of the change in accounts payable. In addition, the Company included deferred lease payments in operating lease right-of-use assets as a result of lease remeasurements.

A summary of deferred payment amounts related to rent obligations for which payments were deferred to future periods is provided below:

	As of December 31, 2022	Decrease in deferred amounts	As of March 31, 2023
(In millions)
Fixed operating lease deferred amounts (1)	$ 150.3	$ (32.5)	$ 117.8

As of March 31, 2023, the Company had signed additional operating lease agreements for three theatres that have not yet commenced with minimum annual payments of approximately $ 79.5 million, which are expected to commence between years 2023 and 2024 and carry lease terms ranging from 10 to 20 years. The timing of lease commencement is dependent on the landlord providing the Company with control and access to the related facility.

During the three months ended March 31, 2023, the Company received a $13.0 million buyout incentive from a landlord which provided the landlord the right to terminate the lease of one theatre. The incentive was treated as a reduction to rent expense in the Company's condensed consolidated statement of operations.

NOTE 3-REVENUE RECOGNITION

Disaggregation of Revenue. Revenue is disaggregated in the following tables by major revenue types and by timing of revenue recognition:

- (1) Includes movie tickets, food and beverage, gift cards, exchange tickets, and AMC Stubs® loyalty membership fees.
- (2) Amount of rewards accumulated, net of expirations, that are attributed to AMC Stubs® and other loyalty programs.
- (3) Amount of rewards redeemed that are attributed to gift cards, exchange tickets, movie tickets, AMC Stubs® loyalty programs and other loyalty programs.
- (4) Amounts relate to income from non-redeemed or partially redeemed gift cards, non-redeemed exchange tickets, AMC Stubs® loyalty membership fees and other loyalty programs.

The significant changes to contract liabilities included in the exhibitor services agreement in the condensed consolidated balance sheets, are as follows:

(In millions)	Exhibitor Services Agreement (1)
Balance December 31, 2022	$ 505.8
Reclassification, net of adjustments, for portion of the beginning balance to other theatre revenue, as the result of performance obligations satisfied	(3.3)
Balance March 31, 2023	$ 502.5

- (1) Represents the carrying amount of the National CineMedia, LLC (“NCM”) common units that were previously received under the annual Common Unit Adjustment (“CUA”). The deferred revenues are being amortized to other theatre revenues over the remainder of the 30-year term of the Exhibitor Service Agreement (“ESA”) ending in February 2037.

Gift Cards and Exchange Tickets. The total amount of non-redeemed gift cards and exchange tickets included in deferred revenues and income in the condensed consolidated balance sheet as of March 31, 2023 was $298.2 million. This will be recognized as revenues as the gift cards and exchange tickets are redeemed or as the non-redeemed gift card and exchange ticket revenues are recognized in proportion to the pattern of actual redemptions, which is estimated to occur over the next 24 months.

Loyalty Programs. As of March 31, 2023, the amount of deferred revenues allocated to the loyalty programs included in deferred revenues and income in the condensed consolidated balance sheet was $67.0 million. The earned points will be recognized as revenue as the points are redeemed, which is estimated to occur over the next 24 months. The AMC Stubs® annual membership fee is recognized ratably over the one-year membership period.

The Company applies the practical expedient in ASC 606-10-50-14 and does not disclose information about remaining performance obligations that have original expected durations of one year or less.

NOTE 4-GOODWILL

The following table summarizes the changes in goodwill by reporting unit for the three months ended March 31, 2023:

NOTE 5-INVESTMENTS

Investments in non-consolidated affiliates and certain other investments accounted for under the equity method generally include all entities in which the Company or its subsidiaries have significant influence, but not more than 50% voting control, and are recorded in the condensed consolidated balance sheets in other long-term assets. On December 30, 2022, the Company entered into an agreement to sell its 10.0% investment in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC for SAR 112.5 million ($30.0) million, and on January 24, 2023, the Saudi Ministry of Commerce recorded the sale of equity and the Company received the proceeds on January 25, 2023. The Company recorded a gain on the sale of $15.5 million in investment income during the three months ended March 31, 2023. Investments in non-consolidated affiliates as of March 31, 2023 include interests in Digital Cinema Distribution Coalition, LLC (“DCDC”) of 14.6%, AC JV, LLC (“AC JV”), owner of Fathom Events, of 32.0%, SV Holdco LLC (“SV Holdco”), owner of Screenvision, of 18.4% and Digital Cinema Media Ltd. (“DCM”) of 50.0%. The Company also has partnership interests in three U.S. motion picture theatres (“Theatre Partnerships”) and approximately 50.0% interests in 58 theatres in Europe. Indebtedness held by equity method investees is non-recourse to the Company. During the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, the Company recorded equity in (earnings) loss of non-consolidated entities of $(1.4) million and $5.1 million, respectively.

Related Party Transactions with Equity Method Investees. At March 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022, the Company recorded net receivable amounts due from equity method investees of $ 0.5 million and $1.7 million, respectively, primarily related to on-screen advertising revenue and other transactions. The Company recorded related party transactions with equity method investees in other revenues and film exhibition costs of $5.0 million and $3.0 million, respectively, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, and $5.5 million and $1.4 million, respectively, during the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Investment in Hycroft

On March 14, 2022, the Company purchased 23.4 million units of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation (NASDAQ: HYMC) (“Hycroft”), for $27.9 million, with each unit consisting of one common share of Hycroft and one common share purchase warrant. The units were priced at $1.193 per unit. Each warrant is exercisable for one common share of Hycroft at a price of $1.068 per share over a 5-year term through March 2027. Hycroft filed a resale registration statement to register the common shares and warrant shares for sale under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the “Securities Act”) on April 14, 2022 which became effective on June 2, 2022. The Company accounts for the common shares of Hycroft under the equity method and has elected the fair value option in accordance with ASC 825-10. The Company accounts for the warrants as derivatives in accordance with ASC 815. Accordingly, the fair value of the investments in Hycroft are remeasured at each subsequent reporting period and unrealized gains and losses are reported in investment income. The Company believes the fair value option to be the most appropriate election for this equity method investment as the Company is not entering the mining business. During the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, the Company recorded unrealized (gain) loss in investment income of $4.6 million and $(63.9) million, respectively. See Note 9-Fair Value Measurements for fair value information and the asset value for investments in Hycroft measured under the fair value option as well as the total asset value for other equity method investments.

Financial Covenants

The Company currently estimates that its existing cash and cash equivalents will be sufficient to comply with the minimum liquidity covenant requirement under its Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility, currently and through the next twelve months. The Company entered the Ninth Amendment to Credit Agreement pursuant to which the requisite revolving lenders party thereto agreed to extend the fixed date for the termination of the suspension period for the financial covenant (the secured leverage ratio) applicable to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility from March 31, 2021 to March 31, 2022, which was further extended by the Eleventh Amendment to Credit Agreement from March 31, 2022 to March 31, 2023 and further extended by the Twelfth Amendment to Credit Agreement from March 31, 2023 to March 31, 2024, in each case, as described, and on the terms and conditions specified, therein. The Company is currently subject to a minimum liquidity requirement of $ 100 million as a condition to the Extended Covenant Suspension Period. The current maturity date of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility is April 22, 2024; since the financial covenant applicable to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility is tested as of the last day of any fiscal quarter for which financial statements have been (or were required to have been) delivered, the financial covenant has been effectively suspended through maturity of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility.

NOTE 7-STOCKHOLDERS' EQUITY

AMC Preferred Equity Units

On August 4, 2022, the Company announced that its Board of Directors declared a special dividend of one AMC Preferred Equity Unit for each share of Class A common stock outstanding at the close of business on August 15, 2022, the record date. The dividend was paid at the close of business on August 19, 2022 to investors who held Class A common stock as of August 22, 2022, the ex-dividend date.

Each AMC Preferred Equity Unit is a depositary share and represents an interest in one one-hundredth (1/100th) of a share of Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock evidenced by a depositary receipt pursuant to a deposit agreement. The Company has 50,000,000 Preferred Stock shares authorized, 10,000,000 of which have currently been allocated and 9,741,909 have been issued under the depositary agreement as Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock, leaving 40,000,000 unallocated Preferred Stock shares. Each AMC Preferred Equity Unit is designed to have the same economic and voting rights as a share of Class A common stock. Trading of the AMC Preferred Equity Units on the NYSE began on August 22, 2022 under the ticker symbol "APE". Due to the characteristics of the AMC Preferred Equity Units, the special dividend had the effect of a stock split pursuant to ASC 505-20-25-4. Accordingly, all references made to share, per share, or common share amounts in the accompanying consolidated financial statements and applicable disclosures include Class A common stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units and have been retroactively adjusted to reflect the effects of the special dividend as a stock split.

Share Issuances

On September 26, 2022, the Company entered into an equity distribution agreement (the “Equity Distribution Agreement”) with Citigroup Global Markets Inc., as a sales agent (“Sales Agent”), to sell up to 425.0 million shares of the Company’s AMC Preferred Equity Units, from time to time, through an “at-the-market” offering program (the “Offering”). Subject to the terms and conditions of the Equity Distribution Agreement, the Sales Agent will use reasonable efforts consistent with their normal trading and sales practices, applicable law and regulations, and the rules of the NYSE to sell the AMC Preferred Equity Units from time to time based upon the Company’s instructions for the sales, including any price, time or size limits specified by the Company. The Company intends to use the net proceeds, from the sale of AMC Preferred Equity Units pursuant to the Equity Distribution Agreement to repay, refinance, redeem or repurchase the Company’s existing indebtedness (including expenses, accrued interest and premium, if any) and otherwise for general corporate purposes.

On December 22, 2022, the Company entered into a forward purchase agreement (the “Forward Purchase Agreement”) with Antara pursuant to which the Company agreed to (i) sell to Antara 106,595,106 AMC Preferred Equity Units for an aggregate purchase price of $75.1 million and (ii) simultaneously purchase from Antara $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company’s 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 in exchange for 91,026,191 AMC Preferred Equity Units. On February 7, 2023, the Company issued 197,621,297 AMC Preferred Equity Units to Antara in exchange for $75.1 million in cash and $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company’s 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026. The Company recorded $193.7 million to stockholders’ deficit as a result of the transaction. The Company paid $1.4 million of accrued interest in cash upon exchange of the notes.

During the three months ended March 31, 2023 the Company raised gross proceeds of approximately $80.3 million and paid fees to the Sales Agent and incurred other third-party issuance costs of approximately $2.0 million and $7.8 million, respectively, through its at-the-market offering of approximately 49.3 million shares of its AMC Preferred Equity Units. The Company paid $6.8 million of other third-party issuance costs during the three months ended March 31, 2023. See Note 13-Subsequent Events for further information regarding at-the-market offerings.

Shareholder Litigation

Two putative stockholder class actions have been filed that assert a breach of fiduciary duty against certain of the Company’s directors and a claim for breach of 8 Del. C. § 220 against those directors and the Company, arising out of the Company’s creation of the APEs, the Antara Transactions, and the Charter Amendment Proposals. See Note 11-Commitments and Contingencies for further information regarding the litigation.

Stock-Based Compensation

The following table presents the stock-based compensation expense recorded within general and administrative: other:

(In millions)	Three Months Ended
	March 31, 2023	March 31, 2022
Equity classified awards:
Special awards expense	$ 20.2	$ -
Board of director stock award expense	0.9	0.8
Restricted stock unit expense	3.0	2.8
Performance stock unit expense	1.7	2.9
Total equity classified awards:	25.8	6.5
Liability classified awards:
Restricted and performance stock unit expense	0.1	-
Total liability classified awards:	0.1	-
Total stock-based compensation expense	$ 25.9	$ 6.5

As of March 31, 2023, the estimated remaining unrecognized compensation cost related to stock-based compensation grants was approximately $37.2 million, which reflects assumptions related to attainment of performance targets based on the scales as described below. The weighted average period over which this remaining compensation expense is expected to be recognized is approximately 1.2 years.

Plan Amendment due to stock split

The 2013 Plan contemplates equitable adjustments for certain transactions such as a stock split. On August 19, 2022 the Compensation Committee approved an adjustment to the 2013 Equity Incentive Plan to entitle each participant one AMC Preferred Equity Unit and one share of Common Stock for each RSU or PSU that vests. The Company determined that this modification was a Type 1 (probable-to-probable) modification that did not increase the fair value of the award and therefore did not require additional stock-based compensation expense to be recognized. References made to share, per share, or common share amounts have been retroactively adjusted to reflect the effects of the stock split.

Special Awards

On February 23, 2023, AMC's Board of Directors approved special awards in lieu of vesting of the 2022 PSU awards. The special awards were accounted for as modification to the 2022 PSU awards which lowered the Adjusted EBITDA and free cash flow performance targets such that 200% vesting was achieved for both tranches. This modification resulted in the immediate additional vesting of 2,389,589 Common Stock 2022 PSUs and 2,389,589 AMC Preferred Equity Unit 2022 PSUs. This was treated as a Type 3 modification (improbable-to-probable) which requires the Company to recognize additional stock compensation expense based on the modification date fair values of the Common Stock PSUs and AMC Preferred Equity Units PSUs of $6.23 and $2.22, respectively. During the three months ended March 31, 2023, the Company recognized $20.2 million of additional stock compensation expense.

Awards Granted in 2023

During the three months ended March 31, 2023, AMC's Board of Directors approved awards of stock, restricted stock units ("RSUs"), and performance stock units ("PSUs") to certain of the Company's employees and directors under the 2013 Equity Incentive Plan. The grant date fair value of these equity classified awards was based on the closing price of AMC's Class A common stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units of $6.23 and $2.22, respectively.

AMC's Board of Directors also granted awards to non-section 16 officers that are expected to be settled in cash. Participants receiving cash settlement shall receive an amount of cash equal to the closing price of an AMC Preferred Equity Unit multiplied by the number of underlying cash based RSUs and PSUs awarded. These awards have been classified as liabilities and are included within accrued expenses and other liabilities in the condensed consolidated balance sheets. The vesting requirements and vesting periods are identical to the equity classified awards described below. The Company recognizes expense related to these awards based on the fair value of the AMC Preferred Equity Units, giving effect to the portion of services rendered during the requisite services period. As of March 31, 2023 there were 1,723,830 nonvested underlying AMC Preferred Equity Unit RSUs and PSUs related to awards granted to non-section 16 officers. There are 1,149,186 nonvested underlying AMC Preferred Equity Unit RSUs and PSUs (2023 Tranche Year) that are currently classified as liabilities and 574,644 nonvested underlying AMC Preferred Equity Unit PSUs (2024 & 2025 Tranche Year) which have not been granted for accounting purposes as the performance targets for the 2024 and 2025 PSU Tranche Years have yet to be established.

Each RSU and PSU held by a participant as of a dividend record date is entitled to a dividend equivalent equal to the amount paid with respect to one share of Common Stock or one AMC Preferred Equity Unit underlying the unit. Any such accrued dividend equivalents are paid to the holder only upon vesting of the units. Each unit represents the right to receive one share of Common Stock or one AMC Preferred Equity Unit at a future date.

The 2023 award agreements generally had the following features:

- Stock Award Agreement: During the three months ended March 31, 2023, the Company granted awards of 85,552 fully vested shares of Common Stock and 153,696 AMC Preferred Equity Units to its independent members of AMC's Board of Directors with a grant date fair value of $0.9 million.
- Restricted Stock Unit Award Agreement: During the three months ended March 31, 2023, the Company granted RSU awards of 2,827,979 to certain members of management with a grant date fair value of $11.6 million. The Company records stock-based compensation expense on a straight-line recognition method over the requisite vesting period. The RSUs vest over three years, with one-third vesting each year. These RSUs will be settled within 30 days of vesting.
- Performance Stock Unit Award Agreement: During the three months ended March 31, 2023, total PSUs of 942,613 were awarded ("2023 PSU award") to certain members of management and executive officers, with the total PSUs divided into three separate year tranches, with each tranche allocated to a fiscal year within the performance period ("Tranche Year"). The PSUs within each Tranche Year are further divided between two performance targets; the Adjusted EBITDA performance target and free cash flow performance target. The 2023 PSU awards will vest based on achieving 80% to 120% of the performance targets, with the corresponding vested unit amount ranging from 50% to 200%. If the performance targets are met at 100%, the 2023 PSU awards will vest at 942,613 units in the aggregate. No PSUs will vest for each Tranche Year if the Company does not achieve 80% of the Tranche Year's Adjusted EBITDA and free cash flow targets.

The Compensation Committee establishes the annual performance targets at the beginning of each year. Therefore, the grant date (and fair value measurement date) for each Tranche Year is the date at the beginning of each year when a mutual understanding of the key terms and conditions are reached per ASC 718, Compensation - Stock compensation. The 2023 PSU award grant date fair value for the 2023 Tranche Year award of 942,613 units was $3.9 million, the 2022 PSU award grant date fair value for the 2023 Tranche Year award of 461,016 units was $1.9 million, and the 2021 PSU award grant date fair value for the 2023 Tranche Year Award of 1,601,522 units was $6.8 million, measured using performance targets at 100%.

NOTE 8-INCOME TAXES

The Company's worldwide effective income tax rate is based on actual income (loss), statutory rates, valuation allowances against deferred tax assets and tax planning opportunities available in the various jurisdictions in which it operates. The Company is using a discrete income tax calculation for the three months ended March 31, 2023 due to the lingering effects of the COVID-19 pandemic on the industry. Historically, for interim financial reporting, the Company estimated the worldwide annual income tax rate based on projected taxable income (loss) for the full year and recorded a quarterly income tax provision or benefit in accordance with the anticipated annual rate, adjusted for discrete items, if any. The Company will return to the historic approach of computing quarterly tax expense based on an annual effective rate in the future interim period when more reliable estimates of annual income become available. The Company recognizes income tax-related interest expense and penalties as income tax expense and general and administrative expense, respectively.

The Company evaluates its deferred tax assets each period to determine if a valuation allowance is required based on whether it is "more likely than not" that some portion of the deferred tax assets would not be realized. The ultimate realization of these deferred tax assets is dependent upon the generation of sufficient taxable income during future periods on a federal, state, and foreign jurisdiction basis. The Company conducts its evaluation by considering all available positive and negative evidence, including historical operating results, forecasts of future profitability, the duration of statutory carryforward periods, and the outlooks for the U.S. motion picture and broader economy, among others.

A valuation allowance is recorded against the Company's U.S. deferred tax assets and most of the Company's international deferred tax assets as the Company has determined the realization of these assets does not meet the more likely than not criteria.

The effective tax rate for the three months ended March 31, 2023 reflects the impact of these valuation allowances against U.S. and international deferred tax assets generated during the three-month period. The actual effective rate for the three months ended March 31, 2023 was (

The Company's consolidated tax rate for the three months ended March 31, 2023 differs from the U.S. statutory tax rate primarily due to the valuation allowances in U.S. and foreign jurisdictions, foreign tax rate differences, federal and state tax credits, permanent differences and other discrete items. At March 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022, the Company has recorded net deferred tax liabilities of $32.7 million and $32.1 million, respectively.

Utilization of the Company's net operating loss carryforwards, disallowed business interest carryforwards and other tax attributes became subject to the Section 382 ownership change limitation due to changes in the Company's stock ownership on January 27, 2021. The Company does not believe, however, that tax attributes generated prior to this event are significantly impacted by Section 382.

NOTE 9-FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

Fair value refers to the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants in the market in which the entity transacts business. The inputs used to develop these fair value measurements are established in a hierarchy, which ranks the quality and reliability of the information used to determine the fair values. The fair value classification is based on levels of inputs. Assets and liabilities that are carried at fair value are classified and disclosed in one of the following categories:

- Level 1: Quoted market prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities.
- Level 2: Observable market based inputs or unobservable inputs that are corroborated by market data.
- Level 3: Unobservable inputs that are not corroborated by market data.

Recurring Fair Value Measurements. The following table summarizes the fair value hierarchy of the Company's financial assets and liabilities carried at fair value on a recurring basis as of March 31, 2023:

(In millions)	Total Carrying Value at March 31, 2023	Fair Value Measurements at March 31, 2023 Using
		Quoted prices in active market (Level 1)	Significant other observable inputs (Level 2)	Significant unobservable inputs (Level 3)
Other long-term assets:
Investment in Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation warrants	$ 6.9	$ -	$ -	$ -	$ 6.9
Marketable equity securities:
Investment in Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation	10.1	10.1	-	-	-
Total assets at fair value	$ 17.0	$ 10.1	$ -	$ -	$ 6.9

Valuation Techniques. The equity method investment in Hycroft was measured at fair value using Hycroft's stock price at the date of measurement. To estimate the fair value of the Company's investment in Hycroft warrants, the Company valued the warrants using the Black Scholes pricing model. Such judgments and estimates included estimates of volatility of 122.2% and discount rate of 3.7%. The discount rate is based on the treasury yield that matches the term as of the measurement date. Other inputs included the term of 4.0 years, exercise price of $1.068 and Hycroft's stock price at the date of measurement. There is considerable management judgment with respect to the inputs used in determining fair value, and, accordingly, actual results could vary significantly from such estimates, which fall under Level 3 within the fair value measurement hierarchy. See Note 5-Investments for further information regarding the investments in Hycroft.

Other Fair Value Measurement Disclosures. The Company is required to disclose the fair value of financial instruments that are not recognized at fair value in the statement of financial position for which it is practicable to estimate that value:

(In millions)	Total Carrying Value at March 31, 2023	Fair Value Measurements at March 31, 2023 Using
		Quoted prices in active market	Significant other observable inputs	Significant unobservable inputs
		(Level 1)	(Level 2)	(Level 3)
Current maturities of corporate borrowings	$ 20.0	$ -	$ 14.6	$ -
Corporate borrowings	4,862.0	-	3,266.3	-

Valuation Technique. Quoted market prices and observable market based inputs were used to estimate fair value for Level 2 inputs. The Company valued these notes at principal value less an estimated discount reflecting a market yield to maturity. See Note 6-Corporate Borrowings and Finance Lease Liabilities for further information.

The carrying amounts of cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable, accounts payable, and accrued liabilities approximate fair value because of the short maturity of these instruments.

NOTE 10-OPERATING SEGMENTS

The Company reports information about operating segments in accordance with ASC 280-10, Segment Reporting, which requires financial information to be reported based on the way management organizes segments within a company for making operating decisions and evaluating performance. The Company has identified two reportable segments and reporting units for its theatrical exhibition operations, U.S. markets and International markets. The International markets reportable segment has operations in or partial interest in theatres in the United Kingdom, Germany, Spain, Italy, Ireland, Portugal, Sweden, Finland, Norway, Denmark, and Saudi Arabia. On December 30, 2022, the Company entered into an agreement to sell its 10.0% investment Saudi Cinema Company, LLC for SAR 112.5 million $(30.0) million, subject to certain closing conditions. On January 24, 2023, the Saudi Ministry of Commerce recorded the sale of equity and the Company received the proceeds on January 25, 2023. See Note 5-Investments for further information. Each segment's revenue is derived from admissions, food and beverage sales and other ancillary revenues, primarily screen advertising, AMC Stubs® membership fees and other loyalty programs, ticket sales, gift card income and exchange ticket income. The measure of segment profit and loss the Company uses to evaluate performance and allocate its resources is Adjusted EBITDA, as defined in the reconciliation table below. The Company does not report asset information by segment because that information is not used to evaluate the performance of or allocate resources between segments.

Total Adjusted EBITDA (1)	$ 7.1	$ (61.7)

- (1) The Company presents Adjusted EBITDA as a supplemental measure of its performance. The Company defines Adjusted EBITDA as net earnings (loss) plus (i) income tax provision (benefit), (ii) interest expense and (iii) depreciation and amortization, as further adjusted to eliminate the impact of certain items that the Company does not consider indicative of the Company's ongoing operating performance and to include attributable EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operations in International markets and any cash distributions of earnings from its other equity method investees. The measure of segment profit and loss the Company uses to evaluate performance and allocate its resources is Adjusted EBITDA, which is broadly consistent with how Adjusted EBITDA is defined in the Company's debt indentures.

- (1) Amounts represent preopening expense related to temporarily closed screens under renovation, theatre and other closure expense for the permanent closure of screens, including the related accretion of interest, disposition of assets and other non-operating gains or losses included in operating expenses. The Company has excluded these items as they are non-cash in nature or are non-operating in nature.
- (2) Includes U.S. non-theatre distributions from equity method investments and International non-theatre distributions from equity method investments to the extent received. The Company believes including cash distributions is an appropriate reflection of the contribution of these investments to the Company's operations.
- (3) Attributable EBITDA includes the EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operators in certain International markets. See below for a reconciliation of the Company's equity in loss of non-consolidated entities to attributable EBITDA. Because these equity investments are in theatre operators in regions where the Company holds a significant market share, the Company believes attributable EBITDA is more indicative of the performance of these equity investments and management uses this measure to monitor and evaluate these equity investments. The Company also provides services to these theatre operators including information technology systems, certain on-screen advertising services and the Company's gift card and package ticket program.

NOTE 11-COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

The Company, in the normal course of business, is a party to various ordinary course claims from vendors (including food and beverage suppliers and film distributors), landlords, competitors, and other legal proceedings. If management believes that a loss arising from these actions is probable and can reasonably be estimated, the Company records the amount of the loss or the minimum estimated liability when the loss is estimated using a range and no point is more probable than another. As additional information becomes available, any potential liability related to these actions is assessed and the estimates are revised, if necessary. Management believes that the ultimate outcome of such matters discussed below, individually and in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position or overall trends in results of operations. However, litigation and claims are subject to inherent uncertainties and unfavorable outcomes can occur. An unfavorable outcome might include monetary damages. If an unfavorable outcome were to occur, there exists the possibility of a material adverse impact on the results of operations in the period in which the outcome occurs or in future periods.

On January 12, 2018 and January 19, 2018, two putative federal securities class actions, captioned Hawaii Structural Ironworkers Pension Trust Fund v. AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:18-cv-00299-AJN (the "Hawaii Action"), and Nichols v. AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:18-cv-00510-AJN (the "Nichols Action," and together with the Hawaii Action, the "Actions"), respectively, were filed against the Company in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. The Actions, which named certain of the Company's officers and directors and, in the case of the Hawaii Action, the underwriters of the Company's February 8, 2017 secondary public offering, as defendants, asserted claims under Sections 11, 12(a)(2) and 15 of the Securities Act and Sections 10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the "Exchange Act") with respect to alleged material misstatements and omissions in the registration statement for the secondary public offering and in certain other public disclosures. On May 30, 2018, the court consolidated the Actions. On January 22, 2019, defendants moved to dismiss the Second Amended Class Action Complaint. On September 23, 2019, the court granted the motion to dismiss in part and denied it in part. On March 2, 2020, plaintiffs moved to certify the purported class. On March 30, 2021, the court granted the motion to certify the class. On September 2, 2021, the parties reached an agreement in principle to resolve the Actions for $18.0 million. The Company agreed to the settlement and the payment of the settlement amount to eliminate the distraction, burden, expense, and uncertainty of further litigation. The Company and the other defendants continue to expressly deny any liability or wrongdoing with respect to the matters alleged in the Actions. On November 1, 2021, the parties to the Actions signed a stipulation of settlement, which memorialized the terms of the agreement in principle, and which the plaintiffs filed with the court. Also on November 1, 2021, plaintiffs filed a motion to preliminarily approve the settlement. On November 8, 2021, the court preliminarily approved the settlement, approved the form of notice to be disseminated to class members, and scheduled a final fairness hearing on the settlement for February 10, 2022. On February 14, 2022, the court issued a final judgment approving the settlement and dismissing the action.

On May 21, 2018, a stockholder derivative complaint, captioned Gantulga v. Aron, et al., Case No. 2:18-cv-02262-JAR-TJJ (the "Gantulga Action"), was filed against certain of the Company's officers and directors in the U.S. District Court for the District of Kansas. The Gantulga Action, which was filed on behalf of the Company, asserts claims under Section 14(a) of the Exchange Act and for breaches of fiduciary duty and unjust enrichment based on allegations substantially similar to the Actions. On October 12, 2018, the parties filed a joint motion to transfer the action to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, which the court granted on October 15, 2018. When the action was transferred to the Southern District of New York, it was re-captioned Gantulga v. Aron, et al., Case No. 1:18-cv-10007-AJN. The parties filed a joint stipulation to stay the action, which the court granted on December 17, 2018. The stay was lifted as of February 9, 2022.

On October 2, 2019, a stockholder derivative complaint, captioned Kenna v. Aron, et al., Case No. 1:19-cv-09148-AJN (the “Kenna Action”), was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. The parties filed a joint stipulation to stay the action, which the court granted on October 17, 2019. On April 20, 2020, the plaintiff filed an amended complaint. The Kenna Action asserts claims under Sections 10(b), 14(a), and 21D of the Exchange Act and for breaches of fiduciary duty and unjust enrichment based on allegations substantially similar to the Actions and the Gantulga Action. The stay was lifted as of February 9, 2022.

On March 20, 2020, a stockholder derivative complaint, captioned Manuel v. Aron, et al., Case No. 1:20-cv-02456-AJN (the “Manuel Action”), was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. The Manuel Action asserts claims under Sections 10(b), 21D, and 29(b) of the Exchange Act and for breaches of fiduciary duty based on allegations substantially similar to the Actions, the Gantulga Action, and the Kenna Action. The parties filed a joint stipulation to stay the action, which the court granted on May 18, 2020.

On April 7, 2020, a stockholder derivative complaint, captioned Dinkevich v. Aron, et al., Case No. 1:20-cv-02870-AJN (the “Dinkevich Action”), was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. The Dinkevich Action asserts the same claims as the Manuel Action based on allegations substantially similar to the Actions, the Gantulga Action, the Kenna Action, and the Manuel Action. The parties filed a joint stipulation to stay the action, which was granted on June 25, 2020. On January 11, 2022, the court lifted the stay.

On September 23, 2021, a stockholder derivative complaint, captioned Lyon v. Aron, et al., Case No. 1:21-cv-07940-AJN (the “Lyon Action”), was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York against certain of the Company’s current and former officers and directors. The Lyon Action asserts claims for contribution and indemnification under the Exchange Act and for breaches of fiduciary duty, waste of corporate assets, and unjust enrichment/constructive trust based on allegations substantially similar to the Actions, the Gantulga Action, the Kenna Action, the Manuel Action, and the Dinkevich Action. On January 14, 2022, defendants moved to dismiss the complaint. On March 21, 2023, the court granted defendants’ motion to dismiss.

On December 31, 2019, the Company received a stockholder litigation demand, requesting that the Board investigate the allegations in the Actions and pursue claims on the Company’s behalf based on those allegations. On May 5, 2020, the Board determined not to pursue the claims sought in the demand at this time.

On July 15, 2020, the Company received a second stockholder litigation demand requesting substantially the same action as the stockholder demand it received on December 31, 2019. On September 23, 2020, the Board determined not to pursue the claims sought in the demand at this time.

On April 22, 2019, a putative stockholder class and derivative complaint, captioned Lao v. Dalian Wanda Group Co., Ltd., et al., C.A. No. 2019-0303-JRS (the “Lao Action”), was filed against certain of the Company’s directors, Wanda, two of Wanda’s affiliates, Silver Lake, and one of Silver Lake’s affiliates in the Delaware Court of Chancery. The Lao Action asserts claims directly, on behalf of a putative class of Company stockholders, and derivatively, on behalf of the Company, for breaches of fiduciary duty and aiding and abetting breaches of fiduciary duty with respect to transactions that the Company entered into with affiliates of Wanda and Silver Lake on September 14, 2018, and the special cash dividend of $1.55 per share of common stock that was payable on September 28, 2018 to the Company’s stockholders of record as of September 25, 2018. On July 18, 2019, the Company’s Board of Directors formed a Special Litigation Committee to investigate and evaluate the claims and allegations asserted in the Lao Action and make a determination as to how the Company should proceed with respect to the Lao Action. On January 8, 2021, the Special Litigation Committee filed a report with the court recommending that the court dismiss all of the claims asserted in the Lao Action, and moved to dismiss all of the claims in the Lao Action. On June 6, 2022, the parties signed a stipulation of settlement to resolve the Lao Action for $17.4 million (the “Settlement Amount”). Defendants agreed to the settlement and the payment of the Settlement Amount solely to eliminate the burden, expense, and uncertainty of further litigation, and continue to expressly deny any liability or wrongdoing with respect to the matters alleged in the Lao Action. On September 28, 2022, the court held a hearing to consider whether to approve the proposed settlement. At the hearing, the court requested a supplemental notice to stockholders prior to approval. A second hearing regarding approval of the settlement was held on November 30, 2022. Following the hearing, also on November 30, 2022, the court issued an order and final judgment approving the settlement and dismissing the action. The order and final judgment included a fee and expense award to Plaintiff's counsel in the amount of $3.4 million to be paid out of the Settlement Amount. On January 6, 2023, the remainder of the Settlement Amount of $14.0 million was paid to the Company. The Company recorded the settlement as a gain in other income once all contingencies were resolved during the three months ended March 31, 2023.

On December 27, 2022, the Company received a letter from a purported stockholder, demanding to inspect certain of the Company's books and records pursuant to 8 Del. C. § 220 in order to investigate allegations concerning: (i) the proposal that was approved by the Board on January 27, 2021 to amend the Company's Certificate of Incorporation to increase the total number of shares of the Company's Common Stock; (ii) the Company's creation, distribution, and/or sale of AMC Preferred Equity Units (APE's); (iii) the transactions between the Company and Antara Capital, LP that the Company announced on December 22, 2022 (the "Antara Transactions"); (iv) the special meeting of the holders of the Company's Common Stock and APEs held March 14, 2023 for the purpose of voting on amendments to the Company's Certificate of Incorporation that, together will enable APEs to convert into shares of the Company's Common Stock; and (v) the independence of the members of the Board (the "December 27, 2022 Demand"). On January 4, 2023, the Company rejected the December 27, 2022 Demand. On February 7, 2023, without conceding the propriety of the December 27, 2022 Demand in any respect and while reserving all rights, the Company, in an effort to avoid unnecessary litigation, allowed the stockholder who made the December 27, 2022 Demand to inspect certain of the Company's books and records concerning the subject matter of December 27, 2022 Demand.

On February 6, 2023, the Company received a letter from another purported stockholder, demanding to inspect certain of the Company's books and records pursuant to 8 Del. C. § 220 in order to investigate allegations similar to those made in the December 27, 2022 Demand (the "February 6, 2023 Demand" and, together with the December 27, 2022 Demand, the "Books and Records Demands"). On February 13, 2023, the Company rejected the February 6, 2023 Demand. Also, on February 13, 2023, without conceding the propriety of the February 6, 2023 Demand in any respect and while reserving all rights, the Company, in an effort to avoid unnecessary litigation, allowed the stockholder who made the February 6, 2023 Demand to inspect the same books and records that it allowed the stockholder who made the December 27, 2022 Demand to inspect.

On February 20, 2023,

two putative stockholder class actions were filed in the Delaware Court of Chancery, captioned Allegheny County Employees' Retirement System v. AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc., et al., C.A. No. 2023-0215-MTZ (Del. Ch.) (the "Allegheny Action"), and Munoz v Adam M. Aron, et al., C.A. No. 2023-0216-MTZ (Del. Ch.) (the "Munoz Action") and which have been subsequently consolidated into In re AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. Stockholder Litigation C.A. No. 2023-0215-MTZ (Del. Ch.) (the "Shareholder Litigation"). The Allegheny Action asserts a claim for breach of fiduciary duty against certain of the Company's directors and a claim for breach of 8 Del. C. § 220 against those directors and the Company, arising out of the Company's creation of the APEs, the Antara Transactions, and the Charter Amendment Proposals. The Munoz Action, which was filed by the stockholders who made the Books and Records Demands, assert a claim for breach of fiduciary duty against the Company's current directors and former director Lee Wittlinger, arising out of the same conduct challenged in the Allegheny Action. The Allegheny Action seeks a declaration that the issuance of the APEs violated 8 Del. C. § 242(b), an order that holders of the Company's Common Stock be provided with a separate vote from the holders of the APEs on the Charter Amendment Proposals or that the APEs be enjoined from voting on the Charter Amendment Proposals, and an award of money damages. The Munoz Action seeks to enjoin the APEs from voting on the Charter Amendment Proposals.

On February 27, 2023, the Delaware Court of Chancery entered a status quo order that (i) allowed the March 14, 2023 vote on the Charter Amendment Proposals to proceed, but precludes the Company from implementing the Charter Amendment Proposals pending a ruling by the court on the plaintiffs' then-anticipated preliminary injunction motion, and (ii) scheduled a hearing on the plaintiffs' then-anticipated preliminary injunction motion for April 27, 2023 (the "Status Quo Order").

On April 2, 2023, the parties entered into a binding settlement term sheet to settle the Shareholder Litigation, which among other things, provided that the parties would jointly request that the Status Quo Order be lifted. Pursuant to the term sheet, the Company agreed to make a non-cash settlement payment to record holders of Common Stock as of the time (the "Settlement Class Time") at which the Reverse Stock Split is effective (and after giving effect to the Reverse Stock Split) of one share of Class A common stock for every 7.5 shares of Common Stock owned by such record holders (the "Settlement Payment"). The Company's obligation to make the Settlement Payment is contingent on the Status Quo Order being lifted and the Company effecting the Charter Amendment Proposals. The defendants agreed to the settlement and the payment of the Settlement Payment solely to eliminate the burden, expense, and uncertainty of further litigation, and continue to expressly deny any liability or wrongdoing with respect to the matters alleged in the Shareholder Litigation. On April 3, 2023, the plaintiffs filed an unopposed motion to lift the Status Quo Order. In connection with the proposed settlement payment, the Company recorded a $126.6 million contingency reserve charge to other expense during the three months ended March 31, 2023. The contingency reserve charge is based on the estimated fair value of $116.6 million for the Settlement Payment and the expected attorneys' fees, net of probable insurance recoveries of $10.0 million. The contingent liability is included in accrued expenses in other liabilities within the condensed consolidated balance sheets.

On April 5, 2023 the court denied the motion to lift the Status Quo Order. Unless and until the court lifts the Status Quo Order, the Company cannot proceed with filing the amendment to the Company's certificate of incorporation to effect the Charter Amendment Proposals.

On April 27, 2023, the parties jointly filed a Stipulation and Agreement of Compromise, Settlement, and Release (the "Settlement Stipulation") with the court, which fully memorializes the settlement that the parties agreed to in the term sheet. The court has set a hearing to consider approval of the settlement for June 29-30, 2023. Any settlement of the Shareholder Litigation is subject to court approval.

NOTE 12-LOSS PER SHARE

On August 4, 2022, the Company announced that its Board of Directors declared a special dividend of one AMC Preferred Equity Unit for each share of Common Stock outstanding at the close of business on August 15, 2022, the record date. The dividend was paid at the close of business on August 19, 2022 to investors who held shares of Common Stock as of August 22, 2022, the ex-dividend date.

Each AMC Preferred Equity Unit is a depositary share and represents an interest in one one-hundredth (1/100th) of a share of Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock evidenced by a depositary receipt pursuant to a deposit agreement. The Company has 50,000,000 Preferred Stock shares authorized, 10,000,000 of which have currently been allocated and 9,741,909 have been issued under depositary agreement as Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock, leaving 40,000,000 unallocated Preferred Stock shares. Each AMC Preferred Equity Unit is designed to have the same economic and voting rights as a share of Class A common stock. Trading of the AMC Preferred Equity Units on the NYSE began on August 22, 2022 under the ticker symbol "APE". Due to the characteristics of the AMC Preferred Equity Units, the special dividend similar to a stock split pursuant to ASC 505-20-25-4. Accordingly, all references made to share, per share, or common share amounts in the accompanying consolidated financial statements and applicable disclosures have been retroactively adjusted to reflect the effects of the special dividend as a stock split.

Basic loss per share is computed by dividing net loss by the weighted-average number of common shares outstanding. Diluted loss per share includes the effects of unvested RSUs with a service condition only and unvested contingently issuable RSUs and PSUs that have service and performance conditions, if dilutive.

The following table sets forth the computation of basic and diluted loss per common share:

	March 31, 2023	March 31, 2022
Numerator:
Net loss for basic loss per share attributable to AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc.	$ (235.5)	$ (337.4)
Net loss for diluted loss per share attributable to AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc.	$ (235.5)	$ (337.4)
Denominator (shares in thousands):
Weighted average shares for basic loss per common share	1,373,947	1,031,820
Weighted average shares for diluted loss per common share	1,373,947	1,031,820
Basic loss per common share	$ (0.17)	$ (0.33)
Diluted loss per common share	$ (0.17)	$ (0.33)

Vested RSUs and PSUs have dividend rights identical to the Company's Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units and are treated as outstanding shares for purposes of computing basic and diluted earnings per share. Unvested RSUs of 5,319,571 for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and unvested RSUs of 5,614,052 for the three months ended March 31, 2022 were not included in the computation of diluted loss per share because they would be anti-dilutive.

Unvested PSUs are subject to performance conditions and are included in diluted earnings per share, if dilutive, based on the number of shares, if any, that would be issuable under the terms of the Company's 2013 Equity Incentive Plan if the end of the reporting period were the end of the contingency period. Unvested PSUs of 2,978,289 at certain performance targets for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and unvested PSUs of 2,953,978 at certain performance targets for the three months ended March 31, 2022, were not included in the computation of diluted loss per share because they would not be issuable if the end of the reporting period were the end of the contingency period or they would be anti-dilutive.

NOTE 13-SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

Equity Distribution Agreement. During April 2023, the Company raised gross proceeds of approximately $34.2 million through its at-the-market offering of approximately 21.2 million shares of its AMC Preferred Equity Units and paid fees to the sales agent of approximately $0.9 million. The shares were sold pursuant to the Equity Distribution Agreement described in Note 7-Stockholders' Equity. The Company no longer has any authorized AMC Preferred Equity Units available for issuance under the Equity Distribution Agreement.

Related Party Debt Repurchase. On April 6, 2023, the Company repurchased $9.0 million aggregate principal of the Second Lien Notes due 2026 from Antara, a related party, for $6.2 million and recorded a gain on extinguishment of $4.4 million in other expense (income). Accrued interest of $0.3 million was paid in connection with the repurchase.

NCM Bankruptcy. On April 11, 2023, National Cine-Media, LLC ("NCM") filed a petition under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in the Southern District of Texas. NCM is the in-theatre advertising provider for the majority of our theatres in the United States. NCM has indicated that it plans to assume its agreements with us and we do not expect its bankruptcy to have a material impact on the Company. However, certain payments due to AMC from NCM for periods prior to the bankruptcy filing may be delayed, and NCM failed to issue the common units that were owed to AMC as part of the annual common unit adjustment on April 12, 2023. We will continue to monitor the bankruptcy proceedings and take such actions as are necessary to preserve AMC's contractual rights.

Shareholder Litigation. On April 2, 2023, the Company entered into a binding settlement term sheet with the named plaintiffs in the Shareholder Litigation to settle the Shareholder Litigation and to request that the status quo order (the "Status Quo Order") in the Shareholder Litigation be lifted. Pursuant to the binding settlement term sheet, the Company agreed to make a non-cash settlement payment to record holders of Common Stock as of the time (the "Settlement Class Time") at which the Reverse Stock Split is effective (and after giving effect to the Reverse Stock Split) of one share of Class A common stock for every 7.5 shares of Common Stock owned by such record holders (the “Settlement Payment”). On April 3, 2023, the plaintiffs filed an unopposed motion to lift the Status Quo Order.

On April 5, 2023, the court denied the motion to lift the Status Quo Order. Unless and until the court lifts the Status Quo Order, the Company cannot proceed with filing the amendment to the Company’s certificate of incorporation to effect the Charter Amendment Proposals. Further, any settlement of the Shareholder Litigation is subject to court approval.

On April 26, 2023, the Company and the plaintiffs jointly filed a Stipulation and Agreement of Compromise, Settlement, and Release (the “Settlement Stipulation”) with the court. The terms of the Settlement Stipulation are substantially the same as the previously entered binding settlement term sheet. The court has set a hearing to consider approval of the Settlement Stipulation on June 29-30, 2023.

See Note 11-Commitments and Contingencies for further information regarding the litigation.

In addition to historical information, this Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q contains “forward-looking statements” within the meaning of the “safe harbor” provisions of the United States Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Forward-looking statements may be identified by the use of words such as “may,” “will,” “forecast,” “estimate,” “project,” “intend,” “plan,” “expect,” “should,” “believe” and other similar expressions that predict or indicate future events or trends or that are not statements of historical matters. These forward-looking statements are based only on our current beliefs, expectations and assumptions regarding the future of our business, future plans and strategies, projections, anticipated events and trends, the economy and other future conditions and speak only as of the date on which it is made. Examples of forward-looking statements include statements we make regarding the impact of COVID-19, future attendance levels and our liquidity. These forward-looking statements involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties, assumptions and other factors, including those discussed in “Risk Factors” and “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations,” which may cause our actual results, performance or achievements to be materially different from any future results, performance or achievements expressed or implied by such forward-looking statements. These risks and uncertainties include, but are not limited to, the following:

- the risks and uncertainties relating to the sufficiency of our existing cash and cash equivalents and available borrowing capacity to comply with the minimum liquidity requirement under our debt covenants related to borrowings pursuant to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility (as defined in Note 6-Corporate Borrowings and Finance Lease Liabilities in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Part I, Item 1 thereof), fund operations, and satisfy obligations including cash outflows for deferred rent and planned capital expenditures currently and through the next twelve months. In order to achieve net positive operating cash flows and long-term profitability, operating revenues will need to increase significantly from current levels to levels in line with pre COVID-19 operating revenues. We believe the anticipated volume of titles available for theatrical release and the anticipated broad appeal of many of those titles will support increased operating revenues and attendance levels. However, there remain significant risks that may negatively impact operating revenues and attendance levels, including changes to movie studios release schedules and direct to streaming or other changing movie studio practices. If we are unable to achieve significantly increased levels of attendance and operating revenues, we may be required to obtain additional liquidity. If such additional liquidity is not obtained or insufficient, we likely would seek an in-court or out-of-court restructuring of our liabilities, and in the event of such future liquidation or bankruptcy proceeding, holders of our Common Stock, AMC Preferred Equity Units, and other securities would likely suffer a total loss of their investment;
- the impact of COVID-19 upon the operations of the exhibition industry; the practices of distributors; and the changing movie-going behavior of consumers;
- increased use of alternative film delivery methods including premium video on demand or other forms of entertainment;
- the risk that the North American and international box office in the near term will not recover sufficiently, resulting in higher cash burn and the need to seek additional financing;

- risks and uncertainties relating to our significant indebtedness, including our borrowings and our ability to meet our financial maintenance and other covenants;
- shrinking exclusive theatrical release windows or release of movies to theatrical exhibition and streaming platforms on the same date, and the theatrical release of fewer movies;
- the seasonality of our revenue and working capital, which are dependent upon the timing of motion picture releases by distributor, such releases being seasonal and resulting in higher attendance and revenues generally during the summer months and holiday seasons;
- intense competition in the geographic areas in which we operate among exhibitors or from other forms of entertainment;
- certain covenants in the agreements that govern our indebtedness may limit our ability to take advantage of certain business opportunities and limit or restrict our ability to pay dividends, pre-pay debt, and also to refinance debt and to do so at favorable terms;
- risks relating to impairment losses, including with respect to goodwill and other intangibles, and theatre and other closure charges;
- risks relating to motion picture production and performance, including labor stoppages affecting the production and supply of theatrical motion picture content;
- general and international economic, political, regulatory, social and financial market conditions, including potential economic recession, inflation, the financial stability of the banking industry, and other risks that may negatively impact discretionary income and our operating revenues and attendance levels;
- our lack of control over distributors of films;
- limitations on the availability of capital or poor financial results may prevent us from deploying strategic initiatives;
- an issuance of preferred stock, including the Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock (represented by AMC Preferred Equity Units), could dilute the voting power of the common stockholders and adversely affect the market value of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units;
- limitations on the authorized number of Common Stock shares prevents us from raising additional capital through Common Stock issuances;
- our ability to achieve expected synergies, benefits and performance from our strategic initiatives;
- our ability to refinance our indebtedness on terms favorable to us or at all;
- our ability to optimize our theatre circuit through new construction, the transformation of our existing theatres, and strategically closing underperforming theatres may be subject to delay and unanticipated costs;
- failures, unavailability or security breaches of our information systems;
- our ability to utilize interest expense deductions will be limited annually due to Section 163(j) of the Internal Revenue Code as amended by the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017;
- our ability to recognize interest deduction carryforwards, net operating loss carryforwards and other tax attributes to reduce our future tax liability;

Table of Contents

- our ability to recognize certain international deferred tax assets which currently do not have a valuation allowance recorded;
- impact of the elimination of the calculation of USD LIBOR rates on our contracts indexed to USD LIBOR;
- review by antitrust authorities in connection with acquisition opportunities;
- risks relating to the incurrence of legal liability, including costs associated with the ongoing securities class action lawsuits;
- dependence on key personnel for current and future performance and our ability to attract and retain senior executives and other key personnel, including in connection with any future acquisitions;
- increased costs in order to comply or resulting from a failure to comply with governmental regulation, including the General Data Protection Regulation (“GDPR”) and all other current and pending privacy and data regulations in the jurisdictions where we have operations.
- supply chain disruptions may negatively impact our operating results;
- the availability and/or cost of energy, particularly in Europe;
- the dilution caused by recent and potential future sales of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units, including the implications of the proposed conversion of the Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock (which are represented by AMC Preferred Equity Units) to Common Stock, could adversely affect the market price of the Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units;
- the market price and trading volume of our shares of Common Stock has been and may continue to be volatile and such volatility also applies to our AMC Preferred Equity Units, and purchasers of our securities could incur substantial losses;
- future offerings of debt, which would be senior to our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units for purposes of distributions or upon liquidation, could adversely affect the market price of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units;
- our ability to implement the Charter Amendment Proposals due to the Shareholder Litigation (as defined herein);
- the potential for political, social, or economic unrest, terrorism, hostilities, cyber-attacks or war, including the conflict between Russia and Ukraine and that Sweden and Finland (countries where we operate approximately 100 theatres) have either signed or completed accession protocols. Their accession could cause a deterioration in the relationship each country has with Russia;
- the potential impact of financial and economic sanctions on the regional and global economy, or widespread health emergencies, such as COVID-19 or other pandemics or epidemics, causing people to avoid our theatres or other public places where large crowds are in attendance;
- anti-takeover protections in our amended and restated certificate of incorporation and our amended and restated bylaws may discourage or prevent a takeover of our Company, even if an acquisition would be beneficial to our stockholders; and
- other risks referenced from time to time in filings with the SEC.

This list of factors that may affect future performance and the accuracy of forward-looking statements is illustrative but not exhaustive. In addition, new risks and uncertainties may arise from time to time. Accordingly, all

Overview

AMC is the world’s largest theatrical exhibition company and an industry leader in innovation and operational excellence. We operate theatres in 11 countries, including the U.S. and Europe.

Our theatrical exhibition revenues are generated primarily from box office admissions and theatre food and beverage sales. Our remaining revenues are generated from ancillary sources, including on-screen advertising, fees earned from our AMC Stubs® customer loyalty program, rental of theatre auditoriums, income from gift card and exchange ticket sales, and online ticketing fees. As of March 31, 2023, we owned, operated or had interests in 920 theatres and 10,264 screens.

Box Office Admissions and Film Content

Box office admissions are our largest source of revenue. We predominantly license theatrical films from distributors owned by major film production companies and from independent distributors on a film-by-film and theatre-by-theatre basis. Film exhibition costs are based on a share of admissions revenues and are accrued based on estimates of the final settlement pursuant to our film licenses. These licenses typically state that rental fees are based on the box office performance of each film, though in certain circumstances and less frequently, our rental fees are based on a mutually agreed settlement rate that is fixed. In some European territories, film rental fees are established on a weekly basis and some licenses use a per capita agreement instead of a revenue share, paying a flat amount per ticket.

Our revenues attributable to individual distributors may vary significantly from year to year depending upon the commercial success of each distributor’s films in any given year. Our results of operations may vary significantly from quarter to quarter and from year to year based on the timing and popularity of film releases.

Movie Screens

The following table provides detail with respect to digital delivery, 3D enabled projection, large screen formats, such as IMAX® and our proprietary Dolby Cinema™, other Premium Large Format (“PLF”) screens, enhanced food and beverage offerings and our premium seating as deployed throughout our circuit:

Loyalty Programs and Other Marketing

As of March 31, 2023, we had more than 28,800,000 member households enrolled in AMC Stubs® A-List, AMC Stubs Premiere™ and AMC Stubs Insider™ programs, combined. During the three months ended March 31, 2023 our AMC Stubs® members represented approximately 43.9% of AMC U.S. markets attendance.

We currently have approximately 15,000,000 members in our various International loyalty programs.

See “Item 1. Business” in our 2022 Annual Report on Form 10-K for additional discussion and information of our screens, seating concepts, amenities, loyalty programs and other marketing initiatives.

Holders of Shares

As of March 31, 2023, approximately 7.9 million shares of our Class A common stock and approximately 124.7 million shares of our AMC Preferred Equity Units were directly registered with our transfer agent by 16,779 and 14,852 shareholders, respectively.

Critical Accounting Estimates

For a discussion of our critical accounting policies and the means by which we develop estimates therefore, see “Item 7. Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations” in our 2022 Annual Report on Form 10-K. Other than as discussed above, there have been no material changes from critical accounting estimates described in our Form 10-K.

Significant Events

Saudi Cinema Company. On December 30, 2022, we entered into an agreement to sell our 10.0% investment in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC for SAR 112.5 million ($30.0 million), subject to certain closing conditions. On January 24, 2023, the Saudi Ministry of Commerce recorded a sale of equity and we received the proceeds on January 25, 2023. We recorded a gain on the sale of $15.5 million in investment income during the three months ended March 31, 2023.

Debt Repurchases. The below table summarizes the cash debt repurchase transactions during the three months ended March 31, 2023, including related party transactions with Antara, which became a related party on February 7, 2023:

Total debt repurchases	$ 103.5	$ 56.5	$ 65.1	$ 1.9

Additional Share Issuances Antara. On December 22, 2022, we entered into a forward purchase agreement (the “Forward Purchase Agreement”) with Antara pursuant to which we agreed to (i) sell to Antara 106,595,106 AMC Preferred Equity Units for an aggregate purchase price of $75.1 million and (ii) simultaneously purchase from Antara $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company’s 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 in exchange for 91,026,191 AMC Preferred Equity Units. On February 7, 2023, the Company issued 197,621,297 AMC Preferred Equity Units to Antara in exchange for $75.1 million in cash and $100.0 million aggregate principal amount of the Company’s 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026. The Company recorded $193.7 million to stockholders’ deficit as a result of the transaction. We paid $1.4 million of accrued interest in cash upon exchange of the notes.

Equity Distribution Agreement. During the three months ended March 31, 2023, we raised gross proceeds of approximately $80.3 million and paid fees to the Sales Agent and incurred other third-party issuance costs of approximately $2.0 million and $7.8 million, respectively, through our at-the-market offering of approximately 49.3 million shares of our AMC Preferred Equity Units. The Company paid $6.8 million of other third-party issuance costs during the three months ended March 31, 2023. See Note 13-Subsequent Events in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Part I, Item 1, for information about additional AMC Preferred Equity Unit issuances.

Special Awards. On February 23, 2023, AMC’s Board of Directors approved special awards in lieu of vesting of the 2022 PSU awards. The special awards were accounted for as a modification to the 2022 PSU awards which lowered the Adjusted EBITDA and free cash flow performance targets such that 200% vesting was achieved for both tranches. This modification resulted in the immediate additional vesting of 2,389,589 Common Stock 2022 PSUs and 2,389,589 AMC Preferred Equity Unit 2022 PSUs. This was treated as a Type 3 modification (improbable-to-probable) which requires the Company to recognize additional stock compensation expense based on the modification date fair values of the Common Stock PSUs and AMC Preferred Equity Units PSUs of $6.23 and $2.22, respectively. During the three months ended March 31, 2023, we recognized $20.2 million of additional stock compensation expense.

Adjusted EBITDA

We present Adjusted EBITDA as a supplemental measure of our performance. We define Adjusted EBITDA as net earnings (loss) plus (i) income tax provision (benefit), (ii) interest expense and (iii) depreciation and amortization, as further adjusted to eliminate the impact of certain items that we do not consider indicative of our ongoing operating performance and to include attributable EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operations in International markets and any cash distributions of earnings from other equity method investees. These further adjustments are itemized below. You are encouraged to evaluate these adjustments and the reasons we consider them appropriate for supplemental analysis. In evaluating Adjusted EBITDA, you should be aware that in the future we may incur expenses that are the same as or similar to some of the adjustments in this presentation. Our presentation of Adjusted EBITDA should not be construed as an inference that our future results will be unaffected by unusual or non-recurring items. The preceding definition of and adjustments made to GAAP measures to determine Adjusted EBITDA are broadly consistent with Adjusted EBITDA as defined in the Company's debt indentures.

Adjusted EBITDA is a non-GAAP financial measure commonly used in our industry and should not be construed as an alternative to net earnings (loss) as an indicator of operating performance (as determined in accordance with U.S. GAAP). Adjusted EBITDA may not be comparable to similarly titled measures reported by other companies. We have included Adjusted EBITDA because we believe it provides management and investors with additional information to measure our performance and estimate our value.

Adjusted EBITDA has important limitations as an analytical tool, and you should not consider it in isolation, or as a substitute for analysis of our results as reported under U.S. GAAP. For example, Adjusted EBITDA:

- does not reflect our capital expenditures, future requirements for capital expenditures or contractual commitments;
- does not reflect changes in, or cash requirements for, our working capital needs;
- does not reflect the significant interest expenses, or the cash requirements necessary to service interest or principal payments on our debt;
- excludes income tax payments that represent a reduction in cash available to us; and
- does not reflect any cash requirements for the assets being depreciated and amortized that may have to be replaced in the future.

During the three months ended March 31, 2023, Adjusted EBITDA in the U.S. markets was $10.9 million compared to $(43.4) million during the three months ended March 31, 2022. The year-over-year improvement was primarily due to the decreased net loss driven by an increase in attendance as a result of the popularity of new film releases compared to the prior year and decreases in rent expense, partially offset by increases in operating costs due to the increase in attendance. During the three months ended March 31, 2023, Adjusted EBITDA in the International markets was $(3.8) million compared to $(18.3) million during the three months ended March 31, 2022. The year-over-year improvement was primarily due to the decreased net loss driven by the increase in attendance as a result of the popularity of new film releases compared to the prior year and decreases in foreign currency translation rates, partially offset by increases in operating costs due to the increase in attendance and decreases in government assistance. During the three months ended March 31, 2023, Adjusted EBITDA in the U.S. markets and International markets was $7.1 million compared to $(61.7) million during the three months ended March 31, 2022, driven by the aforementioned factors impacting Adjusted EBITDA.

The following tables set forth our Adjusted EBITDA by reportable operating segment and our reconciliation of Adjusted EBITDA:

We have excluded these items as they are non-cash in nature or are non-operating in nature.
- (2) Includes U.S. non-theatre distributions from equity method investments and International non-theatre distributions from equity method investments to the extent received. We believe including cash distributions is an appropriate reflection of the contribution of these investments to our operations.
- (3) Attributable EBITDA includes the EBITDA from equity investments in theatre operators in certain International markets. See below for a reconciliation of our equity in loss of non-consolidated entities to attributable EBITDA. Because these equity investments are in theatre operators in regions where we hold a significant market share, we believe attributable EBITDA is more indicative of the performance of these equity investments and management uses this measure to monitor and evaluate these equity investments. We also provide services to these theatre operators including information technology systems, certain on-screen advertising services and our gift card and package ticket program.

Segment Information

Our historical results of operations for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022 reflect the results of operations for our two theatrical exhibition reportable segments, U.S. markets and International markets.

Results of Operations- For the Three Months ended March 31, 2023 Compared to the Three Months ended March 31, 2022

Condensed Consolidated Results of Operations

Revenues. Total revenues increased $168.7 million or 21.5%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. Admissions revenues increased $90.3 million or 20.3%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to an increase in attendance of 21.9% from 39.1 million patrons to 47.6 million patrons partially offset by a 1.2% decrease in average ticket price. The increase in attendance was primarily due to the popularity of film product compared to the prior year. The decrease in average ticket price was primarily due to higher frequency on our A-List subscription program, a higher amount of discount-day ticket attendance, increased discount ticket attendance for non-adult tickets, which are typically discounted, and a decrease in foreign currency translation rates, partially offset by increased attendance for 3D content.

Food and beverage revenues increased $76.2 million 30.2%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the increase in attendance and an increase in food and beverage per patron. Food and beverage per patron increased 6.8% from $6.46 to $6.90 due primarily to an increase in average prices and units purchased per transaction and the lifting of COVID-19 restrictions on the sale of food and beverage, partially offset by higher frequency from our AMC Stubs loyalty members and a decrease in foreign currency translation rates.

Total other theatre revenues increased $2.2 million or 2.5%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to increases in ticket fees and screen and other advertising due to the increase in attendance, partially offset by lower income from gift cards and package tickets and the decrease in foreign currency translation rates.

Operating costs and expenses. Operating costs and expenses increased $110.0 million or 11.5%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. Film exhibition costs increased $56.4 million or 29.7%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the increase in attendance. As a percentage of admissions revenues, film exhibition costs were 46.1% for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to 42.8% for the three months ended March 31, 2022. The increase in film exhibition cost percentage is primarily due to the concentration of box office revenues in higher grossing films in the current year, which typically results in higher film exhibition costs.

Food and beverage costs increased $18.8 million or 44.1%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. The increase in food and beverage costs was primarily due to the increase in food and beverage revenues and increases in product costs and obsolescence. As a percentage of food and beverage revenues, food and beverage costs were 18.7% for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and 16.9% for the three months ended March 31, 2022.

As a percentage of revenues, operating expense was 40.2% for the three months ended March 31, 2023, and 43.9% for the three months ended March 31, 2022. Rent expense decreased 7.8%, or $17.5 million, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, due primarily to the early termination of one theatre lease for a benefit of $16.7 million, which included an early termination payment from the landlord for $13.0 million and the decrease in foreign currency translation rates. See Note 2-Leases in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information on the impact of COVID-19 on leases and rent obligations of approximately $123.6 million that have been deferred to future years as of March 31, 2023.

Merger, acquisition, and other costs. Merger, acquisition, and other costs were $0.2 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to $0.4 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Other. Other general and administrative expense increased 36.2%, or $19.2 million, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022 due primarily to stock-based compensation expense of $20.2 million related to a February 23, 2023 special award grant accounted for as a modification to the 2022 PSU awards which lowered the Adjusted EBITDA and free cash flow performance targets such that 200% vesting was achieved for both tranches. This modification resulted in the immediate additional vesting of 2,389,589 Class A Common Stock PSU's and 2,389,589 Preferred Equity Unit PSU's. The modification was treated as a Type 3 modification (improbable to probable) which required us to recognize additional stock compensation expense based on the modification date fair values of the Class A Common Stock PSU's and AMC Preferred Equity Unit PSU's of $6.23 per unit and $2.22 per unit, respectively during the three months ended March 31, 2023. See Note 7-Stockholders' Equity in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for additional information about stock-based compensation expense.

Depreciation and amortization. Depreciation and amortization decreased $5.1 million or 5.2%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to lower depreciation expense on theatres impaired during years ended December 31, 2021 and December 31, 2022 and the decrease in foreign currency translation rates, partially offset by accelerated depreciation related to the replacement of digital projectors.

Other expense. Other expense of $39.2 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 was primarily due to $126.6 million of expense related to a proposed settlement of the Shareholder Litigation comprised of $10 million of estimated legal fees and $116.6 million of non-cash expense for the estimated fair value as of March 31, 2023 of settlement shares proposed to be issued to holders of AMC Class A Common Stock, partially offset by a gain on extinguishment of debt of $62.8 million related to the redemption of $99.4 million aggregate principal amount of the Second Lien Notes due 2026, a gain on extinguishment of debt of $2.3 million related to the redemption of $4.1 million aggregate principal amount of our Senior Subordinated Notes due 2026, a receipt of $14.0 million in settlement of the Lao Action and $8.7 million in foreign currency transaction gains. Other expense of $136.3 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022 was primarily due to a loss on extinguishment of debt of $135.0 million related to the full redemption of the $500 million aggregate principal amount of the First Lien Notes due 2025, the $300 million aggregate principal amount of the First Lien Notes due 2026, and the $73.5 million aggregate principal amount of the First Lien Toggle Notes due 2026. See Note 1-Basis of Presentation in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for additional information about the components of other expense (income).

Interest expense. Interest expense increased $8.7 million to $101.1 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to $92.4 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022 primarily due to:

- the issuance of $950.0 million of 7.5% First Lien Senior Secured Notes due 2029 on February 14, 2022;
 - the issuance of $400.0 million 12.75% Odeon Senior Secured Notes due 2027 on October 20, 2022; and
 - the increase in interest rates on the Senior Secured Credit Facility Term Loan due 2026,
- partially offset by:

- the extinguishment of $317.6 million of 10%/12% Cash/PIK/Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 from May 2022 to March 2023;
- the extinguishment of $500.0 million of 10.5% First Lien Notes due 2025 on February 14, 2022;
- the extinguishment of $300.0 million of 10.5% First Lien Notes due 2026 on February 14, 2022;
- the extinguishment of $73.5 million of 15%/17% Cash/PIK/Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 on February 14, 2022;
- the extinguishment of £147.6 million and €312.2 million ($476.6 million) 10.75%/11.25% Cash/PIK Term Loans due 2023 on October 20, 2022; and
- the decline in foreign currency translation rates.

Equity in (earnings) loss of non-consolidated entities. Equity in earnings of non-consolidated entities was ($1.4) million for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to a loss of $5.1 million for the three months ended March 31, 2022. The decrease in equity losses from the prior year is primarily related to our 10.0% interest in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC that was sold on January 24, 2023.

Investment income. Investment income was $13.5 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to $63.4 million for the three months ended March 31, 2022. Investment income in the current year includes a gain on sale of our 10.0% interest in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC of $15.5 million and interest income of $2.3 million, partially offset by $2.3 million of decline in estimated fair value of our investment in common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation and $2.3 million of decline in estimated fair value of our investment in warrants to purchase common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation. Investment income of $63.4 million in the prior year includes $28.8 million of appreciation in estimated fair value of our investment in common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation and $35.1 million of appreciation in estimated fair value of our investment in warrants to purchase common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation.

Income tax provision. The income tax provision was $1.9 million and $0.1 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. See Note 8-Income Taxes in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information.

Net loss. Net loss was $235.5 million and $337.4 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. Net loss during the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to net loss for the three months ended March 31, 2022 was positively impacted by the increase in attendance as a result of the popularity of new film releases compared to the prior year, decreases in rent expense, decreases in depreciation and amortization expense, decreases in other expense, decreases in equity in losses and decreases in foreign currency translation rates, partially offset by increases in general and administrative expenses, increases in interest expense, decreases in investment income and an increase in income tax provision.

Revenues. Total revenues increased $141.4 million or 25.1%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. Admissions revenues increased $73.2 million or 23.6%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to an increase in attendance of 25.5% from 25.8 million patrons to 32.4 million patrons partially offset by a 1.5% decrease in average ticket price. The increase in attendance was primarily due to the popularity of film product compared to the prior year. The decrease in average ticket price was primarily due to higher frequency on our A-List subscription program, a higher amount of discount-day ticket attendance, and increased attendance for non-adult tickets, which are typically discounted, partially offset by increased attendance for 3D content.

Food and beverage revenues increased $64.5 million or 33.2%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the increase in attendance and an increase in food and beverage per patron. Food and beverage per patron increased 6.3% from $7.52 to $7.99 due primarily to an increase in average prices and units purchased per transaction, partially offset by higher frequency from our AMC Stubs loyalty members.

Total other theatre revenues increased $3.7 million or 6.3%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to increases in ticket fees and screen and other advertising due to the increase in attendance, partially offset by lower income from gift cards and package tickets.

Operating costs and expenses. Operating costs and expenses increased $104.3 million or 15.2%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. Film exhibition costs increased $49.8 million or 35.9%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the increase in attendance. As a percentage of admissions revenues, film exhibition costs were 49.1% for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to 44.6% for the three months ended March 31, 2022. The increase in film exhibition cost percentage is primarily due to the concentration of box office revenues in higher grossing films in the current year, which typically results in higher film exhibition costs.

Food and beverage costs increased $15.3 million or 53.3%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. The increase in food and beverage costs was primarily due to the increase in food and beverage revenues and increases in product costs and obsolescence. As a percentage of food and beverage revenues, food and beverage costs were 17.0% for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and 14.8% for the three months ended March 31, 2022.

As a percentage of revenues, operating expense was 39.5% for the three months ended March 31, 2023, and 42.8% for the three months ended March 31, 2022. Rent expense decreased 9.4%, or $15.6 million, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, due primarily to the early termination of one theatre lease for a benefit of $16.7 million, which included an early termination payment from the landlord for $13.0 million. See Note 2-Leases in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information on the impact of COVID-19 on leases and rent obligations of approximately $106.1 million that have been deferred to future years as of March 31, 2023.

Merger, acquisition, and other costs. Merger, acquisition, and other costs were $0.2 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to $0.2 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Other. Other general and administrative expense increased 51.7%, or $18.2 million, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022 due primarily to stock-based compensation expense of $18.1 million related to the February 23, 2023 special award grant accounted for as a modification to the 2022 PSU awards discussed further in Condensed Consolidated Results of Operations. See Note 7-Stockholders' Equity in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for additional information about stock-based compensation expense.

Depreciation and amortization. Depreciation and amortization decreased $0.7 million or 0.9%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to lower depreciation expense on theatres impaired during years ended December 31, 2021 and December 31, 2022, partially offset by accelerated depreciation related to the replacement of digital projectors.

Other expense. Other expense of $47.7 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 was primarily due to $126.6 million of expense related to a proposed settlement of the Shareholder Litigation comprised of $10 million of estimated legal fees and $116.6 million of non-cash expense for the estimated fair value as of March 31, 2023 of settlement shares proposed to be issued to holders of AMC Class A Common Stock, partially offset by a gain on extinguishment of debt of $62.8 million related to the redemption of $99.4 million aggregate principal amount of the Second Lien Notes due 2026, a gain on extinguishment of debt of $2.3 million related to the redemption of $4.1 million aggregate principal amount of our Senior Subordinated Notes due 2026 and a receipt of $14.0 million in settlement of the Lao Action. Other expense of $133.7 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022 was primarily due to a loss on extinguishment of debt of $135.0 million related to the full redemption of the $500 million aggregate principal amount of the First Lien Notes due 2025, the $300 million aggregate principal amount of the First Lien Notes due 2026, and the $73.5 million aggregate principal amount of the First Lien Toggle Notes due 2026. See Note 1-Basis of Presentation in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for additional information about the components of other expense (income) and Note 11-Commitments and Contingencies for additional information about our legal contingencies and settlements.

Interest expense. Interest expense increased $13.2 million to $85.7 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to $72.5 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to:

- the issuance of $950.0 million of 7.5% First Lien Senior Secured Notes due 2029 on February 14, 2022; and

- the increase in interest rates on the Senior Secured Credit Facility Term Loan due 2026, partially offset by:
- the extinguishment of $317.6 million of 10%/12% Cash/PIK/Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 from May 2022 to March 2023;
- the extinguishment of $500.0 million of 10.5% First Lien Notes due 2025 on February 14, 2022;
- the extinguishment of $300.0 million of 10.5% First Lien Notes due 2026 on February 14, 2022; and
- the extinguishment of $73.5 million of 15%/17% Cash/PIK/Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 on February 14, 2022.

Equity in (earnings) loss of non-consolidated entities. Equity in earnings of non-consolidated entities was $(0.9) million for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to a loss of $0.3 million for the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Investment (income) expense. Investment expense was $2.0 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to $63.4 million for the three months ended March 31, 2022. Investment expense in the current year includes $2.3 million of decline in estimated fair value of our investment in common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation and $2.3 million of decline in estimated fair value of our investment in warrants to purchase common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation, partially offset by $2.3 million of interest income. Investment income of ($63.4) million in the prior year includes ($28.8) million of appreciation in estimated fair value of our investment in common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation and ($35.1) million of appreciation in estimated fair value of our investment in warrants to purchase common shares of Hycroft Mining Holding Corporation.

Income tax provision. The income tax provision was $0.4 million and $0.1 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. See Note 8-Income Taxes in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information.

Net loss. Net loss was $220.4 million and $265.8 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. Net loss during the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to net loss for the three months ended March 31, 2022 was positively impacted by the increase in attendance as a result of the popularity of new film releases compared to the prior year, decreases in rent expense, decreases in depreciation and amortization expense, decreases in other expense and decreases in equity in losses, partially offset by increases in general and administrative expenses, increases in interest expense, decreases in investment income and an increase in income tax provision.

Theatrical Exhibition - International Markets

Revenues. Total revenues increased $27.3 million or 12.3%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. Admissions revenues increased $17.1 million or 12.9%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to an increase in attendance of 14.9% from 13.3 million patrons to 15.3 million patrons partially offset by a 1.7% decrease in average ticket price. The increase in attendance was primarily due to the popularity of film product compared to the prior year. The decrease in average ticket price was primarily due to a decrease in foreign currency translation rates, partially offset by strategic pricing initiatives put in place over the prior year.

Food and beverage revenues increased $11.7 million or 20.0%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the increase in attendance and an increase in food and beverage per patron. Food and beverage per patron increased 4.5% from $4.40 to $4.60 due primarily to the lifting of COVID-19 restrictions on the sale of food and beverage and strategic pricing initiatives put in place over the prior year, partially offset by a decrease in foreign currency translation rates.

Total other theatre revenues decreased $1.5 million or 4.8%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the decrease in foreign currency translation rates and the decline of theatre rentals as traditional attendance increased.

Operating costs and expenses. Operating costs and expenses increased $5.7 million or 2.1%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. Film exhibition costs increased $6.6 million or 12.9%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31,

2022, primarily due to the increase in attendance, partially offset by the decrease in foreign currency translation rates. As a percentage of admissions revenues, film exhibition costs were 38.4% for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022.

Food and beverage costs increased $3.5 million or 25.2%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. The increase in food and beverage costs was primarily due to the increase in food and beverage revenues. As a percentage of food and beverage revenues, food and beverage costs were 24.8% for the three months ended March 31, 2023 and 23.8% for the three months ended March 31, 2022.

As a percentage of revenues, operating expense was 42.0% for the three months ended March 31, 2023, and 46.6% for the three months ended March 31, 2022. Rent expense decreased 3.3%, or $1.9 million, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to the decrease in foreign currency translation rates. See Note 2-Leases in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information on the impact of COVID-19 on leases and rent obligations of approximately $17.5 million that have been deferred to future years as of March 31, 2023.

Merger, acquisition, and other costs. Merger, acquisition, and other costs were $0.0 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to $0.2 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Other. Other general and administrative expense increased 5.6%, or $1.0 million, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022 due primarily to stock-based compensation expense of $2.1 million related to the February 23, 2023 special award grant accounted for as a modification to the 2022 PSU awards discussed further in Condensed Consolidated Results of Operations and partially offset by the decline in foreign currency translation rates. See Note 7-Stockholders' Equity in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for additional information about stock-based compensation expense.

Depreciation and amortization. Depreciation and amortization decreased $4.4 million or 19.0%, during the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to lower depreciation expense on theatres impaired during years ended December 31, 2021 and December 31, 2022 and the decrease in foreign currency translation rates.

Other (income) expense. Other income of $(8.5) million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 was primarily due to $(8.7) million in foreign currency transaction gains. Other expense was $2.6 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022. See Note 1-Basis of Presentation in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for additional information about the components of other expense (income) and Note 11-Commitments and Contingencies for additional information about our legal contingencies and settlements.

Interest expense. Interest expense decreased $4.5 million to $15.4 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to $19.9 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022, primarily due to:

- the extinguishment of £147.6 million and €312.2 million ($476.6 million) 10.75%/11.25% Cash/PIK Term Loans due 2023 on October 20, 2022; and
- the decline in foreign currency translation rates,

partially offset by:

- the issuance of $400.0 million 12.75% Odeon Senior Secured Notes due 2027 on October 20, 2022.

Equity in (earnings) loss of non-consolidated entities. Equity in earnings of non-consolidated entities was ($0.5) million for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to a loss of $4.8 million for the three months ended March 31, 2022. The decrease in equity losses from the prior year is primarily related to our 10.0% interest in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC that was sold on January 24, 2023.

Investment income. Investment income was $15.5 million for the three months ended March 31, 2023, compared to $0.0 million for the three months ended March 31, 2022. Investment income in the current year includes a gain on sale of our 10.0% interest in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC of $15.5 million.

Income tax provision. The income tax provision was $1.5 million and $0.0 million for the three months ended

March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. See Note 8-Income Taxes in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information.

Net loss. Net loss was $15.1 million and $71.6 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. Net loss during the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to net loss for the three months ended March 31, 2022 was positively impacted by the increase in attendance as a result of the popularity of new film releases compared to the prior year, decreases in rent expense, decreases in depreciation and amortization expense, decreases in other expense, decreases in interest expense, increases in investment income, decreases in equity in losses and decreases in foreign currency translation rates, partially offset by increases in general and administrative expenses and an increase in income tax provision.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

Our consolidated revenues are primarily collected in cash, principally through admissions and food and beverage sales. We have an operating “float” which partially finances our operations and which generally permits us to maintain a smaller amount of working capital capacity. This float exists because admissions revenues are received in cash, while exhibition costs (primarily film rentals) are ordinarily paid to distributors 20 to 45 days following receipt of admissions revenues. Film distributors generally release the films which they anticipate will be the most successful during the summer and year-end holiday seasons. Consequently, we typically generate higher revenues during such periods and experience higher working capital requirements following such periods.

We had working capital surplus (deficit) (excluding restricted cash) as of March 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022 of $(994.9) million and $(811.1) million, respectively. As of March 31, 2023 and December 31, 2022, working capital included operating lease liabilities of $546.5 million and $567.3 million, respectively, and deferred revenues of $391.7 million and $402.7 million, respectively. As of March 31, 2023, we had $208.1 million unused borrowing capacity, net of letters of credit, under our $225.0 million Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility. As of December 31, 2022, we had $211.2 million unused borrowing capacity, net of letters of credit, under our $225.0 million Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility. See Note 6-Corporate Borrowings and Finance Lease Liabilities in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for a further discussion of our Financial Covenants.

As of March 31, 2023, we had cash and cash equivalents of $495.6 million.

Additionally, we continued to lower our future interest expense in the first quarter of 2023 through purchases of debt below par value and debt exchanges for equity and enhanced liquidity through equity issuances. See Note 6-Corporate Borrowings and Finance Lease Liabilities, Note 7-Stockholders’ Equity and Note 13-Subsequent Events in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements under Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information.

We believe our existing cash and cash equivalents, together with cash generated from operations, will be sufficient to fund our operations, satisfy our obligations, and comply with the minimum liquidity covenant requirement under our Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility for at least the next twelve months. Pursuant to the Twelfth Amendment to Credit Agreement, the requisite revolving lenders party thereto agreed to extend the suspension period for the financial covenant applicable to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility under the Credit Agreement through March 31, 2024. The current maturity date of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility is April 22, 2024; since the financial covenant applicable to the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility is tested as of the last day of any fiscal quarter for which financial statements have been (or were required to have been) delivered, the financial covenant has been effectively suspended through maturity of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility. As of March 31, 2023, we were subject to a minimum liquidity requirement of $100 million as a condition to the financial covenant suspension period under the Credit Agreement.

Our current cash burn rates are not sustainable long-term. In order to achieve net positive operating cash flows and long-term profitability, we believe that operating revenues will need to increase significantly to levels in line with pre-COVID-19 operating revenues. Until such time as we are able to achieve positive operating cash flow, it is difficult to estimate our liquidity requirements, future cash burn rates, future operating revenues and attendance levels. Depending on our assumptions regarding the timing and ability to achieve significantly increased levels of operating revenue, the estimates of amounts of required liquidity vary significantly.

There can be no assurance that the operating revenues, attendance levels and other assumptions used to estimate our liquidity requirements and future cash burn rates will be correct, and our ability to be predictive is uncertain due to limited ability to predict studio film release dates, the overall production and theatrical release levels and success of individual titles. Further, there can be no assurances that we will be successful in generating the additional liquidity necessary to meet our obligations beyond twelve months from the issuance of these financial statements on terms acceptable to us or at all.

Cash Flows from Operating Activities

Cash flows used in operating activities, as reflected in the condensed consolidated statements of cash flows, were $189.9 million and $295.0 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. The improvement in cash flows used in operating activities was primarily due to the increase in attendance and decrease in net loss, decreases in working capital used, increased lease incentive receipts, and reductions in rent repayments for rent that was deferred during the COVID-19 pandemic, partially offset by increases in cash interest paid during the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022. See Note 2-Leases in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements in Item 1 of Part I in this Form 10-Q for a summary of the estimated future repayment terms for the remaining $123.6 million of rentals that were deferred during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Cash Flows from Investing Activities

Cash flows used in investing activities, as reflected in the condensed consolidated statements of cash flows, were $16.6 million and $54.9 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. Cash outflows from investing activities include capital expenditures of $47.4 million and $34.8 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. During the three months ended March 31, 2023, cash flows used in investing activities also included proceeds from the sale of our investment in Saudi Cinema Company, LLC of $30.0 million and proceeds from the disposition of long-term assets of $0.8 million.

During the three months ended March 31, 2022, cash flows used in investing activities included investment in Hycroft common stock for $25.0 million, investment in Hycroft warrants for $2.9 million, and proceeds from the disposition of long-term assets of $7.2 million related to one property and other assets.

We fund the costs of constructing, maintaining, and remodeling our theatres through existing cash balances, cash generated from operations, landlord contributions, or borrowed funds, as necessary. We generally lease our theatres pursuant to long-term non-cancelable operating leases, which may require the developer, who owns the property, to reimburse us for the construction costs. We estimate that our capital expenditures, net of landlord contributions, will be approximately $150 million to $200 million for year ended December 31, 2023 to maintain and enhance operations.

Cash Flows from Financing Activities

Cash flows provided by (used in) financing activities, as reflected in the condensed consolidated statements of cash flows, were $68.9 million and $(76.3) million during the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, respectively. Cash flows from financing activities during the three months ended March 31, 2023 were primarily due to AMC Preferred Equity Unit issuances of $146.6 million, net of issuance costs, partially offset by the repurchase of Second Lien Notes due 2026 for $54.8 million, and taxes paid for restricted unit withholdings of $13.1 million. See Note 6-Corporate Borrowings and Finance Lease Liabilities and Note 7 - Stockholders' Equity in the Notes to the Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements in Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for further information, including a summary of principal payments required and maturities of corporate borrowings as of March 31, 2023.

We or our affiliates actively seek and expect, at any time and from time to time, to continue to seek to retire or purchase our outstanding debt through cash purchases and/or exchanges for equity (including AMC Preferred Equity Units) or debt, in open-market purchases, privately negotiated transactions or otherwise. Such repurchases or exchanges, if any will be upon such terms and at such prices as we may determine, and will depend on prevailing market conditions, our liquidity requirements, contractual restrictions and other factors. The amounts involved may be material and to the extent equity is used, dilutive.

Cash flows provided by financing activities during the three months ended March 31, 2022 was primarily due to principal and premium payments under the First Lien Notes due 2025 of $534.5 million, principal and premium payments under the First Lien Notes due 2026 of $325.6 million, principal and premium payments under the First Lien Toggle Notes due 2026 of $88.1 million, taxes paid for restricted unit withholdings of $52.2 million, and cash used to pay for deferred financing costs of $17.7 million, partially offset by the issuance of the First Lien Notes due 2029 of $950.0 million.

Item 3. Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures about Market Risk

In the ordinary course of business, our financial results are exposed to fluctuations in interest rates and foreign currency exchange rates. In accordance with applicable guidance, we presented a sensitivity analysis showing the potential impact to net income of changes in interest rates and foreign currency exchange rates. For the three months ended March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, our analysis utilized a hypothetical 100 basis-point increase or decrease to the average interest rate on our variable rate debt instruments to illustrate the potential impact to interest expense of changes in interest rates and a hypothetical 100 basis-point increase or decrease to market interest rates on our fixed rate debt instruments to illustrate the potential impact to fair value of changes in interest rates.

Similarly, for the same period, our analysis used a uniform and hypothetical 10% strengthening of the U.S. dollar versus the average exchange rates of applicable currencies to depict the potential impact to net income of changes in foreign exchange rates. These market risk instruments and the potential impacts to the condensed consolidated statements of operations are presented below.

Market risk on variable-rate financial instruments. At March 31, 2023 and March 31, 2022, we maintained Senior Secured Credit Facilities comprised of a $225.0 million revolving credit facility and $1,920.0 million of Term Loan due 2026. The Credit Agreement (which governs the Senior Secured Credit Facilities) provides for borrowings at a rate per annum equal to, at our option, either (1) a base rate determined by reference to the highest of (a) 0.50% per annum plus the Federal Funds Effective Rate, and (b) the prime rate announced by the Administrative Agent or (2) LIBOR plus (x) in the case of the Senior Secured Term Loans, 2.0% for base rate loans or 3.0% for LIBOR loans or (y) in the case of the Senior Secured Revolving Credit Facility, an applicable margin based on the Secured Leverage Ratio (defined in the Credit Agreement). The rate in effect for the outstanding Senior Secured Term Loan due 2026 was 7.684% per annum at March 31, 2023 and 3.352% per annum at March 31, 2022.

Increases in market interest rates would cause interest expense to increase and earnings before income taxes to decrease. The change in interest expense and earnings before income taxes would be dependent upon the weighted average outstanding borrowings during the reporting period following an increase in market interest rates. At March 31, 2023, we had no variable-rate borrowings outstanding under our revolving credit facilities and had an aggregate principal balance of $1,920.0 million outstanding under the Term Loan due 2026. A 100-basis point change in market interest rates would have increased or decreased interest expense on the Senior Secured Credit Facilities by $4.8 million during the three months ended March 31, 2023.

At March 31, 2022, we had no variable-rate borrowings outstanding under our revolving credit facilities and had an aggregate principal balance of $1,940.0 million outstanding under the Term Loan due 2026. A 100-basis point change in market interest rates would have increased or decreased interest expense on our Senior Secured Term Loan due 2026 by $4.9 million during the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Market risk on fixed-rate financial instruments. Included in long-term corporate borrowings at March 31, 2023 were principal amounts of $950.0 million of our First Lien Notes due 2029, $1,190.4 million of our Second Lien Notes due 2026, $400.0 million of our Odeon Notes due 2027, $98.3 million of our Notes due 2025, $51.5 million of our Notes due 2026, $125.5 million of our Notes due 2027, and $4.0 million ($4.9 million) of our Sterling Notes due 2024. A 100-basis point change in market interest rates would have caused an increase or (decrease) in the fair value of our fixed rate financial instruments of approximately $61.9 million and $(59.3) million, respectively, as of March 31, 2023.

Included in long-term corporate borrowings at March 31, 2022 were principal amounts of $950.0 million of our First Lien Notes due 2029, $1,508.0 million of our Second Lien Notes due 2026, $542.3 million (£147.6 million and €312.2 million) of our Odeon Term Loan due 2023, $98.3 million of our Notes due 2025, $55.6 million of our Notes due 2026, $130.7 million of our Notes due 2027, and $4.0 million ($5.2 million) of our Sterling Notes due 2024.

A 100-basis point change in market interest rates would have caused an increase or (decrease) in the fair value of our fixed rate financial instruments of approximately $109.5 million and $(104.1) million, respectively, as of March 31, 2022.

Foreign currency exchange rate risk. We are also exposed to market risk arising from changes in foreign currency exchange rates arising from our International markets operations. International markets revenues and operating expenses are transacted in British Pounds, Euros, Swedish Krona, and Norwegian Krone. U.S. GAAP requires that our subsidiaries use the currency of the primary economic environment in which they operate as their functional currency. If any international subsidiary was to operate in a highly inflationary economy, U.S. GAAP would require that the U.S. dollar be used as the functional currency. Currency fluctuations in the countries in which we operate result in us reporting exchange gains (losses) or foreign currency translation adjustments. Based upon the functional currencies in the International markets as of March 31, 2023, holding everything else constant, a hypothetical 10% strengthening of the U.S. dollar versus the average exchange rates of applicable currencies to depict the potential impact to net loss of changes in foreign exchange rates would decrease the aggregate net loss of our International theatres for the three months ended March 31, 2023 by approximately $1.5 million. Based upon the functional currencies in the International markets as of March 31, 2022, holding everything else constant, a hypothetical 10% strengthening of the U.S. dollar versus the average exchange rates of applicable currencies to depict the potential impact to net loss of changes in foreign exchange rates would decrease the aggregate net loss of our International theatres for the three months ended March 31, 2022 by approximately $7.1 million.

Our foreign currency translation rates decreased by approximately 7.3% for the three months ended March 31, 2023 compared to the three months ended March 31, 2022.

Item 4. Controls and Procedures.

- (a) Evaluation of disclosure controls and procedures.

The Company maintains a set of disclosure controls and procedures designed to ensure that material information required to be disclosed in its filings under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 is recorded, processed, summarized and reported within the time periods specified in the Securities and Exchange Commission's rules and forms and that material information is accumulated and communicated to the Company's management, including its Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, as appropriate, to allow timely decisions regarding required disclosure. The Company's Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer have evaluated these disclosure controls and procedures as of the end of the period covered by this Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q and have determined that such disclosure controls and procedures were effective.

- (b) Changes in internal control.

There has been no change in our internal control over financial reporting during our most recent calendar quarter that has materially affected, or is reasonably likely to materially affect, our internal control over financial reporting.

PART II-OTHER INFORMATION

Item 1. Legal Proceedings

Reference is made to Note 11-Commitments and Contingencies of the Notes to the Company's Condensed Consolidated Financial Statements in Item 1 of Part I of this Form 10-Q for information on certain litigation to which we are a party.

Item 1A. Risk Factors

Reference is made to Part I Item 1A. Risk Factors in our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2022, which sets forth information relating to important risks and uncertainties that could materially adversely affect our business, financial condition or operating results. Except as set forth below and the updates to liquidity provided herein, there have been no material changes to the risk factors contained in our Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2022.

There has been significant recent dilution and there may continue to be additional future dilution of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units, which could adversely affect the market price of shares of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units. The risks of future dilution must also be weighed against the risks of failing to increase our authorized shares of Common Stock, each of which could adversely affect the market price of shares of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units.

From January 1, 2020 through May 4, 2023, the outstanding shares of our Common Stock have increased by 467,112,312 shares in a combination of at-the-market sales, conversion of Class B common stock, conversion of notes, exchanges of notes, transaction fee payments, and equity grant vesting. On August 19, 2022, the Company issued a dividend of one AMC Preferred Equity Unit for each share of Common Stock outstanding at the close of business on August 15, 2022, which resulted in the issuance of 516,820,595 AMC Preferred Equity Units. From August 19, 2022 through May 4, 2023, we issued 478,585,818 AMC Preferred Equity Units in combination of at-the-market sales, exchanges of debt, private placement transactions, and equity grant vesting. As of May 4, 2023, there were 519,192,389 shares of Common Stock and 995,406,413 AMC Preferred Equity Units issued and outstanding. Pursuant to our strategy to enhance our liquidity, we intend to issue preferred equity securities or securities convertible into, or exchangeable for, or that represent the right to receive, shares of Common Stock. We may continue to issue additional AMC preferred Equity Units, or subject to effectiveness of the Charter Amendment Proposals, we may issue additional shares of Common Stock, in each case, to raise cash to bolster our liquidity, to refinance indebtedness, for working capital, to finance strategic initiatives and future acquisitions or for other purposes. We may also acquire interests in other companies, or other assets by using a combination of cash and shares of Common Stock or AMC Preferred Equity Units, or just shares of Common Stock. Additionally, vesting under our equity compensation programs results in the issuance of new shares of Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units and shares withheld to cover tax withholding obligations upon vesting remain available for future grants. Furthermore, the Settlement Payment (as defined below) may result in the issuance of 6,922,566 shares of Common Stock (on a post Reverse Stock Split basis) to settle the Shareholder Litigation. Any of these events may dilute the ownership interests of current stockholders, reduce our earnings per share or have an adverse effect on the price of our shares of Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units.

To provide for the authorization of a sufficient number of authorized and unissued and unreserved shares of the Common Stock into which the Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock (and, by virtue of such conversion, AMC Preferred Equity Units) can convert in full, the Company held a special meeting of the Company's stockholders on March 14, 2023 (the "Special Meeting") and obtained the requisite stockholder approval of the Charter Amendment Proposals. We are precluded from implementing the Charter Amendment Proposals until the resolution of the Shareholder Litigation. If the Charter Amendment Proposals are implemented, we will have additional authorized but unissued Common Stock that may be used in the future for at-the-market sales, exchanges of notes, private placement transactions, equity grant vesting and other dilutive issuances. These future issuances may be dilutive and result in a decline in the market price of our Common Stock.

If we are unable to effectuate the Charter Amendment Proposals, this will create substantial risks, which could have an adverse effect on the price of our shares of Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units, including:

- we will be limited in our ability to issue equity to bolster our liquidity and respond to future challenges, including if operating revenues and attendance levels do not return to the levels assumed;
- for future financing, we may be required to issue additional debt, which may be unavailable on favorable terms or at all, which would exacerbate the challenges created by our high leverage;
- we may be unable to issue equity in deleveraging transactions, including exchanges, redemptions or buy-backs of debt, which will limit our flexibility to deliver; and
- we may be unable to issue equity as currency in strategic transactions, including acquisitions, joint ventures or in connection with landlord negotiations, which may prevent us from entering into transactions that could increase shareholder value.

The Charter Amendment Proposals and the outcome of the Shareholder Litigation could cause extreme volatility in our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units and may adversely affect the market price of our Common Stock and/or AMC Preferred Equity Units.

At the Special Meeting, holders of our shares of Common Stock and holders of shares of Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock (which are represented by AMC Preferred Equity Units) on the books of Computershare Trust Company, N.A. as of the record date for the Special Meeting approved the Charter Amendment Proposals. However, as described below, the Company is currently precluded from implementing the Charter Amendment Proposals until the resolution of the Shareholder Litigation. Upon the effectiveness of the Charter Amendment Proposals, the AMC Preferred Equity Units will be automatically converted into shares of our Common Stock and the AMC Preferred Equity Units will cease trading and be delisted from the NYSE. The effect of the Charter Amendment Proposals, including the Reverse Split Proposal (as defined in Note 16-Subsequent Events in the Notes to the Consolidated Financial Statements under Part II, Item 8 thereof), upon the market price of our Common Stock cannot be predicted with certainty. Given the current disparity in the trading prices of the AMC Preferred Equity Units and the Common Stock, the conversion of AMC Preferred Equity Units into Common Stock could adversely affect the market price of the Common Stock. Conversely, if the Charter Amendment Proposals are precluded from being implemented due to the Shareholder Litigation or otherwise, the AMC Preferred Equity Units will not convert into shares of Common Stock, which could also adversely affect the market price of the AMC Preferred Equity Units, cause extreme volatility, make it difficult to raise additional equity without causing significant economic dilution to the Common Stock, which could also adversely affect the market price of the Common Stock. If the Company is precluded from effectuating the Charter Amendment Proposals, the Company may not make another proposal with respect to converting the AMC Preferred Equity Units into Common Stock, or it may be some time before any such proposal is made, although such determination will be made by the Company's Board at its sole discretion.

In addition, the results of reverse stock splits by companies in the past have been varied. There can be no assurance that the total market capitalization of our Common Stock after the Reverse Split Proposal (if implemented) (the "Reverse Stock Split") will be equal to or greater than the total market capitalization before the Reverse Stock Split or that the per share market price of our Common Stock following the Reverse Stock Split will increase in proportion to the reduction in the number of shares of Common Stock outstanding before the Reverse Stock Split. Further, the market price and trading volume of our shares of Common Stock has been subject to extreme volatility and implementation of the Charter Amendment Proposals, including the Reverse Stock Split, may increase such volatility, with a decline in the market price of our Common Stock after the Reverse Stock Split resulting in a greater percentage decline than would occur in the absence of a Reverse Stock Split.

On February 20, 2023, two putative stockholder class actions were filed in the Delaware Court of Chancery, captioned Allegheny County Employees' Retirement System v. AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc., et al., C.A. No. 2023-0215-MTZ (Del. Ch.), and Munoz v. Adam M. Aron, et al., C.A. No. 2023-0216-MTZ (Del. Ch.) and which have been subsequently consolidated into In re AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. Stockholder Litigation C.A. No. 2023-0215-MTZ (Del. Ch.) (the "Shareholder Litigation"). See Note 11-Commitments and Contingencies for additional information about the Shareholder Litigation. On April 2, 2023, the parties entered into a binding settlement term sheet to settle the Shareholder Litigation, which, among other things, provided that the parties would jointly request that the status quo order (the "Status Quo Order") in the Shareholder Litigation be lifted. Pursuant to the term sheet, the Company agreed to make a settlement payment to record holders of Common Stock as of the time (the "Settlement Class Time") at which the Reverse Stock Split is effective (and after giving effect to the Reverse Stock Split) of one share of Class A common stock for every 7.5 shares of Common Stock owned by such record holders (the "Settlement Payment"). The Company's obligation to make the Settlement Payment is contingent on the Status Quo Order being lifted and the Company effecting the Charter Amendment Proposals. The defendants agreed to the settlement and the payment of the Settlement Payment solely to eliminate the burden, expense, and uncertainty of further litigation, and continue to expressly deny any liability or wrongdoing with respect to the matters alleged in the Shareholder Litigation. On April 3, 2023, the plaintiffs filed an unopposed motion to lift the Status Quo Order. On April 5, 2023, the court denied the motion to lift the Status Quo Order. On April 27, 2023, the parties jointly filed the Settlement Stipulation which fully memorializes the settlement that the parties agreed to in the term sheet with the court. The court has set a hearing to consider approval of the settlement for June 29-30, 2023. Unless and until the court lifts the Status Quo Order, the Company cannot proceed with filing the amendment to the Company's certificate of incorporation to effect the Charter Amendment Proposals. Further, any settlement of the Shareholder Litigation is subject to court approval, which may substantially delay or prevent the conversion of AMC Preferred Equity Units into Common Stock. If the court does not approve a settlement of the Shareholder Litigation or if the plaintiffs are successful in obtaining relief restraining, delaying, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting the Charter Amendment Proposals from going into effect, this would likely adversely affect the market price of the AMC Preferred Equity Units, cause extreme volatility, make it difficult to raise additional equity without causing significant economic dilution to both the AMC Preferred Equity Units and the Common Stock, which could also adversely affect the market price of the Common Stock. Although the parties have agreed to a settlement of the Shareholder Litigation, any settlement of the Shareholder Litigation is subject to court approval, and accordingly the outcome of the Shareholder Litigation and any other similar future lawsuits, is uncertain.

The market prices and trading volumes of our shares of Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units have experienced, and may continue to experience, extreme volatility, which could cause purchasers of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units to incur substantial losses.

The market prices and trading volume of our shares of Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units have been and may continue to be subject to wide fluctuations in response to numerous factors, many of which are beyond our control. Because each AMC Preferred Equity Unit initially represents the right to receive one (1) share of our Common Stock, and subject to effectiveness of the Reverse Split Proposal, the right to receive one-tenth (1/10) of one share of our Common Stock, and is otherwise designed to bear equivalent economic and voting rights as described herein, the market price of the AMC Preferred Equity Units may be correlated with the market price of our Common Stock. The market prices and trading volume of our shares of Common Stock have experienced, and may continue to experience extreme volatility, which could cause purchasers of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units to incur substantial losses. For example, during 2022 and through May 3, 2023, the market price of our Common Stock has fluctuated from an intra-day low of $3.77 per share on January 6, 2023 to an intra-day high on the NYSE of $17.17 on March 29, 2022. The market price of our AMC Preferred Equity Units has fluctuated from an intra-day low of $0.65 on December 19, 2022 to an intra-day high of $10.50 on August 22, 2022. The reported sale price of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units on the NYSE on May 3, 2023, was $5.74 per share and $1.52 per share, respectively. During 2022 and through May 3, 2023, daily trading volume ranged from approximately 8,287,600 to 226,704,100 shares and the AMC Preferred Equity Units ranged from approximately 5,858,000 to 180,271,200.

We believe that the recent volatility and our current market prices reflect market and trading dynamics unrelated to our underlying business, or macro or industry fundamentals, and we do not know how long these dynamics will last. Under the circumstances, we caution you against investing in our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units, unless you are prepared to incur the risk of losing all or a substantial portion of your investment.

Extreme fluctuations in the market price of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units have been accompanied by reports of strong and atypical retail investor interest, including on social media and online forums. The market volatility and trading patterns we have experienced create several risks for investors, including the following:

- the market prices of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units have experienced and may continue to experience rapid and substantial increases or decreases unrelated to our operating performance or prospects, or macro or industry fundamentals, and substantial increases may be significantly inconsistent with the risks and uncertainties that we continue to face;
- factors in the public trading market for our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units may include the sentiment of retail investors (including as may be expressed on financial trading and other social media sites and online forums), the direct access by retail investors to broadly available trading platforms, the amount and status of short interest in our securities, access to margin debt, trading in options and other derivatives on our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units and any related hedging and other trading factors;
- our market capitalization, as implied by various trading prices, currently reflects valuations that are significantly higher than our market capitalization immediately prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, and to the extent, these valuations reflect trading dynamics unrelated to our financial performance or prospects, purchasers of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units could incur substantial losses if there are declines in market prices driven by a return to earlier valuations;
- to the extent volatility in our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units is caused, or may from time to time be caused, as has widely been reported, by a “short squeeze” in which coordinated trading activity causes a spike in the market price of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units as traders with a short position make market purchases to avoid or to mitigate potential losses, investors purchase at inflated prices unrelated to our financial performance or prospects, and may thereafter suffer substantial losses as prices decline once the level of short-covering purchases has abated;

- if the market price of our Common Stock and/or AMC Preferred Equity Units declines, you may be unable to resell your shares of Common Stock or AMC Preferred Equity Units at or above the price at which you acquired them. We cannot assure you that the equity issuance of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units will not fluctuate or decline significantly in the future, in which case you could incur substantial losses; and
- the Company paid approximately $13.1 million in cash to cover tax withholding liabilities upon vesting of awards under our Equity Incentive Plan in the first quarter of 2023. The Company withheld shares based upon elections by participants under the terms of the plan. The shares withheld had an equivalent value to the cash tax requirements for national, federal, state and local withholdings. Withheld shares were returned to the Equity Incentive Plan reserve.

We may continue to incur rapid and substantial increases or decreases in the market prices of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units in the foreseeable future that may not coincide in timing with the disclosure of news or developments by or affecting us. Accordingly, the market price of our shares of Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units may fluctuate dramatically and may decline rapidly, regardless of any developments in our business. Overall, there are various factors, many of which are beyond our control, that could negatively affect the market price of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units or result in fluctuations in the price or trading volume of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units, including:

- the ongoing impacts relating to the COVID-19 pandemic on our industry;
- actual or anticipated variations in our annual or quarterly results of operations, including our earnings estimates and whether we meet market expectations with regard to our earnings;
- our current inability to pay dividends or other distributions;
- publication of research reports by analysts or others about us or the motion picture exhibition industry, which may be unfavorable, inaccurate, inconsistent or not disseminated on a regular basis;
- changes in market interest rates that may cause purchasers of our shares to demand a different yield;
- changes in market valuations of similar companies;
- market reaction to any additional equity, debt or other securities that we may issue in the future, and which may or may not dilute the holdings of our existing stockholders;
- additions or departures of key personnel;
- actions by institutional or significant stockholders;
- short interest in our securities and the market response to such short interest;
- dramatic increase or decrease in the number of individual holders of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units and their participation in social media platforms targeted at speculative investing;
- speculation in the press or investment community about our company or industry;
- strategic actions by us or our competitors, such as acquisitions or other investments;
- legislative, administrative, regulatory or other actions affecting our business, our industry, including positions taken by the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS");
- investigations, proceedings, or litigation that involve or affect us;
- the outcome of the Shareholder Litigation;
- strategic actions taken by motion picture studios, such as the shuffling of film release dates;
- the occurrence of any of the other risk factors included or incorporated by reference in this Annual Report on Form 10-K; and
- general market and economic conditions.

Anti-takeover protections in our amended and restated certificate of incorporation and our amended and restated bylaws may discourage or prevent a takeover of our Company, even if an acquisition would be beneficial to our stockholders.

Provisions contained in our amended and restated certificate of incorporation and amended and restated bylaws, as amended, as well as provisions of the Delaware General Corporation Law delay or make it more difficult to remove incumbent directors or for a third-party to acquire us, even if a takeover would benefit our stockholders. These provisions include:

- a classified board of directors;
- the sole power of a majority of the board of directors to fix the number of directors;
- limitations on the removal of directors;
- the sole power of the board of directors to fill any vacancy on the board of directors, whether such vacancy occurs as a result of an increase in the number of directors or otherwise;
- the ability of our board of directors to designate one or more series of preferred stock and issue shares of preferred stock without stockholder approval; and
- the inability of stockholders to call special meetings.

Our issuance of shares of preferred stock could delay or prevent a change of control of our company. Our board of directors has the authority to cause us to issue, without any further vote or action by the stockholders, up to 50,000,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $0.01 per share, in one or more series, to designate the number of shares constituting any series, and to fix the rights, preferences, privileges and restrictions thereof, including dividend rights, voting rights, rights and terms of redemption, redemption price or prices and liquidation preferences of such series. The issuance of shares of preferred stock may have the effect of delaying, deferring or preventing a change in control of our company without further action by the stockholders, even where stockholders are offered a premium for their shares. As of March 31, 2023 there were 10,000,000 Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock shares authorized and 9,741,909 Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock shares issued and outstanding, 40,000,000 preferred stock shares remain available for issuance and 258,091 Series A Convertible Participating Preferred Stock shares remain available for issuance.

Our incorporation under Delaware law, the ability of our board of directors to create and issue a new series of preferred stock or a stockholder rights plan and certain other provisions of our amended and restated certificate of incorporation and amended and restated bylaws, as amended, could impede a merger, takeover or other business combination involving our company or the replacement of our management or discourage a potential investor from making a tender offer for our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units, which, under certain circumstances, could reduce the market value of our Common Stock and AMC Preferred Equity Units.

Our business depends on motion picture production and performance and is subject to intense competition, including increases in alternative film delivery methods or other forms of entertainment.

Our ability to operate successfully depends upon the availability, diversity and appeal of motion pictures, our ability to license motion pictures and the performance of such motion pictures in our markets. The most attended films are usually released during the summer and the calendar year-end holidays, making our business seasonal. We license first-run motion pictures, the success of which has increasingly depended on the marketing efforts of the major motion picture studios and the duration of the exclusive theatrical release windows. Poor performance of, or any disruption in the production of these motion pictures (including by reason of a strike or lack of adequate financing), a reduction in the marketing efforts of the major motion picture studios, the choice by distributors to release fewer feature-length movies theatrically, or the choice to release feature-length movies directly to video streaming or PVID platforms, either in lieu of or on the same date as a theatrical release, could hurt our business and results of operations. Conversely, the successful performance of these motion pictures, particularly the sustained success of any one motion picture, or an increase in effective marketing efforts of the major motion picture studios and extension of the exclusive theatrical release windows, may generate positive results for our business and operations in a specific fiscal quarter or year that may not necessarily be indicative of, or comparable to, future results of operations. As movie studios rely on a smaller number of higher grossing “tent pole” films there may be increased pressure for higher film licensing fees. Our loyalty program and certain promotional pricing also may affect performance and increase the cost to license motion pictures relative to revenue for admission. In addition, a change in the type and breadth of movies offered by motion picture studios and the theatrical exclusive release window may adversely affect the demographic base of movie-goers.

Motion picture production is highly dependent on labor that is subject to various collective bargaining agreements. The Writers Guild of America strike that began on May 2, 2023, has halted production, and may delay or otherwise affect the supply, of certain motion pictures. Studios are party to collective bargaining agreements with a number of other labor unions, and failure to reach timely agreements or renewals of existing agreements may further affect the production and supply of theatrical motion picture content.

Our theatres are subject to varying degrees of competition in the geographic areas in which we operate. Competitors may be multi-national circuits, national circuits, regional circuits or smaller independent exhibitors. Competition among theatre exhibition companies is often intense with respect to attracting patrons, terms for licensing of motion pictures and availability and securing and maintaining desirable locations.

We also compete with other film delivery methods, including video streaming, network, syndicated cable and satellite television, as well as video-on-demand, pay-per-view services, and subscription streaming services. We also compete for the public's leisure time and disposable income with other forms of entertainment, including sporting events, amusement parks, live music concerts, live theatre, and restaurants. An increase in the popularity of these alternative film delivery methods and other forms of entertainment could reduce attendance at our theatres, limit the prices we can charge for admission and materially adversely affect our business and results of operations.

Item 2. Unregistered Sales of Equity Securities and Use of Proceeds

On February 7, 2023, in connection with the consummation of the Forward Purchase Agreement, the Company issued to Antara 106,595,106 AMC Preferred Equity Units for an aggregate purchase price of $75.1 million (the "Forward Purchase APEs") and simultaneously purchased from Antara, on a private basis, $100 million aggregate principal amount of our 10%/12% Cash/PIK Toggle Second Lien Notes due 2026 (the "Exchange Notes") in exchange for 91,026,191 AMC Preferred Equity Units (together with the Forward Purchase APEs, the "Private Placement APEs") and cash equal to the accrued and unpaid interest on the Exchange Notes. The Company used the net proceeds from the sale of the Private Placement APEs to further deleverage and bolster liquidity.

The issuance of the Private Placement APEs was made in reliance on the exemption from registration provided by Section 4(a)(2) of the Securities Act.

Compensatory Arrangements of Certain Officers

On May 3, 2023, the Compensation Committee of AMC's Board of Directors, pursuant to its authority under the AMC Entertainment Holdings, Inc. 2013 Equity Incentive Plan (the "EIP") and in consultation with the Company's independent compensation consultant, adopted a Change in Control Policy (the "Policy") applicable to awards granted under the EIP. Adoption of the Policy impacts the rights of named executive officers ("NEOs") and other senior officers under outstanding and future EIP awards. Pursuant to the Policy, upon a Change in Control (as defined in the Policy), the vesting of all outstanding equity awards will be accelerated to occur immediately prior to the effectiveness of such Change in Control event. For the purpose of such accelerated vesting upon a Change in Control, outstanding awards subject to performance-based conditions will be deemed to have attained the applicable performance goals at the higher of (a) target, or (b) actual attainment at the time of the triggering event.

For purposes of the Policy, a Change in Control is defined as:

- (a) A person or coordinated group acquires more than 35% (by voting power) of the outstanding securities of the Company;

- (b) The election of the lesser of (i) three directors or (ii) 35% of the board of directors, in either case, who (x) are not nominees approved by a majority of the incumbent board or (y) are elected in connection with a proxy contest on behalf of a third-party; or
- (c) A business combination transaction unless (i) the Company's stockholders own more than 50% of the voting power in the surviving entity, (ii) no third-party acquires more than 35% (by voting power) in the surviving entity, and (iii) at least 65% of the governing body of the surviving entity consists of directors of the Company.

The Compensation Committee adopted the Policy in connection with a review of the overall severance benefits provided to executives under its compensation programs in the event of a Change in Control and determined that adoption of the Policy would minimize the risk of turnover in key positions during the pendency of a Change in Control transaction or in response to rumors of possible Change in Control events. No elements of executive compensation are impacted by the Policy other than awards under the EIP.

1 MS. HABELOW: Good morning, Your 2 Honor. Stephanie Habelow, Smith, Katzenstein &
3 Furlow, on behalf of objector, Glazer Capital. I
4 would like to introduce my cocounsel. Ximena Skovron, 5 of Abraham, Fruchter & Twersky. With the Court's 6 permission, she will be making the argument. Also 7 present is Mr. Mark Ort, a representative of Glazer 8 Capital. Thank you.

9 MR. HANRAHAN: I think, Your Honor
10 probably knows everyone at our table, including 11 Mr. Wagner of the Barroway firm, who has been here 12 many times before.

13 This is the settlement hearing in the 14 Protection One Shareholders Litigation. There are 15 three, or perhaps four, issues before the Court:
16 Class certification, the reasonableness of the 17 settlement, the request for attorneys' fees. And we 18 have an objection from only one stockholder, or at 19 least -- or an investor, I guess they refer to 20 themselves as.

21 With respect to the class
22 certification, we think that the -- as we set forth in 23 our brief, the requirements for class certification
24 have been met. And so we would ask that the Court

1 certify the class for purposes of the settlement.

2 The settlement itself, we think there
3 is no question that it is fair, reasonable and 4 adequate. The principal benefit of the settlement is 5 $3.25 million in cash, to be paid exclusively to the 6 former holders of the approximately 7.7 million public 7 minority shares. I note that the attorneys' fee that 8 we are applying for is not to be deducted from that 9 amount. That is paid separately and was negotiated 10 after we had negotiated the amount for the class.

11 THE COURT: The fee -- there is two 12 fees, though. Right? There is a load here, and then 13 there is a load in Kansas?

14 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, that is 15 correct. Mr. Brualdi is not applying for a fee in 16 this case, did not want to come to Delaware. He was 17 not working with us, nor we with him. And we did not 18 have any involvement with respect to any negotiations
19 of any fee with respect to Mr. Brualdi.

20 THE COURT: What is the total amount 21 sought for fees?

22 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, the total
23 amount that we were seeking is $1.4 million. And 24 that's the application that is before the Court.

1 THE COURT: Mr. Brualdi is what?
2 Seeking what?

3 MR. HANRAHAN: I may have to be 4 refreshed. I think it's 900-something thousand.

5 MR. MICHELETTI: We have agreed not to 6 oppose up to 900,000.

7 Ed Micheletti, by the way, on behalf
8 of Protection One and GTCR.

9 MR. HANRAHAN: The settlement amount
10 translates into roughly 40 cents per share. This 11 monetary recovery is unusual in several respects.

12 First, the acquiror was a third party, 13 not the controlling stockholders. It is rare for 14 there to be a monetary recovery in a third-party
15 transaction. Indeed, as I was reminded yesterday, 16 it's hard to get any relief in a transaction involving 17 a third party.

18 Second, the transaction was the result
19 of an active bidding process and arm's-length 20 negotiation. Again, it's unusual to achieve a 21 monetary recovery in such a transaction.

22 And third, Your Honor, as a result of 23 the settlement, the minority stockholders will 24 actually receive more for their shares than the

1 controlling stockholders did. The controlling 2 stockholders owned 70 percent of the company. That 3 certainly doesn't happen very often. So we think that 4 we have achieved a significant monetary benefit in 5 circumstances where that is not usually the case. The 6 disclosure benefits here were extensive and included 7 changes to the offer to purchase, the 14D-9, and the 8 notice of merger. We have detailed those disclosures 9 in our brief. And Exhibits 1, 4, 5 and 6 to the 10 affidavit that I submitted yesterday show that these 11 improved disclosures were the direct result of the 12 Delaware litigation.

13 Disclosure-based settlements seem to 14 have been somewhat in disfavor recently, but here 15 there are other benefits, including a monetary 16 recovery. And this is not a run-of-the-mill 17 disclosure settlement. The disclosures are 18 quantitatively and qualitatively far more significant 19 than the marginal disclosures that sometimes serve as 20 settlement consideration in the routine case. The 21 settlement also included an amendment to the merger
22 agreement, to extend the period for demanding 23 appraisal from 20 to 30 days, to provide that the 24 top-up option, top-up shares and note would not be

1 considered in an appraisal, and to change the interest
2 term of the note.

3 THE COURT: Well, what was the most 4 important disclosure, in your view?

5 MR. HANRAHAN: I think perhaps, Your 6 Honor, the unlevered free cash flows. That is 7 certainly one that the Court has in the past 8 indicated --

9 THE COURT: There were no cash flows 10 disclosed originally?

11 MR. HANRAHAN: We had the cash flows 12 disclosed in a table, and that had not been disclosed 13 before.

14 THE COURT: None of the cash flows had 15 been?

16 MR. HANRAHAN: I don't believe so,
17 Your Honor. And, Your Honor, I can, if the Court 18 wishes, go through the various disclosures, or maybe 19 identify them in our brief. But as the Court will 20 see, they were numerous, and they were about things 21 that are important. It would include, Your Honor, the 22 disclosure of the median levered beta, the identity of 23 the selected public companies that were used to 24 determine that beta in Lazard's analysis. The summary

1 of the precedent transactions analysis was 2 supplemented to include all precedent transactions
3 that were actually considered in rendering a fairness 4 opinion. The precedent transactions analysis was also 5 supplemented to include information respecting the 6 last-12-month multiple in the Brinks Home Security
7 transaction. As I mentioned, the unlevered free cash
8 flows that were considered by Lazard were disclosed.
9 The share price data for the 52-week period ending 10 January 19, 2010 was corrected. The -- there was a 11 disclosure that Lazard did not take the top-up option, 12 top-up shares and promissory note into consideration 13 in its analysis.

14 With respect to the top-up option, 15 there was disclosure of the number of shares that 16 could potentially be issued under the top-up option, 17 as well as the potential impact the top-up option, 18 top-up shares and promissory notes could have in an 19 appraisal proceeding, although as I mentioned, there 20 was also an agreement that as part of the settlement 21 -- and we ask the Court to approve -- that those would 22 not be considered in an appraisal.

23 There was disclosure about the merger
24 process and J.P. Morgan's role. Those were detailed

1 at page 20 of our brief. There were various 2 disclosures regarding --

3 THE COURT: What is the concern about 4 these top-up options in appraisal. I'm not sure I get 5 it. The price of the option is set as part of the 6 transaction that gives rise to the appraisal
7 proceeding. So the theory is that the appraisal 8 petitioner gets harmed how?

9 MR. HANRAHAN: Well, Your Honor, I
10 think the question is whether the transaction -- the 11 top-up transaction would actually be completed prior 12 to the consummation of the merger. Fair value is 13 measured in appraisal as of the time of the merger.
14 So the question would become, given the Delaware case 15 law -- Cede, etc. -- which says that anything that is 16 part of the operative reality of the company prior to 17 the merger is to be -- is considered in an appraisal
18 action. Of course, the statute says all relevant 19 factors. We can -- we can -- I have heard both sides 20 of the debate on it. But certainly --

21 THE COURT: The reason why people get 22 top-up options is to complete sweeping out everybody.

23 MR. HANRAHAN: That is the reason,
24 although yesterday's Cogent opinion suggests that even

1 when the top-up option is exercisable in a situation 2 where it would not get you to 90 percent, that that 3 may still be okay. You know, if it's sort of 4 ally-ally in free on top-up options, I think we will 5 have some interesting developments --

6 THE COURT: I have no idea what that 7 even means.

8 MR. HANRAHAN: If a top-up option
9 could be for all available authorized shares that are 10 available for issuance, with consideration for a note 11 that is going to disappear in the transaction, and 12 never be repaid, if it's exercisable in whole or in 13 part on multiple occasions and there aren't -- you -- 14 I know the rationale, as Your Honor says: Oh, it 15 allows for a short-form merger.

16 THE COURT: I mean, the reality of why 17 it's called a top-up option was that was really what 18 it was. It was typically done to do -- was to top 19 somebody up to where they could do the 253 back end, 20 and do it all. I just don't understand how it becomes 21 part going concern value of the company. And if in 22 the appraisal, then -- it's either not part of the 23 going concern, the company -- because this is all 24 essentially part and parcel of the transaction that

1 gave rise to appraisal in the first instance. I
2 admit, frankly, Cede is just filled with bizarre
3 things. I mean, it's just -- it's a 20-year -- it's a 4 generation of incredibly goofy things it gives to the 5 law. I have no problem saying that. I mean, it takes 6 deeper minds -- maybe Kant could come back to life and 7 explain some of the logic in it.

8 But the point is you are supposed to 9 value the company as it was, setting aside the merger.
10 If the top-up merger -- if the top-up option is 11 designed essentially to effectuate the completion of 12 the transaction, I understand it has multiple steps.
13 But the point is, the price is set in the merger. If 14 you are actually proving, for example, in the 15 appraisal that the fair value of the company was less 16 than the deal, then you can make, also, the argument 17 that you have to value that as a derivative claim. If 18 you want to take another theory, you have to value as 19 a derivative claim in the merger. You prove the fair 20 value of the company -- right? -- is 80 rather than 21 69. The deal was 69. The top-up option is at 69.
22 Then you just proved that there was a derivative claim
23 worth 11 bucks per share. You add that to the value, 24 and you are right where you were before.

1 MR. HANRAHAN: Well, Your Honor, of 2 course, you would have a question of whether you would 3 have a derivative claim there, but you would also have 4 the question of the -- the assumptions seem to be that 5 the consideration was going to be worth the amount of 6 the deal price. But when it's an unsecured note --

7 THE COURT: Yeah. See that is the 8 other thing. The unsecured note that is supposed to 9 hang out there for a millisecond, or something like 10 that?

11 MR. HANRAHAN: Well, Your Honor, that 12 is one of the questions about whether this is a -- but 13 that is not why we are here today. I'm happy to talk 14 to Your Honor about --

15 THE COURT: The problem is: How much
16 benefit do I put on this? I understand, you know -- 17 lawyers are among my favorite group of people, and it 18 gets you all to think about these fascinating 19 hypotheticals, but that's what they seem like.

20 MR. HANRAHAN: Well, Your Honor, the 21 -- you know, the top-up option here was very real.
22 You had the front end of the transaction locked up, 23 because you had support agreements with stockholders
24 who owned 70 percent.

1 THE COURT: No. No. No.

2 MR. HANRAHAN: You had the top-up on 3 the back end. Where does that leave a stockholder?
4 It's basically, "You are gone. You are history. You 5 get no vote."

6 THE COURT: That's what I'm saying.
7 What I don't understand is -- it's either -- I just 8 really don't get the gap. You know, if you look at 9 the spirit of Cede -- I'm not going to talk about the 10 logic of it, because I don't believe there is any real 11 logic to it. But if you talk about the spirit of Cede 12 on the second-step thing, it was "nail the acquiror."
13 You had this situation. You got the benefit from a 14 genuine third-party acquiror's business plan during 15 the period, because they didn't effectuate the 16 second-step merger. Also, during that case, there was 17 a period of months in which the argument became that 18 the acquiror's business plan, which -- Perelman's 19 business plan, as I remember it -- that that became 20 the operative reality of the company, and you were 21 subjected to it as a stockholder.

22 In the context of a top-up option, as 23 here, the idea is get the top-up option, do your 24 merger, you would be done, and people get appraisal.

1 It's not clear what any new business plan is. The 2 only distorting effect is going to be arguing, "We 3 have to look at the capitalization of the company, and 4 now includes these shares at that price." Right? And 5 then we have to say, "Oh, it's a separate 6 transaction," even though it's in a contract. Right?
7 Isn't it in the merger agreement?

8 MR. HANRAHAN: The top-up option?

9 THE COURT: Yeah.

10 MR. HANRAHAN: Yes, Your Honor. Yes.
11 Just as any option would be reflected in an agreement 12 or an instrument.

13 THE COURT: I agree.

14 MR. HANRAHAN: That would be part of

16 THE COURT: It's like the silliness if 17 somebody tried to argue that you couldn't litigate
18 your case, or something, that your only remedy was a 19 253 remedy in a situation like this. I think the 20 Court would have problems with that, because it's all 21 under one merger agreement, essentially. Right?

22 MR. HANRAHAN: Yes, Your Honor. But 23 it's basically a -- I mean, the fact that, for 24 example, if you had an asset sale -- there are cases

1 beyond Cede that have dealt with -- I think we have 2 cited some of them in our brief, where there was an 3 asset sale that was part of -- under the merger 4 agreement, but it occurred prior to the merger. The 5 Court said, "Well, that was the operative reality on 6 the date of the merger."

7 Now, it may be that Your Honor would 8 disagree with that or the Supreme Court would disagree
9 with that. Don't know. But there is that case law 10 out there. You have a statute that says all relevant 11 factors, and you have this option.

12 THE COURT: Is one relevant factor 13 common sense?

14 MR. HANRAHAN: Excuse me? Well, Your 15 Honor, that, you know --

16 THE COURT: I would never think in -- 17 in the wildest dreams that you would hit an appraisal
18 petitioner -- you would reduce the value of any award 19 to an appraisal petitioner because of a top-up option 20 included in a -- in the merger agreement that gave 21 rise to the appraisal triggering event.

22 MR. HANRAHAN: Well, Your Honor, you
23 know, if there are provisions in the merger agreement 24 for the cash-out of other options, are those part of 1 the operative reality? Or is that not part of the 2 operative reality because that is a transaction that 3 is pursuant to the merger agreement; that is, where 4 they take options that aren't vested and --

5 THE COURT: The issue there -- the 6 reason why, as a practical matter, you are probably 7 going to have to deal with them in an appraisal is 8 because under the existing contracts, they would have 9 a right to merger consideration, and they would -- the 10 delta would be whatever it was under their exercise 11 price and acceleration. There might be things like 12 that. You know? There might be some issues if you 13 started including people who weren't otherwise
14 entitled to have their options turned into cash. I 15 suppose that could be a litigable issue in an 16 appraisal.

17 A 253 merger -- calling it
18 independent, when it is the logically intended 19 consequence of the specific terms of the 251 merger
20 agreement, just seems a bit odd to me. And I don't 21 really get the fear. If anybody should fear
22 appraisal, it tends to be respondents. You know, you 23 get these things where, pretty much, jump balls go to 24 the petitioners. You have the theoretical ability to 1 take a control premium when you are a controller in 2 Delaware, but the appraisal standard takes that away.

3 You have got the Cede thing, which I get you, how it 4 supports you in a sort of nominal way, but really what 5 it says is even in a situation where there was really 6 no expectancy of the business plan, you get the 7 upside.

8 Here, I don't know. I would put on a 9 lot of padding if I issued a ruling nailing an 10 appraisal petitioner over a top-up option, because the 11 ball would bounce off Dover so quickly, that opinion, 12 and could come back and hit me. I would want to be 13 well padded, because the impact would be dangerous to 14 my person. I really have no doubt it would be a 15 really rapid remand.

16 MR. HANRAHAN: Perhaps, Your Honor.
17 We will see what -- maybe we will see, some day, what 18 Dover has to say about the top-up options. But in any 19 event, Your Honor, the bottom line is we can debate
20 over the merits of the claim. The fact of the matter 21 is we obtained relief with respect to it, and 22 including a guarantee. You say, well, the respondents 23 are really the one that has the risk, but the top-up 24 option is not a risk to the respondent, because the

1 impact is likely to be, particularly if you have a 2 promissory note as the consideration -- it's going to 3 be the deal price or less. It's not going to be more.
4 So it doesn't impact them. It would potentially 5 impact someone seeking appraisal. And while we -- 6 Your Honor may have a view that, "Oh, the risk is 7 slight," from the standpoint of a stockholder 8 evaluating appraisal, with all its other downsides, 9 the delay, the cost, and what have you. Then you 10 throw in one more element of uncertainty, and it 11 really just adds to: "This is not a workable remedy 12 for the stockholders."

13 We address that with our claims.
14 Maybe we did the right thing, then. If Your Honor 15 thinks so little of the top-up claims, well, we got 16 money instead. That was our primary focus.
17 Certainly, that is a benefit.

18 THE COURT: That is obviously the 19 thing that is obviously most impressive.

20 MR. HANRAHAN: I mean, the defendants
21 here agreed to expedited proceedings. They pushed 22 settlement negotiations. They agreed to pay more 23 money, make extensive disclosures, and to amend the 24 merger agreement. We think that is certainly a

1 package of benefits that makes the settlement fair, 2 reasonable and adequate.

3 And, Your Honor, the only objector
4 that we have actually, I think, is a further 5 recommendation for the settlement, because they are 6 not here to protest the settlement. They are just 7 here to claim that they should get some of the 8 proceeds for shares that they apparently bought on the 9 morning of June 4 or did not have in their brokerage 10 account at the close of business on June 3rd.

11 So, Your Honor, we would ask that the 12 Court approve the settlement.

13 THE COURT: On the -- do you want to 14 hear from the objector first, before you respond?

15 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, I'm happy
16 to address the objection now, if the Court would like.

17 THE COURT: Sure.

18 MR. HANRAHAN: The objection is from 19 an entity that has not shown it was even a stockholder
20 at the time this suit was commenced or when the MOU
21 was entered into. It appears, basically, Glazer
22 Capital attempted to buy into our settlement. Now it 23 suggests that I and members of my firm were 24 professionally discourteous and incompetent. I think

1 that comes with a little ill grace. We worked hard to 2 frame strong claims, we litigated vigorously, and we 3 obtained a good settlement, apparently before
4 Protection One was even a gleam in the eye of Glazer 5 Capital. The party objection is meritless and it's 6 cynical, Your Honor.

7 At the Court's request, we have 8 pointed out, and defendants have pointed out, in 9 written submissions numerous grounds for denial of the 10 objection. It's late. It's speculative. But I would 11 like to take a few moments to highlight a number of 12 things.

13 First, they submit, yesterday, a
14 letter from UBS that says that with respect to 2002, 15 899 shares, they were tendered into the tender offer.
16 And presumably, UBS will pay Glazer Capital the 17 settlement consideration with respect to those shares.

18 THE COURT: Was this letter delivered 19 to chambers?

20 MR. HANRAHAN: It was an attachment to 21 the motion for leave to file affidavits that the 22 objectors filed yesterday, Exhibit B to that.

23 THE COURT: Is there a cover letter
24 that indicates that it came to me?

1 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, I don't 2 have that in my binder, but I do not know how it came 3 in, or whatever. We received it the end of the day 4 yesterday. It has these proposed affidavits, one of 5 which is largely hearsay, from supposed conversations 6 with UBS. But they attach this letter.

7 It says, well, certain shares were 8 tendered. So you assume that UBS is going to hand 9 over whatever settlement consideration they receive to 10 Glazer Capital. But that is a matter that is between 11 Glazer Capital and its broker.

12 THE COURT: What they fault is the 13 original notice. They say -- the original public 14 disclosure of the settlement, it said what?

15 MR. HANRAHAN: What they are saying is 16 that the MOU said "holders," instead of "record 17 holders." Now --

18 THE COURT: What is a beneficial
19 holder? Never heard of that.

20 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, that is 21 part of the issue.

22 THE COURT: You hold -- in some 23 metaphorical --

24 MR. HANRAHAN: In their objection,

1 they conveniently go from the term "holders" to 2 "beneficial owners." And they obviously, from the 3 objection, Your Honor -- they don't understand what a 4 record holder is, because they say --

5 THE COURT: The original MOU said --

6 MR. HANRAHAN: Holders.

7 THE COURT: Holders as of what date?

8 MR. HANRAHAN: As of the close of 9 business on the day before the tender offer was to 10 close. That is where the June 3 -- close of business 11 on June 3rd came from, because the tender offer was 12 then going to close.

13 THE COURT: What you are saying is 14 folks who wanted to play the market by buying into the 15 stock should have been following the deal attentively 16 if they wished to know when the tender offer was going 17 to exactly close? They should have made sure they 18 were a holder of record, or that they bought from 19 somebody, a broker, and said, "You better make sure we 20 get the proceeds"?

21 MR. HANRAHAN: Yeah. Your Honor, that 22 is basically it. And that's what we explained to 23 Glazer Capital when they called our firm three times
24 during the summer. We patiently explained to them why

1 the June 3rd date had been selected. It was not 2 arbitrary at all. It was basically the close of 3 business on the last date before the tender offer was 4 going to close. And what they say is: "Well, if you
5 purchased on June 1, 2010 or June 2, 2010, you, quote, 6 do not technically become a record holder until days 7 later, after June 3rd, 2010." They obviously don't 8 understand what a record holder is, because an 9 investor like Glazer Capital, who purchases shares
10 through a broker, is never going to become a record
11 holder. Their complaint about it going to record 12 holders doesn't make any sense, because they wouldn't 13 be a record holder, anyway.

14 You know, they -- they are obviously 15 referring to the three-day rule for settlement of 16 trades. Well, we just don't think the Court can get 17 into refereeing.

18 THE COURT: What you are saying is 19 there also has to be an end at some point in time?

20 MR. HANRAHAN: Yeah.

21 THE COURT: It's not set up, really, 22 for -- there is a benefit to being an arb, which is -- 23 the argument is that you would be buying from people 24 who aren't even focused on the settlement, but you

1 have to do it smartly.

2 MR. HANRAHAN: There is nothing that 3 they submitted that says they couldn't have bought the 4 shares sooner. Basically, they wanted us to redo the 5 settlement so that they could get every last dime out
6 of their arbitrage scheme. They do it, Your Honor, 7 based strictly on speculation. They say if the 8 settlement distribution is made to record holders, 9 theoretically, an investor selling shares on June 1, 10 2010 could receive both the benefit of the higher 11 trading price occasioned by the settlement, as well as 12 the settlement proceeds itself."

13 You go through their objection, it's 14 just one thing after another: "Well, if this, then 15 this could happen." They are talking about not only 16 some theoretical possibility as to what some 17 unidentified other investor might get -- and then it's 18 all based on their incorrect understanding of record 19 ownership. There is just nothing to this. And then 20 they say, Your Honor, they want clarification that the 21 settlement funds be distributed equitably to the 22 investors and shareholders who held the economic 23 interest in Protection One as of the date of tender or 24 the cash-out date. They don't say how Your Honor

1 would ever do that.

2 I mean, this is a class action that 3 was brought on behalf of stockholders with respect to 4 their stock. They say they want the proceeds
5 equitably distributed. They don't say what that 6 means. They say the settlement should go to both 7 investors, who apparently are something different than 8 shareholders. Well, this suit was about shareholders.
9 They are apparently saying that they were an investor, 10 that they may not have owned the shares. And then 11 they want the -- who held the economic interest in 12 Protection One, to try to get the Court down into the 13 gears of that, with some depository and broker and 14 other relationships, and nominees and so on, it would 15 be a nightmare. You have got short sales. We cite 16 the Digex case, where I was retained to come in and 17 ask the Court that a -- someone who had engaged in 18 short sales should be entitled to participate in the 19 settlement proceeds. And Chancellor Chandler
20 basically told me what I thought he would tell me:
21 "Sounds like a problem between your client and a 22 broker." That's what we have here.

23 So there certainly was, Your Honor, no 24 discourtesy or refusal to help by my firm at all. We

1 went patiently through why the June 3rd date, how the 2 thing operated. The problem is they just didn't like 3 the answer. Yes, we did tell them, "If you don't like 4 the answer, your recourse could be to object," and 5 they have done that. Unfortunately for them, Your 6 Honor, their objection is without merit and ought to 7 be denied. Let me --

8 If Your Honor will turn to attorneys'
9 fees?

10 THE COURT: Yeah. Tell me. Here is 11 my only -- I will be candid -- my only real concern.
12 I do -- you shouldn't have any doubt I'm going to -- 13 there is really no doubt in my mind that there are 14 benefits to the settlement, that I'm going to approve 15 the settlement, that I place the highest value on the 16 cash part of it. It's refreshing to see a cash 17 component to a settlement. I don't place -- I just 18 don't -- I mean, reasonable minds may differ, 19 Mr. Hanrahan. I just -- this top-up thing, it just 20 really doesn't move me. But I give credit, if none of 21 the projections were -- if this essentially was what 22 justified the only disclosure of projections, I give 23 credit to that. I give lesser credit to some of the 24 other tweaking around banker's, you know, multiples

1 and stuff.

2 I really wouldn't even blanch in a
3 second if I were just approving your fee, honestly.
4 What I'm looking at, though, is a total fee of 5 2.3 million on a benefit -- you know, the most 6 tangible monetary benefit to the class is the 7 3.25 million. Even if I were to say, "Value the rest 8 at another million," which I have got to say is fairly 9 -- you know, arguably generous. I will give myself 10 some leeway. I know you may feel differently. Even 11 if I were to move it to two and you were at 12 5.25 million, you would be talking about a total 13 requested award -- this is what I want you to talk to 14 me about, is the relationship between this and Kansas, 15 and what my job is today -- of, you know, 2.3 million, 16 you know, upwards of 40 percent of the value of the 17 benefit in fees. And you know, who did what between 18 you and the Kansas folks? How do I take that into 19 account?

20 I also understand the defendants'
21 dynamic. You guys put it sort of elegantly, that the 22 pendency of the Kansas case complicated the 23 negotiations. Sort of, what went on? Who did what?

24 MR. HANRAHAN: The first thing I would

1 note is because the fees are paid separately --

2 THE COURT: I get that.

3 MR. HANRAHAN: I think you would have 4 to -- in assessing any percentage of the benefit, if 5 you would, you would have to add in the amount of 6 attorneys' fees before you did the percentage. I 7 mean, that is if it was coming out of the fund 8 itself --

9 THE COURT: No. You have got to be 10 careful adding it in. Then people would just pay 11 10 million in attorneys' fees, three to the class so 12 the total benefit would be 13 million. That is the 13 role of the Court in the site of litigation. It's not 14 our favorite role. It's probably one of our least 15 favorite roles. We do have to act as a superintendent 16 of the representative litigation process, which is a 17 very important one, to make sure, frankly, it's 18 working as intended. Although it is good that it 19 doesn't come out of the benefit, the reality is it 20 arguably could have been part of the benefit.

21 MR. HANRAHAN: Well, Your Honor --

22 THE COURT: I'm not saying that you -- 23 I trust, entirely -- I'm not implying in the least 24 that the negotiation of the fee did not follow the

1 thing. You get my point. From the defendants'
2 perspective, money is money. And money that will 3 resolve a matter, you know -- any part of this fee 4 could have been part -- put into what was given to the 5 stockholders and just deducted from the fee. The 6 total load would have been fine.

7 What I'm saying is I have got a 8 situation here where, honestly, I have been -- I have 9 been pretty consistent that with respect to, for 10 example, very big achievements by plaintiff's 11 lawyers -- I don't do a declining percentage. I have 12 never gotten that. I have understood that there are 13 federal judges who say, "If you take it all the way to 14 trial and get $250,000,000, we ought to cut your 15 percentage, because you have got $250 million, and you 16 took 35 depositions." That has always been to me 17 where, frankly, you would do the highest possible 18 percentage of the recovery, because the person took 19 the most risk. They clearly justified it.

20 So when I -- I'm glad to see a 21 monetary benefit, but honestly, when I'm looking at a 22 fee -- a total fee load that appears to be 40-some 23 percent of the benefit, I just am asking about that 24 and about who did what, because it does trouble me.

1 As I said, if it was just you for the 1.4, which is 2 obviously more than 33 percent of the monetary
3 benefit, but with the settlement and all, I wouldn't 4 have any trouble. But when I get to 2.3 million, I'm 5 being very candid with you. I don't place as much 6 benefit on therapeutic things. A lot of the 7 disclosure stuff wasn't that central. I'm giving you 8 credit, a lot of credit, for the disclosure of the 9 projections, but we are still at a fairly -- frankly, 10 it's 2.3 million in fees compared to 3.25 million in 11 tangible benefits, and then the rest.

12 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor has given me
13 much to address.

14 THE COURT: Right.

15 MR. HANRAHAN: Let me try to do it, if 16 I can. It may not be in the right order, or whatever.

17 THE COURT: Take your time.

18 MR. HANRAHAN: I will try to 19 address --

20 THE COURT: I wanted to give you what 21 was on my mind.

22 MR. HANRAHAN: First of all, in terms 23 of the percentage, my point is you can say our fee is 24 1.4 million of 3.25 million, but in fact, it's not

1 coming out of that. I don't think we should be 2 penalized both ways. We did, in fact -- and there is 3 a record, if you look at the documents attached to my 4 affidavit. This is why I put them in. I thank Your 5 Honor for having given us an alert to say, "You ought 6 to be prepared to explain this," because I wanted it 7 to be clear to Your Honor how this settlement got 8 negotiated. You can track it through the documents.
9 We suggested that there were things that the 10 controlling stockholders were getting that ought to be 11 given back, and that that money ought to go to the 12 minority stockholders. They didn't like that idea.

13 We then said, "We want a 14 4 million-dollar payment to the minority
15 shareholders." Now, maybe somebody would say, "You 16 should have asked for eight." These are the judgments 17 you make in a situation as to what is realistic, where 18 the company -- there had been a bidding process and 19 what have you. And so that's what the -- the offer we 20 made. That got negotiated to 3.25 million. There was 21 not any discussion whatsoever about attorneys' fees, 22 as to whether we were getting one or what it was going 23 to be, much less what was going to happen in Kansas.

24 THE COURT: Who negotiated that? You?

1 MR. HANRAHAN: Yes, Your Honor.
2 Largely with Mr. Welsh.

3 THE COURT: What was the role of 4 Kansas guys?

5 MR. HANRAHAN: I'm not aware of any 6 role. The defendants can speak to that. I can say we 7 weren't in touch with Mr. Brualdi at all. We were 8 litigating our claims.

9 THE COURT: The MOU just -- so when 10 you reached agreement on the 3.25 million, and then 11 the disclosures --

12 MR. HANRAHAN: And the same thing with 13 the disclosures. That is why I put this information 14 in. Your Honor will see. First of all, a lot of the 15 disclosures, they are items that were specifically 16 raised in our complaint. And then there is a 17 settlement proposal that I made in writing that 18 identified the areas of the disclosures. And those 19 got negotiated over. We had phone calls where we were 20 told we couldn't get any monetary recovery. We stuck 21 to our guns, and we got something, and we got the 22 disclosures. They are also reflected where the 23 defendants' drafted up a 14D-9. There is an exhibit 24 that shows my handwritten changes, and the changes

1 that I gathered from my cocounsel, that ended up in 2 the 14D-9. We did similarly with the notice of 3 merger. We are the ones who raised disclosure in 4 that, as well.

5 A lot of the disclosure claims related
6 to things like the top-up option that weren't raised 7 in Kansas. A lot of the relief addressed things that 8 were not raised in Kansas. That is the point of my 9 affidavit. That's what we are here for, is for an 10 attorneys' fee based on the benefits that we conferred 11 in this litigation. I'm not here to carry water for 12 Mr. Brualdi. Nor do I think we should be penalized 13 for having brought the action in Delaware.

14 THE COURT: No. No. That's what I 15 said. I wanted to get a sense. For example, when the 16 MOU was entered, was Mr. Brualdi part of the 17 conversations that gave rise to the MOU?

18 MR. HANRAHAN: There were 19 conversations between defendants and him, because they 20 wanted to round him up. That is just the unfortunate 21 reality today, is that in virtually every case, now, 22 there are firms who will file cases on behalf of 23 stockholders of Delaware corporations in any forum
24 other than Delaware. That seems to be a continuing

1 trend. And frankly, given some recent decisions, it 2 may be a continuing trend further on. And that is the 3 situation we find ourselves in. But when firms do
4 file in Delaware and you achieve a substantial result, 5 if you are then penalized with respect to the fee 6 award because some other firm filed somewhere else and 7 the defendants -- you know, I understand their 8 position.

9 THE COURT: What you are saying is 10 sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof, and my 11 judicial colleague in Kansas ought to be assessing 12 what benefit, if anything, that action created. What 13 you are saying to me, though, in an appropriately 14 modest way, is from your perception, you guys were 15 doing all the heavy lifting?

16 MR. HANRAHAN: Yeah. He -- there was 17 an order in Kansas saying he could participate in our 18 discovery. He was entitled to half the time in our 19 depositions. Of course, we had no say in that. But 20 we weren't litigating the case with Mr. Brualdi. I'm 21 not going to comment on his thing, because what is in 22 front of Your Honor --

23 THE COURT: Was there a motion to 24 expedite in this case?

1 MR. HANRAHAN: Yes, there was, but the 2 -- we did not have to litigate.

3 THE COURT: The defendants agreed?

4 MR. HANRAHAN: The defendants agreed
5 to expedition, and there was expedited litigation.
6 There was 66,000 pages of documents that were 7 produced. There were depositions that were taken. We 8 were juggling around depositions as we were --

9 THE COURT: Did you take the 10 depositions with Mr. Brualdi?

11 MR. HANRAHAN: Did they show up?

12 MR. WAGNER: Your Honor, they were 13 there, but they did not take the depositions, I don't 14 believe.

15 THE COURT: They didn't ask any 16 questions?

17 MR. WAGNER: That is my recollection,
18 Your Honor.

19 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, we are here
20 for a settlement of this Delaware litigation, and with 21 a fee request for the benefits that were conferred in 22 this litigation. I think that is what is really in 23 front of Your Honor. I think Your Honor has 24 acknowledged that the benefits that we have conferred

1 do justify a $1.4 million fee. So we would ask that 2 the Court grant that fee.

3 Thank you, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Why don't I hear from the 5 objector, and then, Mr. Micheletti, if you and 6 Mr. Hanrahan have anything to say in response to the 7 objection, do that.

8 MS. SKOVRON: Good morning, Your 9 Honor.

10 THE COURT: Good morning.

11 MS. SKOVRON: Ximena Skovron, for 12 Glazer Capital LLC.

13 Your Honor, the motion for leave to 14 file the affidavits of Paul Glazer and Mark Ort should 15 have been delivered to your chambers this morning. It 16 was filed late yesterday evening -- or afternoon, I 17 should say -- as a result of our rather, I should say, 18 Herculean efforts to reach out to UBS, and obtain an 19 affidavit from them supporting their representation to 20 us that they actually had not received notice of this 21 settlement.

22 Your Honor, I have the motion here,
23 along with the affidavits.

24 THE COURT: You know, I will trust

1 you, that that's what it says. So you are saying that 2 UBS wasn't on the mailing list?

3 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, I'm not sure
4 exactly what happened. I actually just want to make 5 clear that I'm not -- our client -- my client is not 6 disputing that due process was not -- due process
7 procedures were not followed here.

8 THE COURT: You were in your original 9 objection. Are you withdrawing that?

10 MS. SKOVRON: We are not withdrawing 11 that, but we are stating that we did not receive 12 notice.

13 THE COURT: Why would you have 14 received notice?

15 MS. SKOVRON: From UBS. Because UBS
16 itself did not receive notice. UBS was a record
17 holder.

18 THE COURT: I get that. I'm sure UBS
19 was a record holder.

20 MS. SKOVRON: Yes, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Are they on the list of 22 record holders? Does anybody have the list?

23 MR. MICHELETTI: Your Honor, we don't 24 have the list with us presently, but we do have an

1 affidavit from our mailing agent that said that the 2 mailing -- the notice was mailed to all record owners 3 as of --

4 THE COURT: Why isn't UBS here making
5 the objection?

6 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, I have no
7 idea.

8 THE COURT: UBS is pretty big. Ever
9 consider the possibility they didn't take it 10 seriously, or they lost it, or that it's somewhere in 11 their -- what is their big building in Connecticut?
12 It's somewhere on an elevator, riding up and down in 13 the corner, because it dropped off a mail cart?

14 MS. SKOVRON: Absolutely, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: How is the world supposed 16 to work for clients like yours. Life is -- America is 17 full of ingenious ways to make money without creating 18 absolute -- without creating any societal value. And 19 people make products. What is the value of a Chia 20 Pet? Who knows? I guess it's amusing.

21 But your client is here. They were 22 not the object of this lawsuit. Nobody in the world
23 invented corporate lawsuits for after-arriving people
24 who arbitrage settlements and buy -- I guess buy stock

1 on the basis that maybe other people don't know that 2 there is a cash -- essentially, kind of a dividend
3 coming. Right? That's what your client did. Right?

4 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, my client -- 5 yes.

6 THE COURT: Your client could not have 7 filed this lawsuit. Right?

8 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, my --

9 THE COURT: When this -- when the MOU
10 was entered, your client had no standing to be a 11 plaintiff?

12 MS. SKOVRON: I believe that we -- my 13 client purchased approximately 200,000 shares prior to 14 the June 1st dates. I'm not exactly sure what the 15 precise date is, but it was in May. In addition, Your 16 Honor, if I may point out, the memorandum of 17 understanding, that was the only document available to 18 the public concerning the terms of the settlement and 19 was filed on May 21st. That document does not state 20 --

21 THE COURT: That's what I said.

22 MS. SKOVRON: -- holders of record.

23 THE COURT: Your client filed -- your 24 client bought a beneficial interest in shares on

1 June 1st?

2 MS. SKOVRON: Yes. That's correct.

3 THE COURT: Okay. I just asked you a
4 question. Your client could not have even been a 5 plaintiff in the lawsuit as of the time the MOU was 6 entered. Right?

7 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, the honest
8 answer to that question is I don't know. Here is why.
9 There are two blocks of stock. One block of stock is 10 not at issue here. My client purchased that back in 11 May. Another block of stock --

12 THE COURT: Back in May. When was the 13 MOU announced?

14 MS. SKOVRON: The 21st, I believe.

15 THE COURT: Was it before or after the 16 MOU was announced?

17 MS. SKOVRON: My client has a
18 representative here, Mark Ort.

19 THE COURT: If you don't know your 20 case well enough, it's not the time to have someone 21 who is not a lawyer stand up. But the point is: At 22 the wrongs that were challenged in the complaint, your 23 client wasn't a beneficial owner at the time the 24 complaint was filed, right, or any of the expedited

1 discovery was going on?

2 MS. SKOVRON: With respect to the 3 shares purchased on June 1st and 2nd, you are correct, 4 Your Honor. He was not a beneficial owner.

5 THE COURT: When was the case filed?

6 MR. HANRAHAN: May 6th, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: May 6th. There is a
8 possibility that your client bought in May 5th, or 9 May 4th or May 3rd or May 2nd or May 1st?

10 MS. SKOVRON: Yes, Your Honor. I
11 apologize I don't have this. The partner on this 12 case, Jeff Abraham, is --

14 holder?

15 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, that is an 16 excellent question. I'm not sure myself. I will tell 17 you this. In the MOU that was filed on May 21st, 18 holders of record are not actually referenced. It's, 19 rather, holders as of a particular date. A term 20 "holders of record" was not used.

22 holder?

23 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, I don't 24 know. I know --

1 THE COURT: What would holder -- what 2 do you hold -- in what way, shape or form does it lead 3 you to believe that the payment under the settlement 4 would not be made to the holder of the stock?

5 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, it is our 6 understanding from UBS that UBS does not consider our 7 client to be a beneficial owner until the trade 8 settles, which in this case did not occur until 9 June 4th and June 7th.

10 THE COURT: That is between you and 11 UBS.

12 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, we 13 respectfully disagree. We understand that the case
14 law here in the Chancery Court of Delaware --

15 THE COURT: How many brokers -- that 16 is a UBS role? That is a UBS rule?

17 MS. SKOVRON: It seems to be a rather 18 widespread rule in the industry, yes, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Your clients would not be 20 aware of any such rule, right, because they are arbs?
21 They have no idea, right, when their broker considers 22 a trade be settled?

23 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, I believe
24 that they were acting on the language of the MOU,

1 which, if I may read to you, does not speak in terms
2 of holders of record.

3 THE COURT: I'm going to ask you one
4 last time. You tell me. Right? You filed all these 5 late -- you filed a late objection when your client 6 clearly knew about the settlement, clearly has been 7 monitoring it, and when you are, frankly, horsing
8 everybody around by saying you didn't get mail 9 notice -- no. Listen. This is the Delaware Court of 10 Chancery. This is not the People's Court. It's not a 11 made up court on television. It's not a 12 prekindergarten. It's the big leagues.

13 There is a lot of people who have put 14 a lot of time and attention into this, and this 15 process is taken seriously. I'm not being 16 discourteous to you, but when someone horses around 17 when they are arbing a case, when they have got the 18 MOU, when they have spoken to counsel, and then they 19 claim they can file a late objection because they 20 didn't get mail notice, when they never were a record 21 holder -- that is a word that starts with an F. In 22 the law, it is still an F word. That is called 23 frivolous.

24 So you are lucky that you are here,

1 but don't try my patience when you have already wasted
2 the time and money of other people. So I'm indulging
3 because I have a role in this process. I'm indulging 4 your merits argument. But don't tell me there was any 5 excuse for the late filings, that there is any excuse
6 for your clients not dealing with UBS before today, 7 that you couldn't have delivered an affidavit,
8 frankly, to my chambers in a timely manner.

9 So "holder" -- this is the question.
10 This is the last question I ask you if you don't give 11 me a real answer. What did you think it means? And 12 when you answer, don't make stuff up. Tell me a 13 rational reading of the law or any situation whereby 14 the term "holder" misled your client.

15 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, when the 16 decision was made to purchase the stock -- if I may 17 actually address --

18 THE COURT: No.

19 MS. SKOVRON: -- the Court's concern?

20 THE COURT: You can address "holder."
21 The idea is that it was somehow misleading because it 22 didn't say "record holder," and that the people at 23 Glazer Capital, who go around making these kind of 24 opportunistic buys, were mizzled, and they were

1 confused, and so they went out and made a transaction 2 in which they would not, by any dint of any meaning on 3 the part of anybody in this room who has ever done
4 corporate or securities law, think they became a 5 holder. They somehow did. You are the lawyer
6 standing before me. I guess you have been moved pro
7 hac vice. Right?

8 MS. SKOVRON: Yes, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: So you are going to tell 10 me a reasoned legal and factual argument why that was 11 misleading, because that is what you have us all here 12 today engaged in. That's what we are waiting to hear.

13 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, when my 14 client made the decision to purchase the stock, he 15 believed he acquired an economic interest in the stock 16 as of the date of the purchase.

17 THE COURT: Okay. And that's what I'm 18 asking you: How did that make him, or it, or the 19 seven different funds it is -- I mean, by the way, you 20 didn't follow the rules, as you know. You didn't make 21 an objection on behalf of the specific people you even 22 claim to be the beneficial owner, and identify them by 23 fund, and do all the things that the notice clearly 24 said, which should have been, frankly, gate-kept by

1 Delaware counsel, although the first one I guess was 2 just filed by Mr. Glazer, or something like that, with 3 the request for his attorneys' fees.

4 What you just said doesn't answer my 5 question. Holder. How would it make them a holder?

6 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, as of the 7 date that my client made the decision to purchase the 8 stock, he acquired -- he believed he had acquired an 9 economic interest. And besides --

10 THE COURT: He did acquire an 11 interest.

12 MS. SKOVRON: The 200,000 other shares
13 in that period.

14 THE COURT: He did acquire an economic 15 interest.

16 MS. SKOVRON: And we believe --

17 THE COURT: How -- no. This is a very 18 precise question. You have alleged that the public 19 notice that was given, by leaving out the word 20 "record," put your clients off their game. And so 21 what I'm asking is: Is that real, or are your clients
22 just upset because they made a really bad business 23 decision at the end, and they didn't deal with the 24 broker right, and now they are hassling with UBS, and

1 they want to hold up a settlement and hope somebody 2 throws some money their way, just to go away?

3 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, that is a
4 completely valid question, and I understand the 5 Court's concerns. Besides the language in the MOU, 6 there are other bases for the objection. The MOU was 7 not the crux of our argument. And in fact, my client
8 owns approximately five percent of the minority 9 shareholders' interest in this company. And 10 additional --

11 THE COURT: Five percent of the 12 company after the settlement?

13 MS. SKOVRON: Yes, Your Honor. In 14 addition, 200,000 other shares were being traded on 15 the same dates that my client traded. Now, if it is 16 unclear whether these people are included in the 17 class --

18 THE COURT: It's not unclear. If they 19 are not record holders -- there is no lack of clarity.
20 The only issue -- I'm going to conclude that there was 21 no basis, legal or factual, for your client to 22 conclude that it was becoming a holder.

23 MS. SKOVRON: Okay, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Right?

1 MS. SKOVRON: I am willing to agree
2 with you on this point, but I want --

3 THE COURT: You don't have to agree
4 with me on any point. We have been sitting here for 5 about ten minutes when there has been a single 6 question pending to you, which you have done
7 everything other than answer, because -- may I suggest 8 because you know that you cannot answer it in any way 9 that is plausible, because there is no such thing as a 10 concept that anybody has ever heard of, of a 11 beneficial holder.

12 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, I think you 13 misunderstand, with all due respect, the basis of our 14 objection. I would like to -- if nothing else, I 15 would like to emphasize to the Court that this 16 objection was absolutely not made in bad faith. The 17 circumstances of the objection are as follows:

18 THE COURT: Wait a minute. I'm just 19 -- just so the record is clear --

20 MS. SKOVRON: If you wish to stay --

21 THE COURT: No. Wait a minute. If 22 you wish to withdraw your argument -- I mean, you are 23 standing here. I assume the objection before me is 24 the one filed by Mr. Glazer. Right?

1 MS. SKOVRON: By Mr. Glazer, yes.

2 THE COURT: Bottom of page two.

3 MS. SKOVRON: Yes.

4 THE COURT: "The MOU states that 5 holders" -- quote/unquote, holders -- "would receive a 6 pro rata distribution of settlement proceeds rather 7 than the pro rata distribution being restricted, as 8 now appears to be the case, to holders of record."

9 So I'm not making this up. This was 10 your argument. Okay? And when I asked you why the 11 term "holders" is misleading, and you cannot answer it 12 or will not answer it, you know, to then -- if you are 13 changing the argument, tell everybody. That can be 14 another late objection.

15 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, with all due 16 respect, again, because of the speed and the -- with 17 which we had to act on this matter -- because again, I 18 have to emphasize my client did not receive notice of 19 this settlement in any form. He did -- of the 20 objection date. He did speak to --

21 THE COURT: Your client --

22 MS. SKOVRON: -- counsel for 23 plaintiff, and he was given a Crash Course 101 in 24 settlement proceedings. But he was not -- he was not

1 advised of the objection date.

2 THE COURT: Did he ask --

3 MS. SKOVRON: He did not receive 4 notice until September 27th, Your Honor.
5 September 27th. UBS --

6 THE COURT: Did he ask?

7 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, my client is 8 not an attorney. He didn't know that there is such 9 thing as a notice of pendency.

10 If I might say, it seems inequitable
11 to me that everybody here is saying that the primary 12 focus of this lawsuit is the money, and yet nobody 13 cares where it ends up, including in the pockets of 14 people, 400,000 shares -- that is 200,000 over and 15 above my clients -- are not going to receive the 16 monetary benefits of the settlement, even though they 17 were actually purchasers. They purchased before June 18 -- the June 3rd cutoff date. It seems inequitable to 19 me, and it seems that this Court, acting in equity, 20 has the obligation, or at least the discretion, to 21 include those shareholders who rightfully belong in 22 the class within -- within the group that will be 23 receiving the monetary payment.

24 My client is a merger arbitrageur. I

1 admit that. I find nothing wrong with that, Your 2 Honor. Provides valuable liquidity to the market.

3 THE COURT: Who said there is anything
4 wrong with it?

5 MS. SKOVRON: Seems to be --

6 THE COURT: Wait a minute. You are 7 saying things -- honestly, you are saying things which 8 are utterly implausible. Is the Mr. Glazer here?

9 MS. SKOVRON: Mr. Glazer is not here.

10 THE COURT: Oh, no. It would be 11 interesting to see whether Mr. Glazer would actually 12 take an oath and swear that he bought five percent of 13 a public company's stock on the basis that a 14 settlement was coming, which means he is making 15 decisions, he is arbiting -- don't interrupt me. He is 16 arbiting legal proceedings, reads an MOU, which is the 17 basis for his thing. Right? We don't have his 18 testimony about his view of a holder, as opposed to a 19 beneficial holder. But he has no idea that there will 20 be a settlement notice. He never checks into the 21 settlement proceeding. He calls the attorneys, but he 22 never asks, because he is a lawyer -- he is not a 23 lawyer. He sits around and he waits until 24 September 27th, and then he finds out, and all of a

1 sudden, it's a rush, and he never knew any of it. He 2 wasn't monitoring.

3 I mean, that is fine. That is the 4 kind of stuff -- before I believe something like that,
5 I either turn into a character played by Jim Nabors, 6 or I see somebody survive cross-examination on that 7 after full discovery, because right now, that makes 8 absolutely no sense.

9 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, as to the 10 motivations and the business decisions that my client 11 makes, you are right. I absolutely can't speak to 12 that. It would be for Mr. Glazer. And in fact, it 13 was -- Mr. Ort was the one who placed those trades. I 14 don't know if I will offer him up for testimony, but 15 his affidavit is before the Court, in which he 16 obtained the letter from UBS.

17 Again, I would like to say that this 18 issue does affect a number of shareholders, and it 19 would seem to me that the actual distribution of 20 moneys in this case to these persons should be an 21 issue that the Court and, indeed, the litigants are 22 concerned with. Here is why. Those people who 23 purchased on June 1st and June 2nd, are they releasing 24 the claims in this lawsuit or not? I think not,

1 because they cannot release without receiving 2 consideration. And if so, then what is this -- are we 3 going to be facing challenges to this rather good 4 settlement, that we would agree is --

5 THE COURT: Thank you. Thank you. Do 6 you have a citation for that, for your now -- your 7 cosmic challenge to the settlement process in the 8 world? You do understand -- I mean, really, you have 9 cited no law.

10 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, I have law.
11 I would be happy to send it to the Court. I was 12 trying to answer the Court's question. I am 13 endeavoring to answer the Court's question. If you 14 will excuse me, I received this case two days ago.
15 The partner in this case is having his first child 16 this week and was unable to attend, Mr. Abraham, but 17 he would have liked to have been here.

18 THE COURT: I'm going to say something 19 to both of the lawyers involved here, you and your 20 Delaware counsel. Let's just consider this a law 21 school -- like a continuation of law school. I have 22 heard enough. This is not the way things should 23 happen here, not at all.

24 I expect Delaware counsel, however new

1 to the bar, to consult with senior members of the 2 firm. I believe probably both of you have been put in 3 a very bad position by more senior members of the bar.
4 You are saying astonishing things. They are 5 astonishingly at odds with the settled legal 6 authority. To tell me you are now going to hand me up
7 precedent, when I required the lawyers, on short 8 notice, to object to -- to respond in writing to your 9 late objection, is disrespectful to them; it's 10 disrespectful to this Court.

11 I read my mail. I am prepared for 12 this hearing. I didn't have a chance to read your 13 late flurry of stuff yesterday. Absent some new 14 decision that you have, indicating that settlements
15 have to deal with every beneficial holder in the world 16 -- you got one from yesterday?

17 MS. SKOVRON: No, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: Okay. Then this is 19 nothing new. And it would not -- you would not be 20 able to settle federal securities cases, you would not 21 be able to settle anything, if folks like your clients
22 were going to get to come in and talk all about the 17 23 people they dealt with.

24 You want to talk about equity? Your

1 clients were buying, probably, largely on the 2 assumption that there were people miscalculating the 3 benefits of the settlement. I'm not faulting them.
4 They don't have any obligation. But you are coming in 5 here with -- and suggesting some sort of cosmic 6 unfairness by following regular orders when the 7 marketplace got the information, when your clients
8 acted on it, using the fact that they monitor 9 information more closely than other people. They made 10 trades, but they didn't do their job. I don't want to 11 hear --

12 I have heard you out. I want to hear 13 from Mr. Micheletti and Mr. Hanrahan. What I would 14 say is late-filed notices, with implausible excuses, 15 no update -- you are withdrawing an argument, not 16 really replacing it with another argument, not 17 answering my question, not delivering something even 18 to me yesterday -- perhaps it's downstairs for me 19 before this hearing. I have no idea. I don't know 20 that we got a call this morning to indicate it was 21 coming.

22 Frankly, the lawyers in the room
23 shouldn't have had to be worried about after-hours 24 deliveries last night in this case, when they might

1 have even -- they might even have a family life or a 2 moment off, or they may have already prepared for the 3 hearing. So let me hear from Mr. Micheletti and 4 Mr. Hanrahan.

5 Thank you.

6 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor, if I may 7 just add one more thing?

8 THE COURT: I have heard more than I
9 ever typically hear on late objections.

10 MR. MICHELETTI: Your Honor, Ed
11 Micheletti, of Skadden Arps, on behalf of Protection 12 One and GTCR. We submitted a brief in opposition to 13 the objection. We are happy and content to rest on 14 the arguments in that brief.

15 THE COURT: Do you know -- you don't 16 know anything about this UBS thing?

17 MR. MICHELETTI: Well, I'm not aware 18 of any affidavit submitted by UBS to the Court. What 19 I am --

20 THE COURT: You didn't receive it,
21 either?

22 MR. MICHELETTI: I didn't receive an 23 affidavit from UBS. That's correct. What I did 24 receive was an affidavit -- or a motion for leave to

1 file affidavits from Glazer Capital, one of which was 2 an affidavit of an individual named Mark Ort, who 3 apparently had a conversation with somebody in the 4 prime brokerage unit of UBS; reports on that 5 conversation; and then purports to attach a letter 6 from UBS to Mr. Ort that said that UBS did not send -- 7 did not send Glazer a copy of the notice.

8 THE COURT: It says UBS did not send.
9 Does it say they did not receive?

10 MR. MICHELETTI: It does not say that.
11 The letter from UBS does not say that. That's 12 correct.

13 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.
14 Mr. Hanrahan?

15 MR. HANRAHAN: Unless Your Honor has 16 questions, I don't have anything further.

17 THE COURT: I will deal with the 18 objection first. It's late, inexcusably late. I 19 don't even know, frankly -- it doesn't -- for 20 something that is late, you would think it was late 21 and it would otherwise meet the requirements for an 22 objection. It does not. If you want to operate
23 through multiple entities, which apparently Mr. Glazer 24 does, then there should be proof that each of the 1 entities that is objecting is a stockholder. There is 2 not.

3 It would probably be better, I guess,
4 to add the word "record." We don't have it in the 5 musical context as much, so it has a quaint thing. So 6 we will put "record holder." A member of the bar came 7 here prepared for an argument and was asked about the 8 principal objection made by Mr. Glazer. Could not 9 answer. I don't fault her. It's because there is no 10 plausible argument.

11 The fact that the word "record" was 12 not in there and it simply said "holder" does not 13 mislead anyone at all. To be a holder you have got to 14 be -- they talk about beneficial owners. You are not 15 a holder. You don't have a certificate. Entities 16 like Glazer ought to -- they play this game. And 17 there is nothing in any of the responses to the 18 objections or anything the Court says -- I want to be 19 clear about this -- that implies there is something 20 wrong with what Glazer does. But Glazer is arbing the 21 market. Frankly, it is trying to make opportunistic 22 profits off of its perceived knowledge of the 23 settlement, which it believes it has got a better 24 knowledge than the people who are selling.

1 Well, when you are going to play that 2 game, you need to actually understand the rules.
3 There is nothing new under the sun about the fact that 4 record holders are who are defined as the class. It
5 is, frankly, insulting to the Court and disrespectful
6 to all counsel involved, including the plaintiff's 7 counsel, who worked hard to get a good result in this 8 case, to suggest that somebody is turning their back 9 on their duty to the stockholders by not rooting -- by 10 not representing Glazer Capital in its battle with the 11 record holder or its broker. If Glazer wants to sue 12 UBS, it knows where UBS is. It has buildings. It has 13 UBS right on the side of all its buildings. That's 14 what it should do. But to imply that what the Court 15 or the plaintiffs in the case are supposed to do is to 16 go out and deal with everybody who made trades during 17 the class period and do a summing up is just nuts.

18 This case is about stockholders, as 19 Mr. Hanrahan says. Glazer Capital didn't even have 20 standing to bring this suit. At best, it might have 21 bought something before the settlement, but it doesn't 22 even know. This suit is about protecting the 23 stockholders of Protection One. Glazer came in. It 24 is entitled to do whatever it does from the record

1 holder. The settlement is actually clear. I have no
2 doubt that Glazer Capital pulled the actual settlement 3 agreement when it became available. And it says in 4 there beneficial -- "the record holders are 5 responsible for dealing with beneficial holders with 6 respect to the proceeds."

7 Glazer may still get paid. But the 8 point is the settlement proceeds will be paid to the 9 class. The class has been clearly defined. There was 10 some temporal ambiguity about when the tender offer 11 would close, but that is not even what Glazer is 12 talking about. The reality is the initial publication 13 of the MOU put everyone on notice that they had be 14 careful. The law particularly does not exist for 15 people who want to buy in at the last nanosecond of a 16 class period and then come and make sure they get 17 their harvest.

18 You will read every corporate law
19 treatise that is ever written, and you will find not 20 any dilation of that -- on that principal concern, 21 that the late-arising arb, who can't get its game 22 together professionally, should be the object of 23 special protection. I actually think if society 24 thought about it, people would probably be more

1 interested in exploring whether there were people who 2 sold to Glazer Capital in ignorance of the settlement.
3 But the law doesn't put on Glazer Capital the 4 responsibility to be forthright with the people from 5 whom it buys. It doesn't. They don't have to say
6 anything. They can buy on markets. That is cool.

7 MS. SKOVRON: Your Honor --

8 THE COURT: Do not interrupt my 9 ruling. But what Glazer -- when Glazer Capital comes 10 into this court and suggests that everyone needs to 11 protect it from its own ignorance and its own failure 12 of diligence, that is what Emeril Lagasse would say is 13 one-sided cooking, one-sided-tasting food. Glazer 14 gets to buy. It's not an issue. It doesn't have to 15 tell people, "By the way, there is a dividend coming.
16 By the way, if you calculate this right, you probably 17 want to hold." No. It goes out on the market, buys 18 five percent of a public company, but then because -- 19 society should temper harshness. Right? We have a 20 free lunch program. We have Head Start. We have 21 other sorts of things. What we should do is make sure 22 there is a subsidy for Glazer Capital at the end, so 23 to the extent it makes mistakes by not reading 24 documents, by not actually securing record status, by

1 not acting sufficiently in advance of the tender offer
2 closing to make sure that if it wanted to be a record 3 holder, it would become a record holder, there should 4 be a subsidy, and we should have investigation costs,
5 and everybody should go after UBS and hold up a class
6 action. That is crazy.

7 The law is settled. You are allowed 8 to base a settlement on record holders. That is what 9 we look at. When you deal -- when you are a 10 beneficial owner and you deal with a broker, you are 11 at your own risk. If you want to get notice of a 12 settlement, you become a record holder.

13 Here, I have every reason to believe 14 Glazer had full knowledge of what was going on. If it 15 failed to read documents or to ask for them when it 16 spoke to counsel, that is on it. This is a frivolous, 17 late objection. And I hope to never receive another 18 one of its kind.

19 With respect to the settlement, I'm 20 happy to approve the settlement. There are multiple 21 benefits; principally, the monetary relief, which is 22 substantial in light of the case. There is a lot of 23 enhanced disclosure. I give the heaviest weight to 24 the cash flow projections. As I said, I'm not -- I

1 haven't caught the top-up wave, Mr. Hanrahan, but I
2 acknowledge it's there.

3 With respect to the fee -- I'm 4 obviously going to certify the class as a 5 quintessentially appropriate situation, to certify the 6 class.

7 With respect to the fee, I will 8 acknowledge I am troubled. And I guess I won't ask 9 Mr. Micheletti to comment, because he has got a duty 10 not to object. My perception from Mr. Hanrahan, and 11 from my own perception of the case, is that the firms 12 here in Delaware did all the heavy lifting, for the 13 most part, and that the fee that they are requesting 14 is entirely reasonable in light of the substantial 15 benefits they achieved.

16 I am concerned about the $900,000, but 17 I think Mr. Hanrahan -- there is much to what he says 18 about the fact that he and his colleagues here from 19 the Barroway firm should not be penalized by the fact 20 that someone else brought litigation. Really, the 21 appropriate thing is for the judge in Kansas to 22 exercise her independent discretion. And if she 23 believes that an award of the full $900,000 to the 24 Brualdi firm, in light of the total benefits and in

1 light of the record before her, including the fact 2 that it seems that the Delaware lawsuit really drove 3 the results, and the efforts of the Delaware lawyers 4 is what brought about the benefit, then -- it's really 5 up to her to exercise her independent judicial 6 discretion and to address that fee.

7 I'm not going to reduce the fee sought
8 by the Delaware plaintiffs. I'm confident that it -- 9 looked at in comparison to the benefits that were 10 achieved, and the fact that they -- and I give credit 11 that an actual monetary result was obtained. I'm 12 going to award the full amount requested by the 13 Delaware plaintiffs.

14 If Mr. Hanrahan has an implementing 15 order, I will be happy to sign it.

16 MR. HANRAHAN: Your Honor, the order
17 and final judgment does not reference the objection, 18 but I think Your Honor has already ruled on that on 19 the record.

20 THE COURT: Yes. When was the 21 scheduling order entered?

22 MR. HANRAHAN: August 9, 2010.

23 THE COURT: That goes on the first 24 blank. Right?

1 MR. HANRAHAN: That's correct, Your
2 Honor.

3 THE COURT: You guys decided you
4 wanted to have as authentic an order as you could, 5 with my indecipherable handwriting, and -- it's 1.4
6 inclusive of expenses? Is that right?

7 MR. HANRAHAN: That's correct, Your
8 Honor.

9 THE COURT: If the order is in two 10 different colored inks, make nothing of it other than 11 that the one that was blue ceased to write in the 12 middle of me doing it. It has no -- it's no comment 13 on the subject matter. So you will be able to get 14 that order.

15 Thank you, counsel, and everybody have 16 a good day.

1 THE COURT: Welcome, everyone. Thank 2 you for being here.

3 I'm happy to start with introductions.
4 It probably would make sense to do so from the defense
5 side, but given how long we've been together, I'm also 6 happy just to get straight to it.

7 Mr. Lafferty, why don't you go ahead.

8 ATTORNEY LAFFERTY: Good morning,
9 Your Honor. I'm here on behalf of Mr. Skaggs and 10 Mr. Smith, and with me at counsel table are Mr. Savitt 11 and Mr. Yavitz from Wachtell Lipton, my partner 12 Ryan Stottmann as well.

13 In the back we have my partner,
14 Lauren Neal, and a summer associate, Apoorva Gokare, 15 who I believe saw you speak at the University of Iowa.
16 This is her first time in a courthouse today.

17 THE COURT: Oh, great. Well, thank 18 you all for being here, and particularly Ms. Gokare.

19 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Good morning,
20 Your Honor. Marty Lessner from Young Conaway on 21 behalf of TransCanada. With me at counsel table is 22 Brian Massengill from Mayer Brown, my partner
23 James Yoch, and Kevin Rickert.

24 THE COURT: Great. Thank you all for

1 being here as well.

2 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Good morning,
3 Your Honor. Ned Weinberger from Labaton Sucharow on 4 behalf of the plaintiffs. With me at counsel table:
5 Jeroen van Kwawegen from Bernstein Litowitz Berger &
6 Grossman; Gregory Varallo as well.

7 At rear counsel table, Brendan
8 Sullivan from Labaton Sucharow and Marie Degnan from 9 Ashby & Geddes. I believe Steve Jenkins is in the 10 back. I can't quite see him.

11 ATTORNEY JENKINS: Good morning,
12 Your Honor.

13 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Just briefly,
14 Your Honor. I discussed with Mr. --

15 THE COURT: I want to say thank you to 16 you all for being here as well. I appreciate it.

17 Please go ahead.

18 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: I discussed
19 order of presentation with Mr. Lessner. What we 20 discussed was that, with the Court's permission, 21 Mr. van Kwawegen would present the settlement, I would 22 then follow him, present the motion for class 23 certification, and Mr. Lessner would then respond to 24 both of those motions.

1 Of course, if the Court has a
2 different preference, happy to go in a different 3 order.

4 THE COURT: Yes, I want to go in a
5 different order.

6 I want to do the motion for class
7 certification first.

8 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Certainly,
9 Your Honor.

10 Again, for the record, Ned Weinberger
11 from Labaton Sucharow on behalf of plaintiffs. I'll 12 try to be relatively brief on this motion. I'll start 13 with our affirmative motion then turn to TransCanada's 14 opposition. I know the Court is very familiar with 15 the standards on a motion for class certification.
16 The case needs to have met the four Rule 23(a) 17 factors: numerosity, commonality, typicality, and 18 adequacy. The case also needs to satisfy at least one 19 Rule 23(b) condition.

20 And just very briefly, let me tick
21 through the Rule 23(a) factors.

22 Numerosity, hundreds of millions of 23 shares in the proposed class. That element should be 24 easily satisfied.

1 In terms of commonality, every member
2 of class was owed the same duty of loyalty and care.
3 Every member of the class received the same 25.50 per 4 share in the merger consideration.

5 In terms of typicality, we are not 6 asserting any -- plaintiffs are not asserting any 7 claims that are unique to them nor are plaintiffs 8 subject to any unique defenses. Plaintiffs are 9 passive institutions that have held stock at close and 10 are actively seeking to recover for themselves and 11 other former public stockholders of Columbia.

12 In terms of adequacy, plaintiffs 13 retained competent counsel. I don't think that's in 14 dispute. Plaintiffs have no conflicts. And we would 15 submit, as we do in our papers, that the partial 16 settlement that Mr. van Kwawegen will present is 17 really objective evidence that Mississippi and Detroit 18 are advancing in protecting the interests of 19 Columbia's former stockholders.

20 THE COURT: That's all correct. And 21 what you're saying is consistent with how we've been 22 doing these things for decades. But the defendants 23 have chosen to advance some novel arguments. They've 24 drawn on a lot of different sort of a hodgepodge of 1 case law, a grab bag: if you could find a class

2 certification decision from any context whatsoever, 3 they've cited it. And they've done so to advance to 4 really one major theory, which is this cross-ownership 5 concept.

6 Why don't you engage with that 7 because, as you suggested, what you've just said is 8 pretty much straight down the middle in terms of how 9 we've been doing these things for decades.

10 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Sure,
11 Your Honor. I think that's an accurate 12 characterization of their opposition. It is a bit of 13 a grab bag.

14 I'm going to address these points. I
15 think what I would first say -- a small point, but I 16 think an important one -- sort of what I've just laid 17 out on 23(a) -- I didn't get into 23(b) -- but with 18 what's laid out in our papers, we would submit we 19 easily have made a prima facie case under 23(a) and 20 23(b), such that we've met our burden.

21 As a result, the burden then shifts to 22 my friends to establish -- to come forward with some 23 legal argument, something so unusual about the facts 24 of this case that it would compel the Court to take

1 the unusual step of denying certification.

2 And on this first argument, the 3 cross-holdings argument, it's answered by Urdan. It
4 is answered by the Delaware Supreme Court's decision
5 in Urdan, Urdan v. WR Capital Partners, which is a 6 decision that's not even cited in their opposition to 7 the motion for class certification. And the reason 8 it's not cited, as we point out in our brief, they 9 effectively -- I don't know a better way of putting 10 it -- copied it, cribbed, lifted, a scorched-earth 11 grab bag opposition that Mr. van Kwawegen and I faced 12 in Straight Path. Doesn't address the controlling, 13 binding Delaware Supreme Court precedent confirming 14 that these are claims that inhere with the shares, 15 such that the characteristics of who, in fact, held 16 those shares is largely irrelevant, absent some 17 unusual or unique circumstances that just simply are 18 not present here.

19 And, you know, Your Honor will note, 20 you know, we cite all the -- we cite the orders. We 21 cite the precedent in our brief. My friends have not 22 been able to point to a single decision of this 23 court -- transcript order, opinion -- where the court 24 so much as contemplated excluding cross-holders from

1 the class.

2 And there are many reasons. The most 3 fundamental reason is, as Urdan explains, this concept 4 of claims traveling with the shares, inhering in the 5 shares. Had my friends read our reply in 6 Straight Path, they would have seen we laid out these 7 arguments very plainly, cited the relevant 8 authorities.

9 If my friends had looked at the 10 transcript from the class certification hearing in 11 Straight Path, they would have seen Vice Chancellor 12 Glasscock giving the shortest, the absolute shortest 13 of shrift, to the cross-holdings argument that 14 Mr. Lessner is advancing here.

15 They advanced in Straight Path the 16 same ascertainability argument that my friends are 17 advancing here. We actually have to go into the 18 class, remove all the stockholders who actually -- 19 who, in fact, held shares of TransCanada stock.
20 Vice Chancellor Glasscock responded to that argument 21 at the hearing on the class certification in 22 Straight Path.

23 So it doesn't make any difference -- 24 quote, from page 133 of his transcript, "it doesn't

1 make any difference because the claim inheres to the 2 stock, and the fact there was other stock owned by 3 someone that may have benefited from the faithless act 4 but [who] didn't participate in it [it's] immaterial".

5 There's no allegation of TransCanada
6 or -- not TransCanada, of Detroit or of Mississippi 7 having participated in any of the wrongdoing. My 8 friends advance this argument on the objection to the 9 settlement that Detroit should be excluded and holders
10 of TransCanada stock should be excluded for the same 11 reason that we've stipulated to excluding defendants 12 Skaggs and Smith from the settlement. They're 13 obviously being excluded for very different reasons.
14 They acted disloyally. They were active participants 15 in the wrongdoing. That's not the case with Detroit 16 and Mississippi.

17 And the other showcase argument about 18 excluding the members of the appraisal class, that's 19 answered by Urdan as well. The class claims the 20 equitable claims inhere in the shares that were held 21 by each of the appraisal petitioners at the close of 22 the merger. Those claims haven't been adjudicated, as 23 Your Honor noted, or has noted multiple times
24 previously in this case. Nor did any of the appraisal

1 petitioners release any equitable claims during the 2 pendency of the appraisal litigation or at any other 3 time.

4 In fact, if Your Honor recalls, back
5 in 2018, TransCanada had the option of stipulating to 6 consolidation of the two cases having these issues 7 decided at one trial. They opposed it. They said the 8 fiduciary duty claims can wait; they said that they 9 wanted a trial on solely the statutory claim, and 10 that's what they got. So this is really a situation 11 of TransCanada's own making.

12 THE COURT: Let me push you on one 13 thing on the appraisal action aspect.

14 As to the appraisal claimants, they 15 were parties to a case where factual findings were 16 made. So it is true that I held in the dismissal 17 ruling that the legal issues were different, and 18 therefore it didn't necessarily follow that a ruling 19 in the appraisal case translated into an outcome for 20 this case. And obviously, they're attempting to 21 relitigate that with the formula argument that they 22 make.

23 But setting that aside, why isn't 24 there a valid point that as to a factual finding that

1 someone actually litigated and obtained in the 2 appraisal case, that factual finding would be binding
3 on that appraisal litigant?

4 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Well,
5 Your Honor -- and I'm going to directly address this 6 question. The first response is the Court didn't make 7 findings under what will be the essential questions at 8 the trial scheduled to commence next month. So under 9 enhanced scrutiny, whether fiduciary duties were, in 10 fact, breached, whether there are damages. Your Honor 11 has posited a scenario where -- I believe the scenario 12 Your Honor is positing is there is some finding in --

13 THE COURT: Let's make it simple to 14 the point of trivial. Let's assume that there was a 15 question as to whether an event happened on the 1st of 16 June versus the 10th of June, and that might have 17 different implications legally, depending on what the 18 issues are, but it's a fact question as to whether the 19 event happened on June 1 or June 10. In the appraisal 20 case, there's actually a finding made that it happened 21 on June 1.

22 Why isn't that factual finding binding
23 as a matter of collateral estoppel, even if it 24 wouldn't be binding as to the legal implications?

1 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Well,
2 Your Honor, I think we would concede that that 3 binding -- or that that finding, that factual finding, 4 may very well apply to the appraisal petitioners who 5 are part of the class.

6 THE COURT: Yes, that would make sense
7 to me too. And so, as I spin this out, sitting here 8 today, we don't know whether it's an issue or not,
9 because we could get to trial in the follow-on case 10 and I could hold that it actually did happen on 11 June 1, and it wouldn't be a problem.

12 Or, because discovery has unfolded
13 differently in this case and there's different 14 evidence, I could hold, wow, I now can see that this 15 actually occurred on June 10, and things were 16 backdated to make it look like June 1 and you pulled 17 one over on me on the last one, but so be it, or I was 18 mistaken, whatever the answer is.

19 And then the question would be, does 20 that have any legal implication, right?

21 But, I mean, you could, in theory, it
22 seems to me, at the end of this rainbow, get to a 23 situation where you had a subset of folks consisting 24 of the people who actually litigated the appraisal

1 case who would be bound by June 1 and whatever flows 2 from that, and a different set of people that could 3 seek and obtain the finding that it was actually 4 June 10.

5 Does that make sense to you or do you
6 disagree with that? As I was trying to think through 7 these things, it seemed to me like that was a 8 potential possibility, but you've been spending a lot 9 more time with this stuff than I have, so feel free to 10 explain to me where I am going off the rails.

11 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Certainly,
12 Your Honor. So what I would say is a few things.

13 One, standing here right now, I cannot 14 conceive of a factual determination the Court would 15 make at trial that would be undermined by any of the 16 findings that the Court made in the appraisal trial, 17 to the extent those are -- those findings would be 18 binding on the appraisal petitioner. But to more 19 directly --

20 THE COURT: Let's set that aside
21 because we're all human and we have difficulty 22 conceiving of things, particularly when they're things 23 that we don't want to have happen.

24 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Sure. So the

1 second scenario where the Court made a June 1 finding,
2 but based on, hypothetically, discovery misconduct, 3 documents were not produced that should have been 4 produced, evidence was not proffered that should have 5 been proffered, I think that is a -- the argument that 6 those findings would be binding on the appraisal 7 petitioners I think is weaker, and we certainly have, 8 you know, various mechanisms that can be employed to 9 deal with that, including potentially reopening the 10 judgment in the prior decision based on findings the 11 Court makes --

12 THE COURT: That's all true and well
13 and good, but I still want to push, like, the 14 absolutely clean-focused question of the collateral 15 estoppel effect of someone who actually litigated to 16 judgment in the appraisal case versus other class 17 members who did not.

18 Again, let's make it even cleaner, and 19 we can insert sort of the black box of the jury in 20 terms of fact-finding or something like that.

21 But imagine that you're simply 22 confronted with case 2 in which the outcome comes out 23 as June 10th, and case 1 in which the earlier court, 24 in a case that was litigated by certain members of the 1 class but not others, reached a finding that it was 2 June 1.

3 Absent Rule 60 or some way to set 4 aside the validity of that first judgment, are those 5 folks who actually litigated bound by the June 1 6 finding or is there some reason why you think they 7 wouldn't be bound by the June 1 finding?

8 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: I think it's 9 quite possible they would be bound by the June 1 10 finding.

11 And to hypothesize some scenario where 12 the Court made some finding inconsistent with the 13 finding in the appraisal action that it turned out was 14 essential to some type of recovery or judgment, would 15 obviously be the most extreme scenario. To me, that 16 is something that the Court can deal with post-trial.

17 But it's certainly not an issue, we 18 would submit, that needs to be addressed now, before 19 trial, before the Court has made additional findings.
20 But the scenario you hypothesize, Your Honor, it's 21 certainly possible, yes.

22 THE COURT: So then, again, if we're 23 in the world of possibility, it sounds to me like 24 you're suggesting that this is a problem that we deal

1 with down the road if it happens, if, in fact, there 2 is a different factual finding, and if, in fact,
3 there's a conclusion that the different factual 4 finding has some legal significance such that the 5 appraisal petitioners would face a different outcome 6 because of the earlier factual finding.

7 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Yes, Your Honor.
8 And I think we addressed this in a footnote. I think 9 the Court has a number of mechanisms, including, I 10 think, Rule 23 even expressly says that the Court can 11 at any time, including post-trial, modify an order 12 certifying the class.

13 THE COURT: So your view is that we 14 would deal with that down the road.

15 All right. Now, let me ask you a 16 couple other things that I think are curiosities.

17 To the length of the class
18 definition -- and I want to distinguish between the 19 length of the class definition for the litigation and 20 the potential length for the class definition for the 21 settlement.

22 I mean, this is a dialogue that I've 23 had with folks over the years about why the class 24 definition starts typically at the beginning of the

1 time period for exploring strategic alternatives and 2 ends on the closing date. I mean, that's like the 3 standard definition --

4 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Right.

5 THE COURT: -- people use.

6 So from time to time, I'll ask people
7 in settlement hearing colloquies, because that's 8 usually when it comes up, why are we doing this? The 9 claims travel with the shares. It's going to be the 10 people who end up with the claims as of the closing 11 date anyway, why are we doing this?

12 And the answer is always what you-all 13 alluded to and what Mr. Lafferty more thoroughly 14 presented, which is, look, we're getting a release, 15 the release is covering a lot of different claims, 16 there's potential federal claims out there, there's 17 maybe common law fraud claims. We don't think they're 18 worth anything, but we're bargaining for this release, 19 so we want the broad temporal period to sweep this in, 20 and so that's why we agree to the broad class 21 definition. Your Honor can weigh whether or not those 22 claims are worth anything. Nobody's coming in and 23 saying they are. On we go, and, historically, on 24 we've gone. And that completely makes sense to me in

1 the settlement context, right. I buy that.

2 Now let's pivot to the class that I'm 3 being asked to certify for you for litigation purposes
4 and let's distinguish between what you would think a 5 defendant wants and what sort of legal theory would 6 say. All right.

7 So what you think a defendant would 8 want would be the same broad class definition, because 9 they want res judicata effect one way or the other as 10 to the full scope of the class, right, so if they win, 11 they want everybody bound; and even if they lose, yes, 12 that's a bad day at the office, but you still want 13 everybody bound so you don't have to do this thing all 14 over again.

15 So, again, we can see what 16 TransCanada's doing in terms of acting 17 counterintuitively by coming in and saying, no, no, 18 no, we want the narrowest possible class definition.
19 We do not want the broad thing that would protect us 20 with res judicata. We want actually a narrow one.
21 Let's set that aside.

22 Let's just think about, in the 23 abstract, what the Delaware definition should be. And 24 in a world where all of the Delaware claims that

1 you're litigating travel with the shares, why isn't 2 the answer just the universe of holders at the time of 3 closing? Because everyone up to that point who was a 4 holder during the class period sold, claims traveled 5 with the shares, and so really, in terms of what I
6 would be doing in any type of liability ruling, right, 7 your best day at trial, any type of liability ruling, 8 I'm going to be making a determination that's going to 9 go out to whoever it was that held those shares at the 10 effective time.

11 So for the litigation definition, as 12 opposed to the settlement definition, and setting 13 aside that I think, other than somebody trying to 14 throw sand in the gears, which is what we've got, no 15 defendant would ever argue this, because they benefit 16 from the broader definition.

17 So this is like one of these issues
18 that really shouldn't be coming up as a practical 19 matter if people are actually not just being 20 obstreperous.

21 But why, from like a purist
22 standpoint, isn't the answer that it ought to be 23 shares as held at closing?

24 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: So, Your Honor,

1 I will make a concession, somewhat of a concession.
2 The answer to your question is, I think, usually,
3 usually, ordinarily, the litigation class period for a 4 Delaware claim challenging a merger, it makes sense.
5 It's close. Claims travel with the shares. Anybody 6 who sold before, they've disassociated themselves with 7 the shares such that they've relinquished the claim.

8 Ordinarily, that probably should be 9 the definition. I think if you look at the majority 10 of the stipulated class certification orders outside 11 of settlement context we've entered into over the last 12 four or five years, my firm and Mr. van Kwawegen, 13 Mr. Varallo's firms, it is generally just a one-day 14 class period, close.

15 I think here -- so Your Honor was not 16 asking about precedent. Your Honor was just -- wanted
17 to discuss what should the rule be, so I will leave 18 aside the precedent that -- you know, class definition 19 looks a lot like -- even the class that was 20 permanently certified in Rural/Metro, in Dole, 21 Haverhill v. Kerley, which Your Honor approved.

22 THE COURT: It's because no one's 23 fighting these things, right. The broad class 24 definition is something where, for a corporate case,

1 people's interests are aligned in terms of the class 2 framing. I mean, you'll have to refresh my 3 recollection. I just don't know. Were any of those 4 contested definitions where somebody came in and made 5 the argument? I mean, the only person who actually 6 would have a rational interest in contesting the size 7 of the class would be a competing plaintiff who, for 8 example, was asserting federal securities claims and 9 didn't want to get carved out. It's just 10 counterintuitive for the parties actually before the 11 court in the case to do this.

12 So were any of those contested?

13 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: I don't believe
14 any of those were contested, Your Honor. I mean, I do 15 place significance on the fact that I think the Court 16 has an independent obligation in connection with --

17 THE COURT: Look, I think about this 18 stuff and I try to -- it's a fair point you make. I 19 interrupted you because my sense was that those were 20 going to be not contested. You were winding up to say 21 what you thought the approach really ought to be.

22 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: I've conceded
23 somewhat, Your Honor, that I do think, ordinarily, the 24 one-day class period does make sense for Delaware law

1 claims.

2 When I look at this case, and in terms
3 of even sort of leaving aside, how do you get 4 comfortable by representing a class knowing that many 5 members in that class likely sold their shares, gave 6 up, essentially, their right to recover on a Delaware
7 law claim. I consider that this is a six-year-old 8 transaction. The tires on this transaction have been 9 kicked by plaintiffs and plaintiffs' counsel about as 10 hard as one could possibly kick the tires.

11 THE COURT: You guys are inside the 12 engine. You guys didn't just kick the tires. You 13 took it to the mechanic and had the mechanic go over 14 it, and we're still in that process, right. We're 15 still in the process of we're all under the hood at 16 this point.

17 But, anyway, your point is a valid
18 one.

19 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: And we 20 appreciate that, Your Honor. Yes, so I sort of look 21 at the history of this transaction, what is the extent 22 of the litigation, six years of litigation, appraisal 23 claims litigated through trial, full record there, 24 developing different record here.

1 And we also know that folks have tried 2 to assert federal --

3 THE COURT: I mean, what flows from 4 that is, therefore, those claims for other people in 5 the class period aren't really worth that much; isn't 6 that the answer?

7 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Yes.

8 THE COURT: Sort of the next step.

9 Again, that strikes me as an eminently 10 fair point on the settlement. Eminently fair. But 11 for purposes of the class that you get to represent 12 going to a judgment, why does that matter? In other 13 words, yes, somebody might have a Delaware law common 14 law fraud claim, or who knows what might have survived 15 under the federal securities laws or something like 16 that. Why do they get swept along with you when you 17 are pushing Delaware law claims in terms of getting to 18 a judgment, separate from what you could settle? I'm 19 not questioning what you can settle. I'm questioning 20 for purposes of the Delaware claims that we're going 21 to litigate.

22 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: And my response
23 would be, again -- and leaving aside the settlement -- 24 ordinarily, ordinarily, I don't think those folks

1 should necessarily be swept along.

2 Here, where -- we basically had, you
3 know, over half a decade to evaluate every conceivable 4 claim that could be brought on behalf of former 5 stockholders of Columbia Pipeline, who -- certainly, 6 Mississippi and Detroit have a relationship to 7 everyone in the class in that they were all -- we all 8 held stock at some point -- Mississippi, Detroit, 9 every member of the class all held stock at some 10 point -- had a duty, we allege, breach at some point 11 in the -- this was a yearlong sale process.

12 So hopefully that answer is not 13 unsatisfying to Your Honor, but, again --

14 THE COURT: What implications does it
15 have? I mean, really what I'm wondering is, look, why 16 on this one doesn't TransCanada get what it wants? In 17 other words, these guys have come in and said, no, no, 18 we don't want the broad class that could protect us on 19 res judicata grounds. We just don't want that. We 20 actually just want a one-day class for litigation
21 purposes as to going to judgment. And, again, it 22 doesn't have to be the same as the settlement class.
23 You can settle a broader group of claims. So why 24 don't, for the settlement, I give you the class that

1 you-all bargained for.

2 But for the litigation class, why
3 isn't the answer, you know what, TransCanada, you're 4 right, this is a theoretically, doctrinally correct
5 point that you are making, you should not get broader 6 res judicata protection from this than you deserve.
7 That is a fantastic point. We'll just make it class 8 as of closing.

9 Why isn't that the answer?

10 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: I tend to agree
11 with Your Honor. As we lay out in our papers, there 12 is no requirement that the settlement class and the 13 litigation class be identical or be the same thing.
14 It doesn't create any issue that we can conceive of.
15 It doesn't create any issue -- doesn't create any 16 issue.

17 So, yeah, to the extent the Court were 18 inclined to certify a settlement class consistent with 19 the class negotiated for by defendants Skaggs and 20 Smith, certify a different class for purposes of a 21 judgment or later settlement in this case, I don't 22 think Detroit or Mississippi would have any objection
23 to that, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Yes. And to be fair, all

1 I would be doing on the class certification motion is 2 the class that you guys would be litigating
3 potentially to judgment if -- my hopes of broader 4 settlement have dimmed, but it wouldn't impede people 5 from getting a broader class along the lines of what 6 Mr. Lafferty and his co-counsel negotiated in the 7 context of a settlement.

8 Again, doctrinally, this is one where 9 the point lies oddly in TransCanada's mouth, but it's 10 a point that seems well-taken in terms of the 11 doctrinal step. It's just something no defendant 12 usually asks for.

13 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: We would agree 14 with Your Honor, and that's certainly within the 15 Court's discretion. And if that's how the Court wants 16 to deal with this class issue, like I said,
17 Mississippi and Detroit have no objection to the Court 18 certifying two separate classes.

19 THE COURT: Anything else you want to 20 tell me?

21 I'll tell you the other thing that I 22 was curious about. And it's not front and center in 23 TransCanada's briefs, but they put it out there. And, 24 again, it's one of these things that would have

1 colossally borderline nuclear consequences for how 2 we've been doing things for decades.

3 But their view is that once you're in 4 the damages context for disclosure claims, reliance,
5 in particular, becomes a sufficiently particularized 6 issue that you can't certify under (b)(1), (b)(2), 7 and, indeed, under (b)(3), you can't certify at all.
8 And that would be big because that would mean that,
9 really, you couldn't do disclosure class actions, 10 period or I guess you'd have -- that's probably an 11 overstatement. But the way we've been doing them for 12 decades we would have suddenly discovered was wrong.

13 But setting aside the innovative 14 nature of the argument, what's the conceptual 15 response? Because it is true under the federal 16 securities laws, which is one of the sources for the 17 potpourri of citations, although a lot of them are 18 antitrust, a lot of them are consumer injury cases, 19 it's all over the map. There is this concept that 20 reliance can be individualized.

21 What is your pushback to the 22 reenvisioning of how disclosure class actions work?

23 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Well,
24 Your Honor, I think the place I would start is the 1 Court's decision denying summary judgment in Orchard,

2 where I think you talk about the availability of a 3 post-close class disclosure claim and that the element 4 of reliance, I believe Your Honor said -- been a while 5 since I've read that decision -- we presume reliance 6 based on a proxy's been issued, we presume reliance.

7 And one of the reasons why the Court
8 might presume reliance for purposes of maintaining a 9 class mechanism, I think the policy in Delaware is in 10 favor of certifying classes allowing rationally 11 apathetic stockholders who have been aggrieved by 12 faithless fiduciaries, whether in the disclosure 13 context or otherwise, to assert class claims.

14 And as I understand the law,
15 historically -- I'm blanking on some of these case
16 names right now -- I believe there is case law saying 17 that where stockholder action is not sought, 18 maintaining a class action is going to be more 19 difficult. Maybe -- it may just not be possible, 20 given particular individualized issues of reliance, 21 where you can't presume it. No stockholder action is 22 actually being sought.

23 But I think -- the law on this is 24 fairly well-settled, and I think in part it's sort of 1 a function of the policy in Delaware, which is in 2 favor as opposed to allowing class claims to go 3 forward.

4 THE COURT: Interesting. Look, I
5 think the nonstockholder action context, the Malone
6 claim. And Malone says it can be brought either on a 7 class basis or a derivative basis.

8 So what I'm hearing you say, it sounds 9 like, is that we ought to have separate -- the 10 question is not just is disclosure being sought for 11 injunctive relief or damages. The question is still, 12 is it stockholder action or nonstockholder action, and 13 within the context of stockholder action, we can 14 presume reliance because the board is actually putting 15 out this information to solicit stockholder action 16 and, therefore, that, at a minimum, gets you enough to 17 be able to certify a class, absent some evidence from 18 the other side that would cause some different 19 reliance calculus.

20 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Yes, Your Honor.
21 And, I mean, consider the alternative. This is a 22 class of hundreds of millions of shares within it, you
23 know, and this is a starkly misleading proxy. I know 24 the Court -- that's our allegation. We intend to 1 prove that at trial. I think it's already, in part, 2 been proven, but not to the degree to which we'll be 3 able to prove it at trial in July.

4 But the alternative, if you don't -- 5 if you make reliance an individualized issue such as 6 you can't certify a class, you just lie to your 7 stockholders, lie to your stockholders.

8 THE COURT: It wouldn't be that far,
9 but, I mean, this certainly is sort of the person who 10 only works the defense side of the street, it's like 11 their dream, right, because you would be able to 12 pursue these claims in the injunction phase, where 13 reliance doesn't come into play, but once you got 14 post-close, this would be the silver bullet. You 15 couldn't certify a disclosure-based, post-close 16 stockholder action because of the individualized 17 element.

18 So it wouldn't be that there would be 19 no remedy; that I think would be an overstatement. It 20 would be that it would be massively circumscribed 21 compared to what has been the practice.

22 I don't want to dismiss your point,
23 which, I think, is, look, this would be a massive 24 discovery to realize that we had been doing this wrong

1 for so long, but it wouldn't let you just lie with 2 impunity. It would simply narrow the window to 3 injunctive relief.

4 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Certainly. A
5 claim for damages would be largely unavailable.

6 And I just note, Your Honor,
7 Your Honor was noting how strange it is for 8 TransCanada to be in this courtroom, you know, asking 9 for a shorter as opposed to a longer class period. I
10 think the 23(b)(3) argument is just as strange. I
11 can't recall, other than in Straight Path, a defendant 12 advocating for stockholder right of opt out. Truly 13 odd.

14 THE COURT: Yes. I'll push back on 15 you a little bit only because I do think that the 16 folks who mainly litigate in federal court and are 17 immersed in the Wal-Mart v. Dukes line of case law, 18 for them, the idea that a damages class has to be a 19 (b)(3) class, it's almost like an article of faith.

20 And so it is not infrequent that I'll 21 get arguments driven by folks from that world who want 22 to port that framework into the Delaware law idea.
23 That's why it keeps getting rejected. You guys cited 24 all the cases. Chancellor Allen rejected it in 1991.

1 It seems every five or six years, we have to come back
2 and say this again.

3 I can understand if what you are in 4 the business of doing is fighting (b)(3) classes, and 5 you often can blow up classes by pointing at (b)(3)
6 factors, it's not crazy that you'd say, oh, well, I 7 want to take this technology to Delaware, fight the 8 (b)(3) battle in Delaware, blow up whatever classes I 9 can under (b)(3) in Delaware, I don't want to face the 10 (b)(1), (b)(2) class.

11 That to me is somewhat rational in the 12 long, but I do hear you in saying what is bizarre is a 13 (b)(3) class where suddenly people could opt out and 14 these people would have to litigate claims both 15 individually and class, like they do under the federal 16 regime.

17 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Any other
18 questions I can answer for Your Honor? If not, I'm 19 happy to cede the floor to my colleague,
20 Mr. van Kwawegen.

21 THE COURT: That would be helpful.
22 Again, since I don't see full overlap between these 23 things -- and, in fact, I wholeheartedly agree with 24 you that I'm not really sure TransCanada even has

1 standing to speak on the second issue -- I was 2 planning to hear this one, where I think TransCanada 3 does have standing to oppose, and see what they have 4 to say on this before we turn to the second point.

5 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Any other
6 questions I can answer for Your Honor? If not, I'll 7 let Mr. Lessner come to the podium. Thank you,
8 Your Honor.

9 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Thank you,
10 Your Honor. Good morning.

11 Your Honor, let's focus on the main 12 issue here on why we believe that the class -- the 13 proposed class is overbroad. We believe it's 14 overbroad because it includes stockholders who -- the 15 dual stockholders who are not injured, and it includes 16 the petitioners from the appraisal, who are precluded 17 from bringing those claims.

18 So I'll focus first on the dual 19 stockholder issue. And the reason this comes up, of 20 course, is because we're in a class action context.
21 Detroit, I mean, it's undisputed -- there's a couple 22 of things that are undisputed, the federal law on the 23 subject and that Detroit is a -- owns a predominant 24 amount of shares in TransCanada.

1 So the issue is whether the Court
2 looks at this particular transaction, the merger
3 transaction, and finds that people were injured or not 4 injured at all differently, depending on their 5 cross-holdings. That issue has never been litigated, 6 as far as we know, in Delaware.

7 And so the precise issue before the 8 Court in the class certification context is when 9 looking at the hundreds of thousands of stockholders 10 who own 400 million shares and certifying a class, 11 does the Court include in those class stockholders,
12 like Detroit, who have not been injured?

13 And we take that from -- so it is an 14 issue that has not been decided before in Delaware. I 15 have not seen it in the context of federal cases
16 either.

17 So, as Your Honor rightly notes, we 18 have analogous cases where the Court's determined that 19 there hasn't been injury to certain people in the 20 class based on antitrust violations or others.

21 So we start with the Supreme Court of 22 Delaware in the Wit case, where the Court says, "The 23 parties also agree that [] failure to show that some 24 fact of injury exists can defeat class certification

1 while issues going only to [] measure[s] of damages 2 cannot."

3 So we don't contend that because 4 stockholder A owns X amount of shares and stockholder 5 B owns Y amount of shares, you wouldn't be able to 6 calculate, ultimately, damages.

7 What our argument is, in this 8 particular transaction, which is a merger between two 9 very large, publicly traded companies where there is 10 some amount of cross-ownership, witness Detroit, which 11 they claim they're typical of the stockholders and 12 they have a predominant amount, were they or were they 13 not injured in the transaction.

14 So the Court, having not dealt with 15 it, but the Court does look at the stockholdings of a 16 stockholder in particular transactions. The 17 undisputed holdings of Urdan simply says the cause of 18 action goes to people who hold those shares, but the 19 cause of action that they have is for breach of 20 fiduciary duty, in that TransCanada did not pay as 21 much as they said should have been paid in the 22 transaction.

23 So the breach of fiduciary duty is a 24 duty that's owed not to pieces of paper. The breach

1 of fiduciary duty is owed to the stockholders, and 2 that is, you know, Revlon, every other case. It's the 3 duty to the stockholders as a corporation. This is 4 not an in rem proceeding that says that you owe some 5 sort of duty to -- you know, to the piece of paper.
6 And, as a matter of fact, we cited a case where you 7 cannot have an in rem fiduciary duty proceeding.

8 So now the issue is, is this the type 9 of transaction where the Court will look at the 10 transaction as a whole, sort of like knotting a step 11 transaction, where the Court looks at the transaction 12 as a whole, a spinoff and then a merger, and looks 13 ultimately to the transaction to see what stockholders 14 have been damaged.

15 And the concept that dual stockholders
16 have not been damaged, I'm going to say it's not new, 17 it's not novel. The Court considers the dual 18 stockholdings in other contexts of our corporate law, 19 particularly in determining whether a stockholder is 20 disinterested or not.

21 So a Court will consider the dual 22 stockholdings of a stockholder for purposes of 23 determining a disinterestedness for Corwin,
24 disinterested for a majority of the minority

1 provisions. Disinterested is written into our statute
2 in 203. The Court will consider the stockholdings in 3 all of these issues in deciding what rights attach to 4 the shares in those case -- you know, the right to 5 vote or the right to -- I was going to say a poison 6 pill or the right to be considered disinterested for 7 purposes of the transaction.

8 It's novel only in that the issue is 9 coming up now in the context of class certification, 10 and it usually -- the best I can presume it hasn't 11 come up before is because most class certifications 12 are unopposed or most class certifications, certainly 13 in the settlement context, are unopposed, so the issue 14 just has not come up.

15 It was argued just recently by the 16 plaintiffs in the recent Tesla case, as 17 Vice Chancellor Slight noted, that the argument was 18 that dual stockholders of Tesla and SolarCity should 19 not be considered disinterested stockholders.

20 So our point is that there's certain 21 members who have not been determined of the class, who 22 were not injured in the transaction, and, therefore, 23 should not be considered part of -- they should not be 24 considered part of the class.

1 And I'm going to say it's real money
2 because in this case, it's not a derivative case, it's 3 not a common fund case. It's a case where the damages
4 are -- the damages will be calculated on a per-share
5 basis.

6 And so with 400 million shares at 7 play, the class makes a big difference. And as we 8 cited in the federal case of Kohen, the battle was 9 done because that's where the money is, and the battle 10 over the size of the class is because plaintiffs, 11 naturally, want as big a class as possible. And as 12 the Court said for the in terrorem effect that even a 13 weak claim on a very large amount of shares has great 14 settlement value.

15 So we are here because it is in our 16 clients' best interests that the settlement class -- 17 or, I'm sorry, that the class, okay, is as limited to 18 only people who allegedly, arguably would have been 19 interested -- or, I'm sorry, would have been injured 20 in the transaction.

21 And as the Supreme Court said in the 22 Wit case, the issue then comes down to there has to be 23 a fact of injury exists. And in Wit, the 24 Supreme Court reversed the trial court, where the

1 trial court had certified subclasses, which included 2 people who the court said had not been injured. And 3 in Wit, it had been people who were owed IPO shares.
4 The obligation of the company was to give them IPO
5 shares. So their claim of damages was they did not 6 get the IPO shares that they should have gotten.

7 The Supreme Court said, well, you
8 can't certify a class that broadly because "class 9 members who might have sold at [a] loss had they been 10 allocated the IPO shares were not injured in fact by 11 any alleged denial of an allocation of [those] 12 shares."

13 So what the Court recognized was in 14 the class context that there's people who are injured 15 and people who were not. If we just take the issue of 16 Detroit, Detroit claims to be representative or 17 typical of the class. Detroit has a preponderance of 18 TransCanada stock. And if Detroit was to bring that 19 claim as solely Detroit, there would be a valid
20 defense that they suffered no damages, and the Court
21 would have to decide that issue, and, as far as I 22 know, the Court has not decided the issue of -- in a 23 merger like this between two public companies. The 24 Court has simply not decided that issue. But the 1 Court is now confronted with that issue on class

2 certification.

3 Everything else flows from that as far
4 as the issues on a certification under 23(a) and 23(b)
5 and (b)(1), (b)(2), (b)(3).

6 So if there are people out there who 7 own shares who weren't damaged, that means under 8 (b)(1) that it's not the same, all the stockholders 9 are not entitled to the same, which is (b)(1), they 10 all suffer -- they all have the same liability and 11 damages.

12 It's not (b)(2) because this is not an 13 injunction or declaration case. It's (b)(3), which is 14 people have different amount of damages. And then the 15 question is predominance, is the issue predominant 16 between the dual stockholders and none.

17 And so I would suggest to Your Honor
18 that this is, in fact -- assuming Your Honor does not 19 rule, as a matter of law, that these stock -- that the 20 Detroit's of the class simply do not suffer -- or did 21 suffer damages or did not -- rejects as a matter of 22 law that in this type of transaction, you will look at 23 the dual holdings.

24 Assuming that that is a viable claim

1 that the Court is not deciding, then we have the 2 issues of ascertainability, and that is -- we're not 3 here to blow up the class action regime in Delaware.
4 In fact, we believe we're just -- we're applying the 5 class action regime in Delaware.

6 Class actions, obviously beneficial
7 that people can aggregate small claims into big 8 classes, but they can't overaggregate.

9 So when -- you have the issue here of 10 ascertainability. So on one hand, if you say it's too 11 difficult to ascertain who actually was dual 12 stockholders, then you can't certify a class because 13 it's unascertainable.

14 On the other hand, if at the same time 15 you are ascertaining the stockholders who are actually 16 injured, so the stockholders who received a merger --
17 who were stockholders as of July 1st, at the same 18 time, through the same process, you're ascertaining 19 what their stockholding was in Columbia, you would use 20 the same process to ascertain what their stockholdings
21 were in TransCanada. And that is assumed by the court 22 in some of the cases. I will say -- I will call that, 23 for shorthand, the PLX method: you go through DTC and 24 through the DTC participants. There's also, I guess,

1 the original Dole method, where the stockholders
2 actually have to say that they own the shares.

3 And that was the assumption in the 4 Kohen case that we cite throughout the brief in which 5 the Court said, well, people who weren't injured, 6 they'll have to produce their sales records to show 7 whether they were actually injured or not, and that 8 way you'll determine who was injured or not.

9 So what we've suggested also is that 10 Your Honor -- and the plaintiffs say that this is a 11 conditional certification, because the plaintiffs have 12 not put forth the facts that would allow the Court, at 13 the end of the day, if there is a judgment at the end 14 of the day, for the Court to determine who was 15 actually damaged. Their expert didn't do it. Their 16 expert just took a figure of total outstanding, plus, 17 I guess, options or whatever, and that would have been 18 cash, subtracted off Smith and Skaggs, and said, 19 that's the class, multiply it by damages.

20 But at the end of the day, that will 21 not be the measure of damages. It'll be only the 22 measure of damages of those people who were in the 23 class.

24 And it's the plaintiffs' burden, I

1 presume, assume, to prove who are the dual 2 stockholders and who are not for purposes of the award
3 of -- any potential award of damages.

4 So in sum, Your Honor, we're not 5 trying to blow up any settlement regime. We're 6 operating within the settlement regime. We are asking 7 for a -- the class, as proposed, is overly broad 8 because it includes people who were not injured or 9 were precluded, and in that is a decision to be made 10 now in class -- at class certification time in the 11 context of class certification and the logical 12 conclusion of the arguments on (b)(3) and 13 certification under (b)(1), (b)(2), (b)(3).

14 The arguments logically flow that if 15 you have people in the class who were damaged in 16 different ways, or not at all, it has to be under 17 (b)(3).

18 Let me present for a minute why the 19 stockholders who were appraisal petitioners --

20 THE COURT: Before you move on to 21 that, let me just ask a couple things.

22 You've said today and you've said in 23 your briefs that you don't view this as a common fund 24 case.

1 Can you elaborate on that?

2 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Sure. The 3 settlement is a common fund case. It's different than 4 the class. The class is -- whatever damages are in 5 the class are based on if Your Honor were to decide 6 that there was some incremental amount above 25.50 7 that was owed to the stockholders, say it was 8 15 cents, they owe 15 cents more, okay, it would be 9 15 cents times the eligible share for the stockholders 10 who were entitled to it.

11 So it's not -- it's different than the 12 settlement where the settlement is simply a lump -- is 13 a lump sum to be decided who is to allocate, and I'll 14 talk about that when we're arguing the settlement
15 part --

16 THE COURT: The math is going the 17 other way. I guess part of why that seemed 18 incongruous to me is because certainly whenever there 19 is a fee petition in that setting, the plaintiff says, 20 I created a common fund, and the common fund is equal 21 to value times number of shares participating.

22 So it sounds like you're focused on 23 the directionality of the math in terms of the 24 per-share, starting with the per-share number and

1 ending up with an aggregate rather than going the 2 other direction.

3 ATTORNEY LESSNER: So it's different,
4 Your Honor, in the -- I'll call it the litigation
5 class versus the settlement class.

6 The settlement class is a common -- is 7 a common fund. The settlement was, here's 8 $79 million, we want our releases, rightfully, and you 9 can distribute it because we don't have an interest 10 anymore in how it's distributed.

11 TransCanada has an interest in how 12 it's distributed, but I'll discuss that when we're 13 talking about the settlement.

14 But it's different for the litigation
15 class because the measure of damages as their own 16 expert, Mr. Minehart, calculated, it's simply how much 17 more per share the plaintiffs claim that TransCanada 18 should have paid times the amount of the eligible
19 shares.

20 THE COURT: How would you feel if,
21 instead of viewing it that way, it was presented, 22 essentially, as an enterprise value calculation for 23 the company or an equity valuation for the company, 24 because that's really what the per-share number is a

1 proxy for. There's no magic to 25.50. It's 25.50
2 because that works out to an aggregate price that 3 someone's willing to pay.

4 ATTORNEY LESSNER: No, I would 5 disagree with that proposition because their cause of 6 action is a fiduciary duty breach that's owed to the 7 stockholders. The stockholders were paid 25.50. The 8 claim is they should have been paid some amount more 9 than 25.50. It's not an appraisal where the measure 10 of damages is you're entitled to the enterprise value 11 at some proportion. This claim is on behalf of the 12 stockholders that, whoever the eligible stockholders 13 are, that they were damaged because they only got -- 14 they got 25.50 and something less. It's not --

15 THE COURT: Think back to your framing
16 of the core claim as whether the defendant fiduciaries 17 achieved the best price in a sale of the company. The 18 issue is whether they could have held their fiduciary 19 duties in selling the company for which they got an 20 aggregate price.

21 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Your Honor, I would 22 say that the case law is, in terms of Revlon, it's 23 whether they got the -- they attempted, the directors 24 who owe the fiduciary duty to stockholders, attempted

1 to get the best price reasonably available for the 2 stockholders. It's not in an aggregate level where 3 they attempted to sell the company. It's what they 4 did to get the best price for the stockholders. There
5 could be other constituents here in a merger. There 6 could be bondholders, debtholders. There could be 7 other kinds of constituents. The Revlon duties are 8 owed to the stockholders.

9 THE COURT: It seems to me there's a 10 circularity problem in terms of excluding the Detroits 11 of the world from the class in terms of an actual 12 liability setting. And what I mean by that is, 13 imagine a situation where TransCanada does have to pay 14 a judgment. That judgment transfers over to the 15 plaintiffs' side, the plaintiff class side of the 16 ledger.

17 The Detroits of the world, who own
18 more shares in TransCanada, indirectly bear the cost 19 of that judgment, but they get none of the benefit of 20 that judgment.

21 So effectively, as a result of 22 TransCanada having to pay the judgment, they get 23 harmed by the litigation, but they've been excluded 24 from the class, and so, therefore, don't get whatever

1 the true-up would be.

2 Why isn't that a problem for your 3 approach?

4 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Because it really
5 just goes to who suffered the harm.

6 Now, we are not -- we're very narrowly 7 focused on this, and that is who were the dual 8 stockholders at the time of the transaction. So we're 9 not asking to look and see what their future holdings 10 was of TransCanada. We're focused very much on the 11 transaction, and so if Detroit was not harmed by the 12 transaction because they were a net benefit, then they 13 have no entitlement to a judgment in the first place.

14 THE COURT: Look, I understand that 15 step in the argument. And I'm asking you to take the 16 next step and think about the position Detroit is in, 17 in a world where TransCanada has to pay the judgment.

18 Your premise that Detroit has 19 benefited from the transaction, the math isn't 20 necessarily going to work anymore, because TransCanada
21 has now had to pay something that you have to subtract 22 from whatever Detroit's share of the benefit was.

23 ATTORNEY LESSNER: I don't think -- 24 when you say "Detroit's share of the" --

1 THE COURT: Using Detroit as a proxy
2 for someone you're excluding from the claims.

3 At the end of this, imagine a world
4 where TransCanada only has a hundred shares, 5 TransCanada has to pay a judgment equal to $100. Your 6 world is one where I look through TransCanada to the 7 stockholders. So each one of those stockholders now 8 is attributed $1 less value because TransCanada has 9 had to pay the judgment.

10 Why doesn't that potentially upset the 11 calculations that we used to figure out whether they 12 would be excluded from the class in the first place?

13 ATTORNEY LESSNER: I think what 14 Your Honor is saying is that the premise of that is 15 that TransCanada is paying some lump sum.

16 THE COURT: Yes.

17 ATTORNEY LESSNER: And sort of what 18 the settlement is. Okay.

19 THE COURT: No. The premise is that 20 we actually get to the end of the day and somebody's 21 going to win, somebody's going to lose. And the 22 hypothetical where you guys win, we don't have this 23 problem. In the hypothetical where the plaintiffs 24 win, your guy has to write a check.

1 And what I am interrogating or trying 2 to interrogate is how your model works from the 3 stockholders you have excluded from the class in a 4 situation where TransCanada has to write a check.

5 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Yes. So I guess
6 the easiest thing would be that there is no final 7 judgment until there is a determination, a factual 8 determination, of which stockholders were injured or 9 not.

10 THE COURT: Why is that the easiest
11 thing? What I'm suggesting to you is there's a 12 circularity problem because the judgment itself is 13 going to affect the relevant allocation of injury.

14 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Correct. So what 15 the Court -- if there was a finding, okay, the --

16 THE COURT: That's the only situation
17 where this matters. That's why we're talking about 18 it.

19 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Okay. The Court's 20 judgment would be, I assume, similar to what happened 21 in Rural/Metro, where it was a marginal increase in 22 price times the eligible shares.

23 The only problem I see is if the Court 24 were to say that at that time that the Detroits of the 1 world are eligible shares and hence they're entitled 2 to the dollars. It's not a problem -- that's an 3 ascertainability problem. If I understand your 4 hypothetical, and I may not be --

5 THE COURT: Yes, let me try again.

6 What you're envisioning, as I
7 understand it, is a world where, at the deal price, 8 somebody is a net gainer because their TransCanada
9 stake exceeds the value of their Columbia stake.

10 Fair so far?

11 ATTORNEY LESSNER: That is -- in the 12 transaction itself, yes.

13 THE COURT: To calculate whether 14 someone is a net gainer, you're going to use the 15 transaction price.

16 Fair so far?

17 ATTORNEY LESSNER: What the 18 stockholder was paid in the transaction, yes.

19 THE COURT: In a world where your 20 client has to write a check, the transaction price
21 effectively changes because TransCanada is making a 22 payment over to the plaintiff class.

23 Again, with me so far?

24 ATTORNEY LESSNER: At -- oh, I see

1 what you're saying. I think I see what you're saying,
2 Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: So that should change the 4 math as to who's in, who's out, and at a minimum, if I 5 have excluded people based on the math at the 6 transaction price, those excluded people, they're now 7 bearing the cost of the judgment without the 8 offsetting value that they would get if they were part 9 of the class.

10 ATTORNEY LESSNER: I think what 11 Your Honor is saying is at the time of the 12 transaction, whether dual stockholders should be paid 13 or not, and we're not arguing that. We're not arguing 14 that all the stockholders weren't entitled to 25.50.

15 So at the time of the transaction, the 16 stockholders received the money -- the stockholders 17 received the merger consideration, and we're not 18 arguing that -- from -- that merger transaction
19 itself, it should have excluded dual stockholders.

20 THE COURT: I'm not positing that.

21 ATTORNEY LESSNER: So we're not -- 22 Your Honor, as far as the time difference, where we're 23 saying just look at the people at the time of the 24 transaction and not six years later, like right now,

1 you're saying --

2 THE COURT: I get that too. We're 3 freezing the universe of stockholders as of the time 4 of the judgment.

5 ATTORNEY LESSNER: The judgment, yes.

6 THE COURT: I'm sorry, as of the time
7 of the transaction.

8 ATTORNEY LESSNER: The transaction.
9 Okay.

10 THE COURT: All right. Look, we'll 11 move on. I'm not successfully communicating my point, 12 which may be likely due to my own inability to 13 communicate.

14 ATTORNEY LESSNER: I'm sure it's mine,
15 Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: No, no.

17 You were going to shift on to the 18 individual appraisal claimants.

19 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Yes. Yes.

20 So, Your Honor, there's no question 21 that the 19 stockholders who owned the close to 22 9 million shares, who were actual petitioners in the 23 appraisal case, they are bound by the rulings of the 24 appraisal case.

1 So the question is -- and then --
2 again, we're just focusing on those particular 3 stockholders because Your Honor has already held at 4 the motion to dismiss stage that stockholders who are 5 not part of the appraisal are not bound, and so 6 therefore focusing solely on the appraisal petitioner 7 stockholders.

8 So I don't think there's any question
9 that the appraisal petitioner stockholders are bound 10 by the rulings -- by the rulings in the appraisal.

11 The same way Your Honor has ruled on 12 the partial summary judgment motion that TransCanada 13 is bound by the law and facts as found in the 14 appraisal, but Smith and Skaggs were not.

15 Now, so -- and in the partial summary
16 judgment ruling, Your Honor found, in the context of 17 the appraisal decision, where the argument was made, 18 that the Court can give credence to the 25.50 because 19 it was approved by an overwhelming amount of Columbia 20 stockholders, and the Court rejected that as an 21 indicia of fair value because the Court ruled that 22 there were fiduciary duties of disclosure violations 23 and therefore the Court could not rely on that.

24 The same way -- so our argument is,

1 the same way the Court held that it had found a breach 2 of fiduciary duty violation in the appraisal, in that 3 context, and that the parties to it are bound by that 4 ruling, the same way the petitioners in the appraisal
5 case are bound by the Court's holdings that the sales 6 process was sufficient to rely 100 percent on the 7 appraisal price.

8 And we are aware of no cases where a 9 sales process that was the subject of a breach of 10 fiduciary duty would -- could be relied upon for a 11 hundred percent. It would be what we could say is a 12 tier 1 or tier 2 process.

13 Therefore, you could not have -- the 14 necessary holding of the appraisal case was that there 15 was the sales process, which is relied upon a hundred 16 percent, could not be the product of a breach of 17 fiduciary duty. And the only duty in that case is the 18 sales process, so it was your Revlon duties, the duty 19 to attempt to get the best price reasonably available, 20 and that that process had to be within a range of 21 reasonableness.

22 And so the Court, having relied on the 23 sales process a hundred percent for the sales price -- 24 I'm sorry, for the 25.50 fairness is a necessary

1 implication that the stockholders who were the 2 petitioners in the appraisal case are bound by that 3 ruling. That is the premise on this motion for class 4 action certification, that those stockholders should 5 not be included.

6 THE COURT: And, again, I take your 7 point that the appraisal petitioners would be bound by 8 the factual findings in the appraisal determination.

9 But how is your argument that the 10 factual findings in the appraisal decision foreclose 11 any breach of fiduciary duty claim different from the 12 argument I addressed at the motion to dismiss stage?

13 ATTORNEY LESSNER: It's a different
14 context, Your Honor. And the motion --

15 THE COURT: How is the argument
16 different? I get that it would have a different 17 implication in that, at the motion to dismiss stage, 18 it would have resulted in the dismissal of the whole 19 case, whereas at this stage, it would only result in 20 the exclusion of the appraisal claimants from the 21 class, but how is the argument different?

22 ATTORNEY LESSNER: The argument is 23 different in that in the motion to dismiss, it was an 24 argument based on preclusion, that the stockholders

1 were not bound, all stockholders were not bound, and 2 that Your Honor rejected that and said that they are 3 not precluded from that finding.

4 The next day, in the summary judgment,
5 the Court did find that there was -- that the 6 appraisal case had found a breach of fiduciary duty 7 and that the -- TransCanada, as a party to the 8 appraisal, was bound by that ruling of a finding of a 9 breach of fiduciary duty coming out of the appraisal 10 action.

11 So in the class context, what the 12 Court, at least the way I've read it, the Court has 13 held that it made a finding of a breach of fiduciary 14 duty in the appraisal action and that those parties 15 were bound to it.

16 And in -- the necessary implication is 17 the Court found in the appraisal action that there was 18 not a breach of fiduciary duty because --

19 THE COURT: That's what I want you to 20 focus on. The first part that you talked about is 21 what I'm not fighting you on and what I said I take 22 your point on.

23 I want you to focus on the second
24 part --

1 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Yes.

2 THE COURT: -- which was also raised 3 at the dismissal ruling, which was the idea that those 4 findings meant there could not be a breach of duty.
5 Why isn't that the same argument that you're making 6 now?

7 ATTORNEY LESSNER: So, one -- and I'll 8 go -- one, because it applies only to the petitioners;
9 and two, as we put in our brief, Your Honor, the issue 10 was fully litigated by the petitioners. They took 11 discovery on it. All the stuff we said in our brief, 12 they fully litigated that issue and it was 13 necessary --

14 THE COURT: The issue that I'm trying 15 to get you to focus on is the assertion that the fair 16 value finding in the appraisal case was the legal 17 equivalency of a no-breach finding under enhanced 18 scrutiny.

19 Why isn't that the same argument that 20 you made at the motion to dismiss stage and that I 21 already ruled on?

22 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Okay. That ruling,
23 to the extent Your Honor ruled that the class -- that 24 the members who are not appraisal petitioners are --

1 that the Court did not find -- the Court did not go
2 into the issue of fiduciary duty. Okay. That is, I 3 guess -- you say -- that is not being made in the 4 context of the class certification and --

5 THE COURT: Let me just read some text
6 to you. This is from page 2 of the dismissal
7 decision.

8 "The Appraisal Decision held that [a]
9 sale process was sufficiently reliable that the deal 10 price provided a sound indication of the Company's 11 standalone value. The Appraisal Decision did not 12 determine whether Skaggs and Smith breached their 13 fiduciary duties, nor did it address the claim that 14 the Company could have obtained a higher deal price
15 from TransCanada or from a competing bidder if Skaggs
16 and Smith had not acted as they did."

17 I also said the Court had 18 characterized the appraisal decision as addressing, 19 and here again I'm quoting, "a narrow question: The 20 fair value of [Columbia] as a standalone entity 21 operating as a going concern."

22 Look, I understand you disagree with 23 those rulings. I understand you think they're wrong.
24 But why isn't that the exact same issue and the exact

1 same argument you're making now? It's just instead of 2 saying that it is a clean winner under either 3 preclusion or, remember, you also argued 4 stare decisis, and this would be the stare decisis
5 version, most plainly, why isn't that the exact same 6 argument that you're now making as a basis to exclude 7 the appraisal claimants from the class?

8 ATTORNEY LESSNER: It is, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: So why do you get to do
10 that?

11 ATTORNEY LESSNER: It is the same
12 argument. It's in a different context and it's 13 with -- it's not on a motion to dismiss.

14 THE COURT: Is it law of the case?

15 ATTORNEY LESSNER: I don't believe
16 it's law of the case, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: Why don't you believe it's 18 law of the case, Mr. Lessner?

19 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Because the law of 20 the case deals with an issue that was decided -- as an 21 issue that was decided as a matter of law in the 22 context of what it was argued.

23 THE COURT: Under your view of law of 24 the case, why would there ever be law of the case or

1 fact, because it's a different motion? It's a 2 different motion. It wasn't a motion to dismiss.
3 It's a motion for summary judgment. It wasn't decided 4 under the summary judgment standard. It was decided 5 under the Rule 12(b)(6) standard.

6 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Even if it was law
7 of the case, Your Honor, we cited law that says that 8 Your Honor can revisit issues prior to a final 9 judgment.

10 THE COURT: At least we got to the 11 point where -- keep going.

12 ATTORNEY LESSNER: In that ...

13 Just one last point on that so I don't 14 let it stew, and I brought it up before.

15 In the context of the motion to 16 dismiss, it was argued on behalf of different -- I 17 would say different elements on behalf of the 18 appraisal petitioners. In this case we put in front 19 of Your Honor -- on this procedural posture, we put in 20 front of Your Honor all of the facts that -- they 21 argued the same issue -- and that they argued the same
22 issue and the Court ruled on the issue in the same way
23 the Court may reconsider or consider the class action 24 motion in light of the -- in light of what the

1 arguments were in the appraisal case by the 2 petitioners.

3 And other than that -- and if it is 4 the law of the case, it's an issue that can be 5 revisited in the context of the class certification or 6 it can be revisited at any time before the end of the 7 trial.

8 Okay. And that, Your Honor, was 9 really -- talk about the issues as far as the broad 10 class, but I think Your Honor takes our point that the 11 class is overbroad because of the dual stockholders, 12 the appraisal stockholders. And once the Court were 13 to reach the conclusion that it has to look at the -- 14 it has to look at these things in determining who the 15 class is, everything else flows through the 23(a) 16 elements and the 23(b)(3) elements and is simply an 17 application of standard law.

18 THE COURT: Thank you.

19 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Thank you,
20 Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Do we have a quick reply
22 on this?

23 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Yes, Your Honor.
24 Thank you. I'll be very brief.

1 I will note that a number of the 2 arguments I heard are straight out of the objection to 3 the settlement as opposed to the opposition to class 4 certification, and Mr. Lessner was -- Your Honor had 5 asked a question also about TransCanada's assertion 6 that this is not a common fund case or a common fund
7 settlement.

8 The objection to the settlement says,
9 explicitly, "this is not a derivative case or 'common 10 fund' settlement." So that -- they have, in fact, 11 made that obviously erroneous assertion.

12 Again, just very briefly on the dual 13 holdings, again, all answered by Urdan. Mr. Lessner 14 mentioned Wit. Wit is a case involving personal 15 claims, breach of contract, breach of a brokerage 16 agreement, not stockholder claims associated with the 17 property. This notion of looking to other contexts
18 where the court assesses an individual or entity's 19 financial interest, such as in a board vote or a 20 stockholder vote, completely different context.

21 There, the court is trying to 22 determine whether or not to defer to a board decision 23 or to a stockholder decision. Perhaps the Court's 24 considering whether or not an officer or director's

1 conduct has been called into question by some interest 2 they may have that's not the same as the interests of 3 other stockholders.

4 I made the point before about burden.
5 TransCanada, Mr. Lessner, they haven't identified the 6 individuals in the class who actually have these 7 supposed cross-holdings.

8 In Straight Path, at least,
9 defendants -- and we undermined this -- 10 Mr. van Kwawegen deposed the expert there. They at 11 least came forward with data, with information 12 purporting to show that there was substantial overlap 13 among the classes.

14 THE COURT: Look, it's got to be;
15 right? This is part of the reason why, even though 16 there's the professed view that this wouldn't change
17 anything, I mean, these are two widely held companies.
18 We know about the levels of cross-ownership in the 19 market. I mean, there's got to be a lot of 20 cross-ownership. That's why this would essentially be 21 a recurring issue.

22 What also no one has shown me is why
23 there's anything unique about TransCanada and Columbia 24 that would not make this something that would be a far

1 more wide-reaching precedent.

2 What's your take on that? You don't 3 think that there's not cross-holdings, do you?

4 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: No, I would 5 presume there are cross-holdings. I mean, we know the 6 data generally with diversified investors and the way
7 mutual funds and other institutional investors invest,
8 if the rules they are advocating are to be the rules
9 in Delaware, we are likely done with the class action 10 mechanism, which becomes so cumbersome that it's 11 almost unmanageable. At a minimum, we revert back to 12 the claims process that --

13 THE COURT: Yes. Again, it certainly 14 becomes massively cumbersome. Essentially, what you 15 have to do is you have to do a mid-case claims process
16 to figure out who's going to be in the class. So 17 think how expensive an end-of-case claims process is 18 or a settlement claims process is and all that that 19 requires.

20 I mean, one can say with a straight
21 face that class actions wouldn't be gone, but I guess 22 what I don't want to do is have you say to me, oh, 23 they haven't come forward with evidence that there's 24 cross-ownership and create the impression that the

1 reason why it would be okay in this case is because 2 there's not likely to be some cross-ownership.

3 I think that would be closing our eyes 4 to the fact that, as you also point out, there's got 5 to be substantial cross-ownership. I mean, I don't 6 know what the level is, but there's got to be some.

7 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: And there's 8 nothing unique about this case. In that regard, this 9 is a garden-variety merger, and strategic mergers
10 happen all the time. Folks in the same industry buy 11 one another.

12 THE COURT: Anyway, I interrupted you
13 because I just didn't want to go down the road where 14 we were presuming to engage on a basis where we were 15 pretending that there really wasn't likely to be 16 cross-ownership because nobody had come forward with 17 plain evidence of the magnitude of cross-ownership, 18 but I don't want to throw you off in terms of whatever 19 else you wanted to say in your reply.

20 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Well, I'll only 21 make one more point on the cross-ownership, and that 22 is with respect to Detroit specifically, because I did 23 not address -- I addressed our affirmative points on 24 adequacy when I stood up at the podium before, but the

1 notion that having a nominally larger dollar stake in 2 an acquirer that is three times the size of the 3 company being acquired, that that somehow creates a 4 conflict or whatever, create any type of right of 5 offset, we just fundamentally disagree with that.

6 And, certainly, in terms of, you know,
7 adequacy in this case, again, Your Honor, I'd say the 8 best objective evidence here is, you know, what have 9 these stockholders done today. Is there any 10 suggestion, as TransCanada says in its papers, that 11 Detroit is adverse, is somehow adverse to the members 12 of the class or has acted adversely at any time? To 13 the contrary, basically all the history shows 14 advancing the interests of the stockholder class.

15 One last point, Your Honor, I just 16 want to make on this. The notion of the impact of the 17 appraisal decision on factual findings made in the 18 appraisal trial with respect to appraisal petitioners 19 who may be members of the class, you know, in thinking 20 about it more, I mean, as I understand Cede v.
21 Technicolor, the stockholders have a right to elect 22 their remedies following a trial, a trial of all 23 claims.

24 There has not been a trial of all

1 claims here, and as I mentioned before, there's not 2 been a trial of all claims because TransCanada opposed 3 a trial of all claims.

4 So I want to somewhat walk back what I
5 said before, having considered it more under what I
6 understand to still be binding precedent in Delaware, 7 that that is an appraisal petitioner's right to elect 8 whether or not, following a trial, that stockholder 9 wants to have some other remedy.

10 And I think that's sort of consistent 11 with Orchard, where there was a trial, and the 12 appraisal petitioners who were included later in the 13 settlement class were effectively topped up to receive 14 the remedy that the fiduciary plaintiffs had secured 15 in the class action case.

16 Unless Your Honor has any questions,
17 that's all I have.

18 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

19 We've been going for 90 minutes. I 20 appreciate everyone's presentations and patience on 21 this issue. Let's take a 15-minute break.

22 And when we come back, I think I'm 23 going to go ahead and give you an answer on this 24 motion, and then we'll move on to the settlement

1 approval motion.

2 Thank you, everyone. We stand in 3 recess until 11:00.

4 (Recess taken from 10:45 a.m. to 11:00 a.m.)

5 THE COURT: Welcome back, everyone. I
6 appreciate your time and your presentations this 7 morning, and your briefing.

8 We have two matters to address this 9 morning. First is the motion for class certification.
10 The second is the approval of the settlement.

11 I'm going to go ahead and address the 12 first question now, and that's the motion to certify 13 class that would be used to litigate this case going 14 forward. It's not a class for all time. It can be 15 modified for good cause shown. Absent modification, 16 it's the class that will be used to litigate this case 17 to judgment.

18 In terms of the factual background,
19 I'm not going to spend time on that. I would refer 20 people to a decision dated March 1, 2021, which I 21 think of as the dismissal decision, that denied a 22 Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss. There's also 23 background in a decision issued August 12th, 2019, 24 which I think of as the appraisal decision, which was

1 a post-trial decision in the appraisal action.

2 I'm also not going to go through 3 chapter and verse on the language of Rule 23(a) and 4 (b) and what they say. I'll let you-all, in the 5 interests of time, look up those things on your own if 6 anybody wants to examine the actual text.

7 So what I'm asked to certify today is 8 a class that is defined as "all public stockholders of 9 [Columbia] at any time from July 6, 2015 through and 10 including July 1, 2016 ..., including any and all of 11 their respective successors-in-interest, successors, 12 predecessors-in-interest, predecessors, assigns, and 13 transferees ..., " and then there are exclusions for 14 the defendants, parties associated with TransCanada 15 and their affiliates.

16 This is a standard class definition
17 for an M&A case. One could find literally thousands 18 of settlements agreeing to a definition like this.
19 One could find, I suspect -- I don't know what the 20 order of magnitude is, but I would bet it's north of a 21 hundred, certainly high double figures using these 22 types of definitions for litigation classes. So I
23 start from that premise that there is nothing 24 exceptional in any way about the proposed definition.

1 TransCanada has objected to the 2 definition. The opposition struck me as a little bit 3 like coleslaw: They chopped up a lot of cases on 4 class actions from a lot of different contexts and 5 pulled in quotations, then threw it all together into 6 one somewhat slimy bowl of stuff. I think their 7 arguments rest on very basic misunderstandings about 8 how a corporate class action works and how this court 9 has adjudicated and certified classes for quite some 10 time.

11 TransCanada's objections can largely 12 be divided into three categories.

13 The first is problems with the class
14 definition as to its breadth.

15 The second is with problems under 16 Rule 23(a).

17 And then the third is problems under 18 Rule 23(b) and the appropriate mechanism for 19 certification.

20 One of the principal themes throughout 21 TransCanada's opposition is this concept of 22 cross-ownership. TransCanada starts from the 23 plaintiffs' premise that TransCanada aided and abetted 24 a breach of fiduciary duty by Smith and Skaggs that

1 resulted in TransCanada paying too little to acquire 2 Columbia. It then says, well, that necessarily must 3 mean that TransCanada's stockholders benefited from 4 that outcome. TransCanada then envisions a world in 5 which the Court looks through TransCanada, effectively 6 piercing the veil of TransCanada, to determine how 7 much TransCanada stock each investor in Columbia 8 owned.

9 The Court then nets out the alleged 10 benefit, and if the investor owned more TransCanada 11 stock such that it was a net benefiter rather than a 12 net loser, then those stockholders are excluded from 13 the class. Essentially, TransCanada maintains that 14 the class can only include net losers.

15 I think this notion of certifying a 16 class based on net losers and net gainers is 17 conceptually wrong in many ways. There's nothing 18 unique to this case that would warrant it. There is 19 no material difference that would distinguish this 20 case from the other cases in which this court 21 regularly certifies classes of the type proposed and 22 does so under (b)(1) and (b)(2).

23 As I noted, the premise requires
24 looking through TransCanada to assess its individual

1 stockholders. It also treats the benefit as something 2 that those stockholders would be entitled to receive,
3 when in a situation where the net loser/net gainer 4 concept becomes pertinent, what there would be is an 5 adjudicated fiduciary wrong.

6 Most importantly, I think it ignores 7 the distinction between personal claims, which 8 individuals hold, versus claims associated with a 9 property right. So, in other words, claims that 10 persons hold in their capacities as stockholders.

11 (b)(3) classes are associated with the 12 former. (b)(1) and (b)(2) classes are associated with 13 the latter. The TransCanada approach is a (b)(3) 14 individualized injury approach that looks at the 15 individual. One needn't stop at cross-ownership. One 16 could look at the individual in all respects, as one 17 does in other settings, to see if they were harmed or 18 helped, rather than simply looking at that person in 19 their capacity as a holder of shares, which is what 20 Delaware law does.

21 So let's start with the objections to 22 the class definition. As I noted at the outset, it's 23 a standard class definition. TransCanada objects that 24 the class is overbroad because it includes all public

1 stockholders from July 6, 2015, through and including 2 July 1, 2016. TransCanada professes not to understand 3 why that definition would be appropriate. It is 4 customary to start with the beginning of the time
5 period that's potentially covered by the sale process
6 and end with the closing of the merger.

7 Now, I'll say that's not required, and 8 it's not required for Delaware law purposes, because, 9 as we know from the Delaware Supreme Court's decision 10 in Urdan, the claims that are being litigated in this 11 case, and which are generally litigated under Delaware
12 law, travel with the shares. So folks who were owners 13 at the start of that class period but not at the end 14 of the class period because they sold, gave up their 15 shares and sold them to the new owner. The right to 16 bring and benefit from these claims traveled with that 17 transaction.

18 Likewise, somebody who dipped in and 19 dipped out of the stock during the class period. That 20 person acquired their shares, would be entitled to be 21 a member of a class asserting the Delaware claim as of 22 the time they were an owner, and then dropped out 23 again when they sold their shares.

24 What this means is that the Delaware

1 law claims for breach of fiduciary duty, whether they 2 be the sale process claims or the disclosure claims, 3 ultimately end up being held by the owners of the 4 shares at the effective time. The class period only 5 needs to cover the shares at the effective time.

6 A temporally broad class definition in 7 a Delaware case only benefits the defendants. It 8 doesn't change the quantum of damages because of this 9 factor of claims passing with the shares. What it 10 does is it gives broad res judicata effect to the 11 judgment, such that if the defendants prevail, great, 12 a large class, a temporally broad class is bound.

13 If the defendants don't prevail and 14 they have to pay some money, okay, but at least a 15 temporally broad class is bound. So it is 16 counterintuitive for the defendants to come in and 17 say, no, no, we want a shorter class period. This 18 isn't something that affects the count of shares in 19 the class, which is something that the net loser/net 20 gainer concept addresses.

21 The time period is something that,
22 again, I don't see any basis for it to benefit 23 TransCanada, but I think what TransCanada is here to 24 do is make whatever arguments it can, and this is an

1 argument that it had, and so it made it.

2 So I am going to acknowledge that 3 TransCanada has a valid point. The only stockholders 4 that need to be in the class for purposes of the 5 claims that will be litigated to judgment are those 6 stockholders at the effective time. So I am going to 7 modify the class definition to refer to the public 8 stockholders of Columbia as of the effective time on 9 July 1, 2016, subject to the exceptions that were in 10 the original definition.

11 The next argument that TransCanada
12 makes is that the class impermissibly includes 19 13 Columbia stockholders who were parties to the 14 appraisal action and are bound by the appraisal
15 decision. One consequence of the Delaware 16 Supreme Court's ruling in Cede v. Technicolor is that 17 a stockholder can pursue an appraisal and a breach of 18 fiduciary duty claim. The only limitation is that the 19 stockholder can't recover duplicative remedies.

20 In Technicolor, the Delaware
21 Supreme Court recommended deciding the breach of 22 fiduciary duty case first because that remedy is 23 likely to be broader and could moot the appraisal 24 case. At a minimum, the two are usually tried

1 together.

2 Here, that's what the plaintiffs 3 sought to do. TransCanada resisted that approach and 4 obtained a ruling from me saying that they did not 5 have to try the fiduciary duty class with the 6 appraisal claim. So we did the appraisal claim first.

7 There's nothing wrong with including 8 the appraisal petitioners in the class. The 9 plaintiffs have cited the Orchard Enterprise cases, 10 which I think are on point.

11 What I do think is a fair point for 12 TransCanada to raise is that it is likely true that as 13 to factual findings made in the appraisal case, those 14 factual findings are binding on the parties that 15 actually litigated that case. Thus, the 19 Columbia 16 stockholders who actually litigated that case to 17 judgment, I think it is true, as a matter of issue 18 preclusion, are bound by factual findings in that 19 case.

20 Now, TransCanada takes the next step
21 and asserts that those appraisal members can't be part 22 of the class because their claims for breach of 23 fiduciary duty arising from the sale process, their 24 Revlon claims, are barred based on the findings that

1 were made in the appraisal case. This is the same 2 argument that was made as to all plaintiffs at the 3 motion to dismiss stage. It was advanced as a matter
4 of issue preclusion. It was also advanced as a theory
5 of stare decisis. The Court rejected that argument.

6 I quoted earlier from pages 1 and 2 of 7 the dismissal decision, which summarized the Court
8 rejecting that argument. That's law of the case. I 9 understand that the defendants disagree with it.
10 That's their right. They sought interlocutory appeal 11 on that point, so there's no question that they 12 disagree with that outcome. But for purposes of this 13 proceeding, that's a ruling that I have made.

14 Now, the narrower point, though, that 15 factual findings could be binding on the appraisal 16 petitioners, is a meaningful one. So the question is 17 how to proceed.

18 It may not make any difference. I may 19 make the same factual findings that I made in the 20 appraisal case. Or there might be factual findings 21 that differ but which lack any legal significance. So 22 my view is that the best course is to try this case.
23 After I've issued a post-trial decision, there can be 24 an opportunity for the parties to address whether the

1 Court has made factual findings that, A, differ from 2 the appraisal action and, B, have legal significance
3 as to the outcome. If there are such factual
4 findings, then I would have the ability to create a
5 subclass consisting of the appraisal claimants. I
6 don't have to do that now. I can do that once we know 7 whether that's a real problem or just a hypothetical 8 problem.

9 All right. So those are my rulings on 10 the class definition. I'm now going to use that 11 definition to analyze Rule 23(a) and (b).

12 For purposes of Rule 23(a)(1), 13 numerosity is plainly satisfied. There were over 14 400 million shares of Columbia common stock
15 outstanding and entitled to vote as of the record
16 date. It's reasonable to infer that that same amount 17 of shares was outstanding at the effective time. That 18 is a quite-large number, sufficient to satisfy
19 Rule 23(a)(1), particularly when the record reflects 20 that those shares were held by approximately 22,000
21 holders of record.

22 The next question is whether there are 23 common questions of law or fact under 23(a)(2). This 24 element is satisfied where the questions of law or

1 fact linking the class members are substantially 2 related to the resolution of the litigation. That's 3 from the Delaware Supreme Court's decision in the 4 Leon Weiner case from 1991.

5 In the Marie Raymond Revocable Trust
6 decision from 2008, this court held that the 7 commonality requirement was met when the plaintiff
8 alleged injuries to all investors stemming from a 9 common course of action by defendants, including an 10 alleged breach of the defendants' fiduciary duties
11 owed to the class in connection with the transaction 12 at issue in that case, which was an exchange offer.

13 It's true that there can be some cases
14 where common questions of fact sufficient to certify a 15 class do not exist. This is not one of them. This is 16 a standard M&A deal case. From a class certification 17 standpoint, there's nothing different. There's 18 nothing unique. The defendants took action that 19 affected the stockholders proportionally based on 20 their ownership of Columbia stock. All of the legal 21 issues in the case are common across the holders of 22 the common stock. Those questions include whether 23 Skaggs and Smith breached their fiduciary duties in 24 connection with the merger, whether TransCanada aided

1 and abetted Skaggs and Smith's breaches of fiduciary 2 duties, and whether the sell-side stockholders are 3 entitled to damages.

4 Now, this is one of the main places
5 where TransCanada trots out its net losers/net gainers
6 theory. TransCanada asserts that the class would need 7 to be significantly pared back to exclude net gainers.
8 I think that this argument treats the class as if this 9 was going to be a 23(b)(3) class comprised of 10 individuals like mass tort victims or antitrust 11 plaintiffs, where we'd have to work through each 12 person individually to assess the degree of harm.
13 That's not how these claims work.

14 As I've already stated, under Urdan,
15 the rights being asserted travel with the security.
16 They exist because of the person's capacity as a 17 holder of the shares. One doesn't look to the person 18 as an individual. One doesn't consider, for example, 19 as one would do if one were a trustee considering the 20 interests of one's beneficiaries, whether that person 21 needed money because of their age or sickness or 22 financial situation or children or employment status 23 or any of these things attendant as to that person's 24 individual capacity.

1 One might, indeed, if one were a
2 trustee, take into account someone's other investments
3 when making a decision as to what to do in the best 4 interests of that beneficiary.

5 That's not how corporate fiduciary 6 duties work. Fiduciary duties are owed to the 7 corporation and its stockholders, and what that means 8 is people in their capacity as owners of the shares.
9 We don't ask whether those people needed money because 10 they lost their jobs. We don't ask whether those 11 people might benefit from a longer holding period 12 because they're really wealthy and don't need the cash 13 right now. We don't ask whether those people might 14 really need to sell because they actually had some 15 medical tragedy and need the money. What our cases 16 say is that the directors have a fiduciary duty to 17 strive to maximize the value of the equity.

18 There's actually a pretty humorous
19 law review article on this. I think it's humorous.
20 It's by a fellow named Daniel Greenwood. And it's 21 from 1996, and it's in the Southern California Law 22 Review. It's called "Fictional Shareholders: For 23 Whom are Corporate Managers Trustees, Revisited."

24 He goes through this analysis from the

1 point of view of satire to try to say that it's silly
2 for corporate law not to think about the individual 3 interests of persons in the way that I've just 4 articulated, but sometimes satire can be insightful.
5 Think about Jonathan Swift. What he actually shows is 6 that this is really how we think about these things.

7 So one of the things that we don't do,
8 is we don't look through to individualize damages 9 based on buy-side holdings which would require 10 ignoring the corporate separateness of the acquirer 11 and looking through to the effect at the time of the 12 deal on the individual stockholders.

13 Now, that doesn't mean that we have to 14 blind ourselves to cross-holdings in other contexts.
15 And I'm going to get to 23(a)(4) in this case.
16 Cross-holdings can create incentives, and so in a 17 setting where incentives are important for 18 decision-making, one can consider the decision-makers' 19 incentives. That's why, as counsel points out, we 20 have considered cross-holdings when we think about 21 things like whether individual directors are 22 disinterested and independent or who should be 23 included in the definition of disinterested and 24 independent shares. We think about these things in

1 those contexts because of their implications for 2 approval and what the approval decision means.

3 We don't -- at least we never have,
4 and I don't think we should -- do that same type of 5 look-through for purposes of a damages analysis in a 6 corporate case involving a (b)(1) or (b)(2) class
7 where the claims arise and are attached to and travel
8 with the shares and are therefore reflective of harm 9 to the person in their capacity as a holder of the 10 shares, not harm to the person in their capacity as 11 the holder of inalienable rights to life, liberty, and 12 the pursuit of happiness.

13 Here, liability can be determined on a 14 class-wide basis. The issues can be determined on a 15 class-wide basis. If there is a remedy, it will run 16 against TransCanada, not against its stockholders. As 17 I tried to inquire, but I think I did so inaptly and 18 ineffectively, is how the fact that TransCanada pays 19 the judgment -- if, indeed, there is a judgment, 20 because that's the only setting that really matters 21 and would work through indirectly to the cross-owning 22 stockholders and effectively inflict harm on them.
23 That is a factor that doesn't seem to me to be taken 24 into account in the objection that TransCanada has

1 raised.

2 So I do hold, to be clear, and I think
3 there was an invitation to be clear on this, I do 4 think, as a matter of law, this is not something we 5 do. I'm not making this finding based on the idea 6 that there isn't cross-ownership. I think that would 7 be a counterfactual assumption. I think there likely 8 is cross-ownership. I think there likely is 9 cross-ownership in virtually every deal case involving 10 two publicly traded companies, and so I think that 11 this is an issue where a change would have quite 12 significant policy ramifications.

13 All right. Now, let's talk about 14 Rules 23(a)(3) and (a)(4). Rule (a)(3) requires that 15 the claims or defenses of the representative parties 16 be typical of the claims or defenses of the class.
17 For all the reasons I've now explained, the lead 18 plaintiffs' claims and injuries are typical. They are 19 viewed for purposes of this action as sell-side 20 stockholders. It is not a unique defense or 21 disproportionate defense for them to have a potential 22 buy-side interest, or in the case of Detroit, to have 23 an actual buy-side interest. So typicality is 24 satisfied.

1 Now let's talk about Rule 23(a)(4).
2 Rule 23(a)(4) asks whether the representative parties 3 will fairly and adequately protect the interests of 4 the class. This is an inquiry into decision-making.
5 This is an inquiry into whether the class
6 representatives can fulfill their fiduciary duties.
7 It therefore is, in my view, analogous to those 8 settings where we have considered cross-ownership to 9 determine whether directors have a conflict or whether 10 stockholders can be validly included in the definition 11 of the disinterested shares.

12 I do think that it is fair to take 13 into account levels of ownership, and, indeed, 14 cross-ownership, when evaluating whether the 15 representative parties will fairly and adequately 16 protect the interests of the class.

17 TransCanada argues here that Detroit
18 can't meet this standard because Detroit is a dual 19 stockholder that owned a substantially greater equity
20 interest in TransCanada than in Columbia. TransCanada 21 argues that Detroit's interest was seven times its 22 interest in Columbia, that it therefore should be 23 excluded from the class and can't be an adequate or 24 typical class representative.

1 I've already explained why I don't 2 think Detroit has to be excluded from the class. I 3 have considered whether this level of interest should 4 be a problem for (a)(4), and I am not at all convinced 5 that it is.

6 Would I take it into account at some 7 level? Yes, I would. Would I take it into account
8 potentially when I was assessing a leadership
9 structure and choosing between competing counsel? I 10 might think about it there too.

11 I don't think this is irrelevant, but 12 I don't think it is a factor in this case that 13 warrants making a finding of inadequacy under 14 Rule 23(a)(4). I think the plaintiffs and their 15 counsel have proven quite graphically that they are 16 diligent litigators who are pursuing the best 17 interests of the class. They've been doing so for 18 quite some time against significant odds, and they 19 have obtained in this case a settlement, which I 20 haven't yet approved, but which is indicative of their 21 ability to act on behalf of and in the best interests
22 of the class.

23 So having taken into account the 24 allegations about cross-holdings, I do find that

1 Rule 23(a)(4) is satisfied.

2 TransCanada has further argued that 3 Detroit can't serve as a representative plaintiff 4 because its Rule 30(b)(6) representative was 5 unprepared to answer basic questions regarding noticed 6 topics. I didn't like the quality of the testimony 7 that the 30(b)(6) witness gave. He should have been 8 better prepared. He should have known more. But I 9 don't think the answer is to disqualify Detroit or 10 plaintiffs' counsel or hold that 23(a)(4) isn't met.

11 I think that when I take into account
12 what I have seen, and particularly witnessed in terms 13 of the litigation conduct and the vigorous efforts 14 that the plaintiffs have put in, 23(a)(4) is met.

15 I'm also not moved by the argument
16 that neither Detroit nor Mississippi could adequately 17 represent the class because they failed to give 18 informed consent to continue being represented by 19 Bernstein Litowitz based on the order issued by the 20 District Judge in California. I think that's, in the 21 first instance, a question for Detroit and 22 Mississippi.

23 It's not clear to me why TransCanada
24 has the ability or should be able to argue that

1 Detroit and Mississippi needed to be protected from 2 their own decision-making in this regard.

3 Now, what I do think about is whether 4 this could evidence some type of compromised decision
5 by Detroit or Mississippi and therefore an inability 6 to oversee counsel that would lead to counsel not 7 doing an effective job. And just as I've already 8 said, I think that when viewed in the totality of the 9 circumstances, that's not a point that moves me. So 10 from my standpoint, all of the Rule 23(a) factors are 11 satisfied.

12 The next question I have to deal with 13 is certification under Rule 23(b). There are three 14 options: (b)(1), (b)(2), and (b)(3). TransCanada 15 argues that if the class can be certified at all, it 16 has to be certified under Rule 23(b)(3). That is 17 contrary to our law and a number of well-reasoned 18 decisions by distinguished members of this court.

19 Chancellor Allen addressed the issue
20 at length in 1991 in the Hynson case. He also talked 21 about it in the Mobile Communications case.

22 Chief Justice Strine, when he was a 23 member of this court, addressed it in the 24 Turner v. Bernstein case. The defendants have cited a

1 decision by then-Vice Chancellor Steele in 2 Dieter v. Prime that took a different approach. That 3 decision predated Turner, and I don't think is 4 persuasive.

5 I think if there was any doubt about 6 the availability of 23(b)(1) and (b)(2) certification
7 from the decisions of this court, we have a statement 8 from the Delaware Supreme Court in 2012. I'm going to 9 read it to you, "Delaware courts repeatedly have held 10 that actions challenging the propriety of director 11 conduct in carrying out corporate transactions are 12 properly certifiable under both subdivisions (b)(1)
13 and (b)(2). The availability of potential damages 14 alone does not automatically require certification 15 under Rule 23(b)(3)." That's from the Celera case.

16 Certification under this Court's 17 precedents is plainly warranted here. A class is 18 properly certified under Rule 23(b)(1) where the case
19 involves "one set of actions by [the] defendants 20 creating a uniform type of impact upon the class of 21 stockholders." That's a cleaned-up version of a 22 quotation from the Turner decision by 23 then-Vice Chancellor Strine. That's exactly what we 24 have here.

1 What our cases normally do is certify
2 under 23(b)(1) and also say that 23(b)(2) is another
3 vehicle. That's what I think as well. The plaintiffs 4 seek class-wide declaratory relief. That can be a 5 vehicle for 23(b)(2) certification under our 6 precedents, so I can certify under both 23(b)(1) and 7 23(b)(2)

8 So the bottom line is I'm certifying
9 the class. The one modification I'm making is that 10 I'm certifying the class comprising the stockholders
11 as of July 1, 2016 at the effective time, and I am 12 acknowledging the possibility that it may be necessary 13 at a later time to think about the appraisal claimants 14 once we know whether that issue matters or not.

15 I appreciate you-all bearing with me.

16 Any questions on that before we turn
17 to the settlement? It's technically the plaintiffs'
18 motion, so I'll start with you.

19 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: No, Your Honor.
20 No questions. Thank you.

21 THE COURT: Defendants?

22 ATTORNEY LESSNER: No questions,
23 Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Great. Thank you so much.

1 All right.

2 ATTORNEY van KWAWEGEN: Good morning,
3 Your Honor. Jeroen van Kwawegen from 4 Bernstein Litowitz on behalf of the plaintiffs.

5 Your Honor, I'm proud to stand here,
6 very proud of this settlement. The question before 7 the Court is whether the settlement, plan of 8 allocation, and the fee are fair and reasonable, and 9 we respectfully submit that they are.

10 Your Honor saw from the papers that 11 over 100,000 Columbia -- the pipeline stockholders, 12 former stockholders, received notice, and we know that 13 they paid attention because when there was an error in 14 the signing -- in the sending of the notice, they 15 started calling us, and we corrected that mislabeling 16 of the notice.

17 So it is not the case that this notice
18 just went into the garbage and nobody paid attention.
19 People were actually paying attention. And after they 20 paid attention, no former stockholder came forward and 21 said, we object to the settlement, we object to the 22 plan of allocation, we object to the fee. And we 23 respectfully submit that there's no reason to do so.

24 When you think about the settlement,

1 it's a $79 million settlement, one of the largest 2 settlements against individual defendants with respect
3 to Revlon claims. One of the largest partial 4 settlements that I think has ever been presented in 5 this court.

6 And, as Your Honor saw from the 7 papers, clearly the result of hard-fought litigation 8 against well-skilled adversaries and the result of 9 hard-fought negotiations. I have deepest respect for 10 the Wachtell firm, Mr. Savitt, Mr. Yavitz. These were 11 not easy negotiations, I can assure Your Honor.

12 So respectfully, we honestly believe 13 this is one of the best settlements we could have 14 achieved at this point in time. We are very proud of 15 it.

16 When you think about the plan of 17 allocation, plan of allocation has been consistently 18 applied like this since Dole and PLX and Starz, and it 19 has been consistently used in this court since those 20 cases.

21 And in the past, there have been 22 objections to that kind of plan of allocation from 23 former stockholders. I remember vividly an objection
24 to the allocation in Starz from a former stockholder

1 who said, you know, this system where you have direct 2 deposits don't make sense, and Vice Chancellor
3 Glasscock overruled that objection. And the reason I
4 think, fundamentally, is the acknowledgment that no
5 plan of allocation is perfect.

6 When the choices are between a
7 claims-made process and a direct deposit, there is no 8 perfect answer. The claims-made process has 9 significant flaws. I do securities litigation in 10 addition to litigation in this court, and Your Honor 11 earlier today alluded to the cost of administering 12 those plans, but in addition to that, many small 13 stockholders never get paid. They don't fill out the 14 form because their holdings are too small or because 15 of some other reason that I don't know.

16 Whereas here, in this court, the plan 17 of allocation ensures that all stockholders, as of the 18 effective date, or virtually all of them, will get 19 paid, which I submit, respectfully, is a significant 20 benefit of the system that this court has created.

21 Now, again, no former Columbia
22 stockholder has objected to this plan of allocation 23 after the Court-approved notice went out, which, of 24 course, describes this plan of allocation in detail.

1 And then finally, the request for fees
2 has also not been opposed by any stockholder. And 3 Your Honor saw from the papers, we respectfully 4 request payment of 23 percent of the settlement, which 5 amounts to an hourly rate of less than $1400 an hour, 6 which is far below the rates that this Court has 7 approved in the past.

8 So normally I would have stopped
9 there, but, of course, we know that TransCanada lodged 10 an objection, so let me just quickly turn to that.

11 Your Honor, there are three 12 fundamental problems with TransCanada's objection.

13 The first one is standing.

14 The second one is the assumption that 15 the settlement class must be identical to the 16 litigation class.

17 And the third one is that TransCanada
18 has some right of setoff as opposed to a right to a 19 judgment reduction in case the requirements are met.

20 Those are the three fatal flaws,
21 Your Honor.

22 With respect to standing, TransCanada
23 is not a party to the settlement, not making any 24 payments, not releasing any claims. They have no

1 interest in this settlement that needs to be 2 protected.

3 And they could have protected those 4 interests if they had any, because we know that 5 TransCanada's counsel reviewed both the term sheet and 6 the settlement stipulation before Mr. Skaggs and 7 Mr. Smith entered into those agreements. That, I 8 think, could end the inquiry, Your Honor. They have 9 no standing to raise any objections.

10 But let's assume for a fact that we're 11 going to entertain those objections. Well, the second 12 fatal flaw is this assumption that the settlement
13 class must be the litigation class, and Your Honor 14 touched on that a little bit during the discussion
15 with my friend, Mr. Lessner.

16 There's no legal support that those 17 two classes must be identical, and there's a good 18 reason for that. They serve different purposes. When 19 you think about the settlement class, they are the 20 product of a negotiation, and I can tell you, 21 Your Honor, this was a vigorous negotiation between 22 us, on the one hand, and the Wachtell firm on the 23 other, because the settlement class, and the size of 24 the settlement class, ties directly into the release

1 that the defendants are getting, and they are very 2 interested in getting that release. And it's not just 3 them. It's also the insurance carriers that pay for a 4 settlement. And so there's a multi-level negotiation 5 going on at any given time.

6 At this point, I think it's important 7 for me to call out one of my colleagues, his name is 8 John Mills, and he is the person at my firm in our 9 settlement department who is involved in every 10 settlement that is presented to this court where my 11 firm is involved.

12 There's a practice now that whenever 13 we have a settlement in this court, my firm, including 14 Mr. Mills, take the laboring or -- on documenting the 15 settlement for the plaintiffs and negotiating the 16 class releases.

17 And so here, what happened was, there
18 was a hard-fought negotiation with Mr. Mills and me on 19 one hand and Mr. Yavitz and Mr. Savitt on the other 20 hand about that particular issue. And, of course, the 21 defendants are interested in getting as broad a 22 release as possible, but we, as shareholder lawyers, 23 take it very seriously that the release should not be 24 too broad and that it should be narrowed and tied to

1 the actual conduct or the merger or the claims 2 alleged, all subject to court approval.

3 That, Your Honor, is a fundamentally 4 different proposition than what Your Honor is 5 determining, like Your Honor just did, whether or not 6 a class should be certified for legal purposes.

7 And we respectfully submit under the 8 authorities submitted by us and also by the 9 supplemental letter that was submitted by Mr. Lafferty 10 that the authorities fully support this practice and 11 that when you look at the release here and the claim 12 definition -- the class definition here, they are 13 consistent with many, many, many, many settlements 14 that have been approved by this court.

15 The final fatal flaw, I think, in 16 TransCanada's objection is this notion that they have 17 a right of setoff and that somehow, if there's a 18 distribution that is being paid to the class, that 19 that could impact the rights of TransCanada. It 20 doesn't.

21 There's no scenario under which 22 passive class members receive payment of this partial 23 settlement and would have to give it back. There's no 24 scenario in which TransCanada could have some kind of 1 claim against the passive class members who have 2 received settlement.

3 What there is, is a possibility that 4 following a judgment -- and assuming that there is a 5 judgment in favor of the plaintiffs -- that 6 TransCanada can make a showing that it is entitled to 7 judgment reduction under DUCATA, and that was included 8 in the settlement and it is the law of this court.

9 But that judgment reduction will never 10 result in passive class members having to repay 11 anything or a new allocation of this particular 12 settlement to the passive class members, and that's 13 partially so because TransCanada is not a class 14 member.

15 Your Honor, that's all I wanted to 16 say, unless Your Honor has any questions about this.

17 THE COURT: Thank you.

18 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Your Honor, we 19 don't oppose the settlement. We don't -- our 20 opposition was based on that the plan of allocation 21 should match the litigation class, and we've already 22 made that argument.

23 Other than that, we have no objections
24 to the settlement.

1 THE COURT: Translate that for me into 2 smaller words that I'll be able to comprehend better.

3 In terms of the plan of allocation,
4 just spell that out for me a little bit more.

5 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Our concern was 6 that if the plan -- if the plan of allocation
7 allocated -- gave money to stockholders who the court 8 did not consider to be members of the class when the 9 time came, if the time ever came, for setoff or 10 reduction, that there could be an argument that we 11 were not entitled to the amount that was allocated to 12 people who were not damaged or who otherwise weren't 13 members of the class.

14 Here, I hear plaintiffs' counsel
15 saying that the time comes that TransCanada, if it 16 ever comes to that, would be entitled to the entire 17 setoff of $79 million, that there's not an argument 18 that would be made that if the classes were different 19 that there would not be a reduction or credit for 20 people who were in the settlement class but who were 21 not part of the litigation class.

22 THE COURT: Spin out for me a little 23 bit more the argument that you're making about the 24 allocation problem. I honestly didn't follow it in

1 your papers, and so I need you to help me with it a
2 little bit more as to what you thought could transpire
3 and how you thought it would happen.

4 ATTORNEY LESSNER: I'll try to 5 rephrase what I just said, Your Honor, but the concern 6 was that in a settlement, that, at the end of the day, 7 under Rural/Metro, if there was a judgment, that 8 TransCanada would get an offset for the amounts that 9 were paid.

10 If the amounts were paid under the 11 plan of allocation to persons who were not part of the 12 litigation class, then there would be an argument that 13 we were not entitled to that offset.

14 THE COURT: Yes. And spin that one
15 out for me. What would be the argument there?

16 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Well, there might 17 not be an argument, but I could envision the argument
18 that -- envision the argument that if you pay -- say 19 the class was half different, say it was half the 20 people -- it was only 200 million for the litigation
21 class but 400 million for the settlement class. I 22 could see an argument -- which apparently is not going 23 to be made -- that the settlement paid 20 cents a 24 share and -- but the ultimate judgment in the 1 litigation class was 40 cents a share, and so,

2 therefore, you are not -- that you are only entitled 3 to an offset of 20 cents a share, not the entire 4 79 million. That's the argument I can envision. It 5 apparently is not going to be made. And --

6 THE COURT: And in the actual issue,
7 the actual class definitions that were being proffered 8 here, that potential risk would exist how under the 9 original class definitions?

10 ATTORNEY LESSNER: The risk, as we saw 11 it, was that ultimate damages were going to be awarded 12 on a per-share basis. And so if you have the -- and 13 so the settlement is a common fund, so it's 79 million 14 among roughly 400 -- $79 million among roughly 15 400 million shares, and roughly 20 cents a share.
16 Okay.

17 So the risk was that the litigation
18 class was smaller, was different, was smaller. Say it 19 was 200 million. Okay. Then the only credit or 20 setoff or reduction or whatever we're talking about 21 would be 20 cents a share and not -- would be the 22 20 cents a share from the settlement and not the 23 entire -- the Court wouldn't -- or there would be an 24 argument that that's all we were entitled to instead

1 of entitled to the full 79.

2 THE COURT: And the potential
3 distinction between the two classes was because 4 TransCanada was arguing that the litigation class 5 should be smaller; right?

6 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Yes. And our 7 understanding is that the litigation class should be 8 the same -- the same factors as in the litigation 9 class are the same factors --

10 THE COURT: For your concern, what you 11 were envisioning was a litigation class that was 12 smaller than the settlement class.

13 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Our concern was a 14 litigation class, a settlement class that was greater 15 than the --

16 THE COURT: So I view those two things
17 as reciprocal. If the litigation class is smaller 18 than the settlement class, it strikes me that the 19 settlement class is greater than the litigation class.

20 Are you with me on that or do you have 21 a different view?

22 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Of course.

23 THE COURT: Since you made the point
24 of clarifying it, I thought that there might be a

1 divergence that you had picked up that I wasn't 2 following you on, and I wanted to make sure that I
3 wasn't missing a point that you were making.

4 We're on the same page?

5 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Yes, of course.

6 THE COURT: So why, if you-all argued 7 for a smaller class and you win that and get the 8 smaller class, would you still get the reduction for 9 the full settlement? Why wouldn't it naturally follow 10 that you would only get the lesser reduction?

11 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Well, Your Honor,
12 I'm not saying that that's a winning argument. I'm 13 saying that that's a risk -- I'm saying that that was 14 a risk that we would face that argument at some time.

15 THE COURT: Right. But what you
16 wanted to be able to do is to say we got this smaller 17 class. We only have to pay the smaller judgment, but 18 we should still get the offset based on the 19 much-larger class that the settlement went out to.

20 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Well, not 21 necessarily a class, Your Honor. It's the allocation.
22 So it's our understanding the allocation should be 23 tied to the class, that the people who were getting 24 allocated the money for the settlement should be the 1 same people who are members of the class.

2 And so, therefore, if the plan of 3 allocation gives people money, gives people the 4 $79 million who were ultimately found not to be part 5 of the litigation class, there could be an argument -- 6 not that we think it's a valid argument -- but there 7 could be an argument that TransCanada was not entitled 8 to the entire offset, but only to the offset of the 9 people who were paid pursuant to the class.

10 THE COURT: Yes, I guess I'm trying to 11 understand why you would think you have a claim to the 12 full boat. We've got two types of people in the 13 settlement class, ins and outs, and the outs are the 14 people who aren't in the class that you wanted to 15 achieve, which was the much-smaller class, right. So 16 79 million goes to everybody in the settlement class.

17 What I understood you to be saying is,
18 hey, we, TransCanada, we're going to successfully 19 argue for a much-smaller class, we're only going to 20 owe money to this smaller class and therefore pay a 21 smaller aggregate damage award, and yet we want the 22 full offset from the larger. We want the full 23 79 million. We just don't want whatever was allocated 24 the ins.

1 Why would you get that?

2 ATTORNEY LESSNER: Well, Your Honor,
3 that was why -- that was our position of why the 4 allocation coming out of the settlement should only be 5 to those people who -- the allocation -- the class 6 definition is derived or is -- I'm going to say it's 7 set aside. The real point here is the plan of 8 allocation because, even under their plan of 9 allocation, they were going to be allocating to what 10 we believed was a broader group of stockholders than 11 we had argued for, for the class certification. Which 12 is why our understanding is that the litigation class 13 should be the same as the allocation class because, 14 ultimately, at the end of the day, we did not want to 15 face the argument that Your Honor poses, and that is 16 that the plan of allocation paid stockholders -- paid 17 stockholders who were not part of the litigation 18 class, and we wanted to avoid that argument, which is 19 why we argued that the plan of allocation and the 20 eligible stockholders and the -- should match with the 21 litigation class.

22 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

23 ATTORNEY van KWAEGEN: Nothing 24 further from me, Your Honor, unless you have

1 questions.

2 THE COURT: I want to know if 3 Mr. Lafferty or his colleagues want to add anything.
4 They did put in a response. I appreciate it. It was 5 very helpful. I don't want to cut you-all off if you 6 have anything to add.

7 ATTORNEY LAFFERTY: We have nothing
8 further to add at this point, Your Honor.

9 ATTORNEY van KWAEGEN: I apologize,
10 Your Honor, but I also have nothing to add unless 11 Your Honor has any questions.

12 THE COURT: All right. Great.
13 Well, I appreciate everyone's 14 presentations. I'm going to go ahead and rule on the 15 settlement now.

16 No one actually opposes the 17 settlement. No one actually filed an opposition to 18 the settlement. What TransCanada filed was a strange 19 brief that said that TransCanada does not oppose the 20 proposed partial settlement, per se but, nevertheless, 21 raised an objection to the class definition.

22 I don't think TransCanada has standing
23 to object. It's not a party to the settlement. It's 24 not a member of the class. It's expressly excluded

1 from the definition. There is an exception, 2 admittedly, where the nonsettling defendant can 3 demonstrate they will suffer some formal legal 4 prejudice as a result of the partial settlement. I 5 don't see any basis for any claim of prejudice. To 6 the extent that there is some form of liability 7 imposed on TransCanada after trial, TransCanada will 8 have its rights under the Delaware Uniform 9 Contribution Against Tortfeasors Act. That's what 10 TransCanada gets.

11 What TransCanada doesn't get is the 12 opportunity to insert itself in an otherwise 13 arm's-length bargain between two parties to restrict 14 what they can agree to in terms of their releases and 15 the class that they can propose.

16 Now, there might be some contractual
17 basis for that. I don't know if TransCanada had a 18 consent right. There's been the representation made 19 that TransCanada reviewed the settlement terms when 20 they were being negotiated. But in terms of this 21 motion, I don't think that TransCanada had standing to 22 object.

23 The parties had separately briefed the 24 motion for class certification. The plaintiff didn't

1 re-engage on the class definition when it moved for 2 approval of the settlement. TransCanada filed a brief 3 that was in every respect a surreply on the motion for 4 class certification.

5 I don't get it. We had this issue
6 once in the case before. I think Mr. Yoch remembers 7 this issue. I actually think Mr. Massengill was on 8 the phone. I think Mr. Lessner was on the phone 9 because he tried to speak up on it. I addressed this 10 specifically.

11 I don't know why you-all are having so
12 much trouble following the rules. I don't know what I 13 can do to try to get you to follow the rules. The 14 Court isn't used to having lawyers, particularly 15 Delaware lawyers, have so much trouble following the 16 rules.

17 I thought about striking this. I
18 thought about imposing some additional sanction along 19 the lines of the fee that I asked Mr. Yoch to pay, and 20 which he responsibly did pay, and I appreciate his 21 doing that.

22 I want to say again, I don't know what 23 you-all are doing, and I don't understand it as a 24 matter of judgment either. The key claim in this

1 case, or one of the key claims in this case, is that 2 your client doesn't follow the rules. One of the key 3 claims in this case, at least as it's shaping up, is 4 that there was a "don't ask, don't waive" standstill 5 that your client allegedly, with the help of its legal 6 counsel, blew through.

7 And what you-all come in here and do
8 is you keep demonstrating that same behavior. It's 9 evidence of conduct, and there's reasons why and times 10 when we can consider it. Intent is one. And what 11 I've got is a party that is just repeatedly not 12 following the rules, and I do not understand it.

13 I tried to be clear when I put 14 Mr. Yoch on the spot the last time around as to what I 15 expected. I wanted to put it behind us. I wanted a 16 clean slate. I didn't want anybody to mention again.
17 I suspect it was embarrassing for Mr. Yoch. It wasn't 18 pleasant for me. I have a lot of respect for 19 Mr. Yoch. Everyone on the Court does. And I thought 20 we were going to be done with it. Yet here we are 21 again. So I'd just ask you-all to think about it.

22 All right. My first task is class 23 certification. I am not using the same definition for 24 the litigation class that I certified. I'm going to 1 use the definition that is actually in the settlement

2 papers. For all the reasons I discussed in my ruling 3 for class certification, and which were ably presented 4 by the plaintiffs and by Mr. Lafferty in his response, 5 that type of definition is both customary and 6 appropriate in a settlement context because one of the 7 sets of claims that the plaintiffs also have the 8 ability to release are the claims of claimants under 9 other types of law, such as the federal securities
10 laws or common law. We know that from Matsushita
11 case, which was a decision related to the MCA 12 litigation in this court.

13 So I have no problem certifying the 14 class. I think it's clear that it doesn't have to be 15 the same class that is used for the litigation. I see 16 zero risk of prejudice to TransCanada.

17 In terms of the procedural 18 requirements, the affidavits that were required under 19 the rules have been filed both for purposes of 20 Rule 23(aa) and Rule 23(e).

21 I have reviewed the steps that were 22 taken to distribute notice of the settlement. The 23 form of the notice was adequate. It was admittedly 24 cursory. I had a discussion with my clerks, as I

1 often do, when they look at these notices and come 2 talk to me about them and they say, this is really all
3 it has to say? And I say, yes, that's really all it
4 has to say. It adequately described the lawsuit. It
5 adequately described the settlement consideration. It
6 stated the location, date, and time of this settlement 7 hearing, and it explained how the class members could 8 obtain additional information by contacting 9 plaintiffs' counsel.

10 The record reflects that it was 11 adequately distributed. We have the affidavit of Eric 12 J. Miller found at Docket Item No. 389 that attests to 13 that effort. I appreciated the disclosure of the data 14 error and the steps that were taken to remedy it.
15 That's the type of candor that the Court is grateful 16 for, and I commend A.B. Data for agreeing to pay for 17 the updated notice. That strikes me as appropriate, 18 and it is appreciated.

19 In terms of the merits of the 20 settlement, the question is whether the terms of the 21 proposed settlement are fair and reasonable, 22 recognizing that this court generally favors
23 settlement of complicated litigation. I, 24 nevertheless, have to be involved because of the 1 fiduciary nature of the class action, which requires 2 that the Court participate to determine the extent of 3 the settlement's fairness. The core question is 4 whether the settlement falls within a range of 5 reasonableness that parties could accept. Those are 6 paraphrases of Gatz v. Ponsoldt, the Philadelphia

7 Stock Exchange case, Polk v. Good, and other 8 decisions.

9 In terms of the settlement here, it is 10 a settlement that I have no problem approving. The 11 plaintiffs asserted claims that Skaggs and Smith
12 breached their fiduciary duties during the sale
13 process. The plaintiffs had established a meaningful 14 evidentiary record supporting their claims that Skaggs 15 and Smith had breached their fiduciary duties. That 16 evidentiary record differed in material ways from the 17 record that had been developed in the appraisal action 18 because of differences in how discovery in this case 19 unfolded. That doesn't mean that the plaintiffs were 20 going to win. It's always difficult to prove a breach 21 of fiduciary duty, so there was certainly risk.

22 The parties reached a settlement after 23 negotiating at arm's length. The settlement
24 consideration is $79 million, less the award of fees

1 and expenses. The settlement doesn't release claims 2 against TransCanada, and the plaintiffs will be able 3 to continue to seek an additional monetary recovery
4 from TransCanada.

5 The plaintiffs have pointed out that 6 in absolute terms, the settlement is one of the 7 largest involving individual fiduciary defendants that 8 have presented to this court. I've taken that into 9 account. I've also taken into account the size of the 10 settlement relative to the size of the transaction and 11 the potential damages and those sorts of things.

12 Based on my consideration of the 13 record and what has been presented, I think that the 14 settlement falls within the range of reasonableness, 15 and I am happy to approve it.

16 I would also like to express the 17 Court's appreciation to Judge Layn Phillips, who 18 assisted in the mediation and helped get this 19 settlement to a conclusion. The involvement of a 20 skilled mediator like Judge Phillips is always a 21 positive factor that gives the Court comfort.

22 So having approved the settlement, the 23 next question is counsel's request for an award of 24 attorneys' fees. They've requested an all-in award of 1 $18,170,000, representing 23 percent of the settlement

2 consideration. That award is supported by Delaware
3 law, and I will approve it.

4 In brief, Delaware's policy is to 5 ensure that "even without a favorable adjudication, 6 counsel will be compensated for beneficial results 7 [that] they produced, provided that [the claim] was 8 meritorious and had a causal connection [with a] 9 conferred benefit." That's from the Allied Artists 10 case. The Sugarland factors are the criteria that we 11 apply. The most important is the size of the benefit.
12 Here, we have a self-pricing benefit in the form of 13 $79 million in cash.

14 The Court also considers the stage at 15 which the litigation has settled. The goal there is 16 to avoid creating an incentive or to mitigate any 17 incentive that the plaintiffs might have to settle 18 early for a bird in the hand rather than attempting to 19 get fair value for the case.

20 To assess that factor, the Court
21 considers the stage of the case and evaluates the type 22 of percentage that the plaintiffs have requested. The 23 percentage of the recovery here is right in line with 24 at least my personal views as to what is an

1 appropriate percentage. Those percentages are drawn
2 from the Americas Mining case from the Delaware
3 Supreme Court.

4 The other factors to me don't warrant
5 a major upward or downward adjustment. The case was 6 certainly difficult and complex enough to warrant this 7 type of recovery. As I suggested, this has been a 8 tough slog for the plaintiffs. There is already an 9 appraisal decision that made findings that were, I 10 would say, mixed in terms of their outcome. Some 11 favored the plaintiffs, but some certainly were 12 beneficial to the defendants. The plaintiffs faced a 13 hurdle in terms of that, in addition to all of the 14 other hurdles that normally arise in these types of 15 litigation. So that factor supports the fee award.

16 The plaintiffs litigated on a 17 contingent basis, which is also a factor that this 18 Court considers, and the plaintiffs' standing and 19 ability supports the size of the award.

20 I've also considered the time that the 21 plaintiffs expended as a cross-check and the implied 22 hourly rate. The implied hourly rate is not 23 excessive. It's actually relatively conservative 24 relative to some of the awards that this Court has

1 approved.

2 So for all of these reasons, I'm 3 approving the fee that was requested.

4 So at this point I usually look to see 5 if there's any type of updated form of order that 6 people would like to have me enter. If not, I'm happy 7 to go down and do something through LexisNexis.
8 What's your preference?

9 ATTORNEY WEINBERGER: Whatever the 10 Court's preference is. I have a copy of the final 11 order here (handing).

12 THE COURT: All right. It's a sad day
13 for the Court. This is Vice Chancellor Slight's' 14 official day of retirement. As I wrote the date, that 15 fact jumped out in my mind.

16 He's going to be around. I don't 17 think he's disappearing. He's been a fantastic 18 colleague. He is a great friend. We're all going to 19 miss him. So having written the date that I know to 20 be his last official day in the order, I wanted to 21 acknowledge that.

22 I'm grateful for everyone's time
23 today. I'm going to hand the signed order to the 24 clerk so that she can enter it on the docket.

1 I appreciate everyone's time and 2 consideration.

3 We stand in recess.

EXHIBIT AH

IN THE COURT OF CHANCERY OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE

IN RE COLUMBIA PIPELINE GROUP,
INC. MERGER LITIGATION

Consol. C.A. No. 2018-0484-JTL

STIPULATION AND AGREEMENT OF COMPROMISE AND SETTLEMENT BETWEEN PLAINTIFFS AND THE SETTLING DEFENDANTS

This Stipulation and Agreement of Compromise and Settlement between Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants (the “Stipulation”) is made and entered into as of March 2, 2022.¹ The parties to this Stipulation (each a “Settling Party” and, collectively, the “Settling Parties”), by and through their undersigned attorneys, have reached an agreement for the settlement of the claims asserted against Robert C. Skaggs, Jr. and Stephen P. Smith (the “Settling Defendants”) in the above-captioned matter styled In re Columbia Pipeline Group, Inc. Merger Litigation, filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware (the “Court”), C.A. No. 2018-0484-JTL (the “Action”) on the terms set forth below (the “Settlement”) and subject to Court approval pursuant to Court of Chancery Rule 23. This Stipulation is intended to fully, finally, and forever resolve, discharge, and settle (i) all Released Plaintiffs’ Claims against the Settling Defendants and the other Released Settling Defendants’ Persons and (ii) all Released Settling Defendants’ Claims against Plaintiffs and the other Released Plaintiffs' Persons. The Settling Parties are: (i) co-lead plaintiffs Public Employees' Retirement System of Mississippi and Police & Fire Retirement System of the City of Detroit ("Plaintiffs"), on behalf of themselves and the Class; and (ii) defendants Robert C. Skaggs, Jr. and Stephen P. Smith (the "Settling Defendants"). This Stipulation does not release, resolve, compromise, settle, or discharge any claims brought, or that could have been brought, by Plaintiffs against non-settling defendant TC Energy Corp. (together with its parents, affiliates, subsidiaries, officers (except for the Settling Defendants), directors, predecessors, successors, and assigns, "TCE" or "Non-Settling Defendant") (TCE and the Settling Defendants, together, "Defendants"), including, but not limited to, any claims against TCE for aiding-and-abetting the Settling Defendants' alleged breaches of fiduciary duty, any claims against TCE for unjust enrichment, or any claims against TCE relating to (i) the Merger or any element, term, condition, or circumstance of the Merger or the sale process leading up to the Merger; (ii) any actions, deliberations, negotiations, discussions, offers, inquiries, solicitations of interest, indications of interest, bids, due diligence, or any act or omission in connection with the review of strategic alternatives available to CPG or the Merger, including the process of deliberation or negotiation concerning the Merger; (iii) the consideration received by Plaintiffs and the Class in connection with the Merger; or (iv) any fiduciary obligations of the Settling Defendants (as directors or officers) relating to the Merger, the process of deliberation or negotiation leading to the Merger, or the disclosures respecting the Merger.

WHEREAS,

Summary of the Action

A. On September 28, 2014, NiSource, Inc. announced a plan to spin off its Columbia Pipeline Group division into a separate publicly traded company.

B. On June 17, 2015, Columbia Pipeline Group Inc. (“CPG”) common stock began trading on a limited market, commonly known as a “when-issued” trading market, in advance of the distribution date and its spin-off from NiSource, Inc.

C. On July 1, 2015, CPG shares began trading publicly when the company was spun off from NiSource, Inc. At the time of that spin-off, Robert C. Skaggs, Jr. served as CPG’s chief executive officer and the chairman of its board, and Stephen P. Smith served as CPG’s chief financial officer.

D. On March 17, 2016, CPG and TransCanada Corporation (“TC,” now known as TC Energy Corp.) announced that they had entered into an agreement and plan of merger pursuant to which CPG would merge with a TC subsidiary and become an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of TC in an all-cash deal under which CPG shareholders would receive $25.50 per common share in consideration.

E. On April 8, 2016, CPG filed its preliminary proxy regarding the Merger, and on May 17, 2016, CPG filed its definitive proxy (the “Proxy”). The Proxy included a detailed account of the sale process.

F. On June 22, 2016, the Merger received approval from CPG stockholders, with support from ninety five percent of voting shares and seventy four percent of shares outstanding.

G. On July 1, 2016, the Merger closed, and on July 5, 2016 TC terminated the Settling Defendants’ employment, triggering change-in-control agreements between the Settling Defendants and CPG.

H. On July 3, 2018, Plaintiffs commenced the Action. As subsequently amended on February 24, 2020, the Verified Amended Stockholder Class Action Complaint (the “Complaint”) names the Settling Defendants and TC as defendants. The Complaint alleges, among other things, that the Settling Defendants breached their fiduciary duties by causing CPG to issue a misleading Proxy and by impairing the sale process. Plaintiffs further claim that TC aided and abetted those breaches, and was unjustly enriched by the Merger.

I. On June 12, 2020, Defendants moved to dismiss the Complaint. On March 1, 2021, the Court dismissed Plaintiffs’ unjust enrichment claim but otherwise denied the motion to dismiss, holding that Plaintiffs had pleaded enough to support a rational inference that the Settling Defendants breached their duties of care and loyalty with respect to the sale process and the disclosure. The Court also sustained Plaintiffs' claim that TC aided and abetted those alleged breaches.

J. Between April and December 2021, Plaintiffs and Defendants engaged in discovery, including preparing, serving, and responding to requests for production of documents and interrogatories, serving subpoenas on various third parties, engaging in various written and oral communications concerning the scope of document production, and noticing and taking depositions. Plaintiffs have obtained and reviewed over 1,450,000 pages of documents from the Defendants and third parties.

K. Following the Court's decision, while discovery was proceeding, Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants engaged in arm's-length negotiations, including participation in mediation, in an attempt to resolve the Action.

L. On October 28, 2021, Plaintiffs and Defendants participated in a mediation before former United States District Court Judge Layn R. Phillips. However, the parties were unable to agree to settlement terms that day.

M. Following the mediation, extensive settlement talks continued between Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants, culminating in an agreement on the terms of a proposed settlement between Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants.

N. On January 11, 2022, Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants executed a term sheet memorializing the terms of their agreement (the "Term Sheet"). The Term Sheet set forth, among other things, the Settling Parties' agreement to settle and release all claims against the Settling Defendants in return for a cash payment on behalf of the Settling Defendants of $79,000,000 for the benefit of the Class, subject to certain terms and conditions and the execution of a customary “long form” stipulation and agreement of settlement and related papers.

O. This Stipulation (together with the Exhibits hereto) reflects the final and binding agreement between the Settling Parties and supersedes the Term Sheet.

P. On January 22, 2022, the Court entered an order granting Plaintiffs’ motion to sever Plaintiffs’ claims against the Settling Defendants from their claims against the Non-Settling Defendant and staying Plaintiffs’ claims against the Settling Defendants pending the Court’s consideration of the proposed Settlement (“Order Granting Plaintiffs’ Motion to Sever and Stay”).

Plaintiffs’ Claims and the Benefits of the Settlement

Q. Plaintiffs believe that the claims asserted in the Action have merit, but also believe that the Settlement set forth below provides substantial and immediate benefits for the Class. In addition to these substantial benefits, Plaintiffs and Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel (defined below) have considered: (i) the attendant risks of continued litigation and the uncertainty of the outcome of the Action; (ii) the probability of success on the merits; (iii) the inherent problems of proof associated with, and possible defenses to, the claims asserted in the Action; (iv) the desirability of permitting the Settlement to be consummated according to its terms; (v) the expense and length of continued proceedings necessary to prosecute the Action against the Settling Defendants through trial and appeals; and (vi) the conclusion of Plaintiffs and Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel that the terms and conditions of the Stipulation are fair, reasonable, and adequate, and that it is in the best interests of the Class to settle the claims asserted against the Settling Defendants in the Action on the terms set forth herein.

R. Based on Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel's thorough review and analysis of the relevant facts, allegations, defenses, and controlling legal principles, Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel believe that the settlement set forth in this Stipulation is fair, reasonable, and adequate, and confers substantial benefits upon the Class. Based upon Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel's evaluation as well as their own evaluations, Plaintiffs have determined that the Settlement is in the best interests of the Class and have agreed to the terms and conditions set forth herein.

Settling Defendants' Denial of Wrongdoing and Liability

S. The Settling Defendants deny any and all allegations of wrongdoing, liability, violations of law or damages arising out of or related to any of the conduct, statements, acts, or omissions alleged in the Action, and maintain that their conduct was at all times proper, in the best interests of CPG and its stockholders, and in compliance with applicable law. The Settling Defendants further deny any breach of fiduciary duties. The Settling Defendants further deny that TC was unjustly enriched by the Merger. The Settling Defendants affirmatively assert that the Merger was the best available transaction for CPG and its stockholders, was entirely fair to CPG and its stockholders, and has provided CPG and its stockholders with substantial benefits. The Settling Defendants also deny that CPG or its stockholders were harmed by any conduct of the Settling Defendants alleged in the Action or that could have been alleged therein. Each of the Settling Defendants asserts that, at all relevant times, he acted in good faith and in a manner he reasonably believed to be in the best interests of CPG and all of its stockholders. Nevertheless, the Settling Defendants wish to eliminate the uncertainty, risk, burden, and expense of further litigation. The Settling Defendants have therefore determined to settle the claims asserted against them in the Action on the terms and conditions set forth in this Stipulation solely to put the Released Plaintiffs' Claims (as defined below) to rest, finally and forever, without in any way acknowledging any wrongdoing, fault, liability, or damages.

T. Nothing in this Stipulation shall be construed as any admission by the Settling Defendants of wrongdoing, fault, liability, or damages whatsoever.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED, BY AND AMONG THE PARTIES TO THIS STIPULATION, subject to the approval of the Court pursuant to Court of Chancery Rule 23, that the Action against the Settling Defendants shall be fully and finally compromised and settled, and the

Released Plaintiffs' Claims shall be fully and finally compromised, settled, released, discharged, and dismissed with prejudice as against the Released Settling Defendants' Persons, and that the Released Settling Defendants' Claims shall be finally and fully compromised, settled, released, discharged and dismissed with prejudice as against the Released Plaintiffs' Persons, upon and subject to the following terms and conditions of the Settlement, as follows:

I. DEFINITIONS

All terms in this Stipulation with initial capitalization shall, unless defined elsewhere in this Stipulation, have the meanings ascribed to them below.

1.1 "Class" means the non-opt-out class of all public stockholders of CPG at any time from July 6, 2015 through and including July 1, 2016 (the "Class Period"), including any and all of their respective successors-in-interest, successors, predecessors-in-interest, predecessors, assigns, and transferees, but excluding (i) Defendants; (ii) the directors, officers, or partners of TCE during the Class Period; (iii) the members of the Immediate Families of the Settling Defendants or of any person who was a director, officer, or partner of TCE during the Class Period; (iv) the parents, subsidiaries, and affiliates of TCE; (v) any entity in which any Defendant or any other excluded party has, or had during the Class Period, a controlling interest; and (vi) the legal representatives, heirs, successors, or assigns of any such excluded person or entity. Attached hereto as Exhibit E is a schedule of all persons and entities related to the Settling Defendants that the Settling Defendants have identified to be excluded from the Class by definition.

1.2 “Class Member” means a member of the Class.

1.3 “Closing” means the closing of the Merger on July 1, 2016.

1.4 “Court” means the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware.

1.5 “Effective Date” means the first date by which all of the events and conditions specified in Paragraph 7.1 of this Stipulation have been met and have occurred or have been waived in writing.

1.6 “Escrow Account” means the bank account that is maintained by Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel and into which the Settlement Amount will be deposited and wherein the Settlement Fund will be held.

1.7 “Escrow Agent” means the agent or agents who shall be chosen by Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel to administer the Escrow Account.

1.8 “Fee and Expense Award” means an award to Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel of fees and expenses to be paid from the Settlement Fund, approved by the Court and in full satisfaction of any and all claims for attorneys’ fees that have been, could be, or could have been, asserted by Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel or any other counsel or any Class Member against the Settling Defendants with respect to Action or the Settlement. For the avoidance of doubt, the Fee and Expense Award contemplated herein is not intended to satisfy in whole or in part any fee and expense award that may be sought in connection with Plaintiffs' claims against the Non-Settling Defendant.

1.9 “Final” means, with respect to any judgment or order, that (i) if no appeal is filed, the expiration date of the time for filing or noticing of any appeal of the judgment or order; or (ii) if there is an appeal from the judgment or order, the date of (a) final dismissal of all such appeals, or the final dismissal of any proceeding on certiorari or otherwise to review the judgment or order, or (b) the date the judgment or order is finally affirmed on an appeal, the expiration of the time to file a petition for a writ of certiorari or other form of review, or the denial of a writ of certiorari or other form of review of the judgment or order, and, if certiorari or other form of review is granted, the date of final affirmance of the judgment or order following review pursuant to that grant. However, any appeal or proceeding seeking subsequent judicial review pertaining solely to an order issued with respect to attorneys' fees or expenses or any plan of allocation in this Action shall not in any way delay or preclude the Judgment from becoming Final.

1.10 “Immediate Family” means children, stepchildren, parents, stepparents, spouses, siblings. As used in this Paragraph, “spouse” shall mean a husband, a wife, or a partner in a state-recognized domestic relationship or civil union.

1.11 “Judgment” means the Order and Final Judgment to be entered by the Court, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit D.

1.12 “Merger” means the July 1, 2016 merger of CPG with Taurus Merger Sub Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of TC, with CPG surviving as an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of TC.

1.13 “Merger Consideration” means the cash consideration of $25.50 per common share paid in connection with the Merger.

1.14 “Net Settlement Fund” means the Settlement Fund less: (i) any Taxes and Tax Expenses; (ii) any Notice and Administration Costs; (iii) any Fee and Expense Award awarded by the Court; and (iv) any other costs or fees approved by the Court.

1.15 “Notice” means the Notice of Pendency of Stockholder Class Action and Proposed Settlement, Settlement Hearing, and Right to Appear, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit B.

1.16 “Notice and Administration Costs” means the costs, fees, and expenses that are incurred by the Settlement Administrator and/or Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel in connection with: (i) providing notice to the Class; and (ii) administering the Settlement, including without limitation the costs, fees, and expenses incurred in connection with the Escrow Account. Such costs and expenses shall include, without limitation, the actual costs of printing and mailing the Notice, publishing the Summary Notice, reimbursements to nominee owners for forwarding the Notice to their beneficial owners, the administrative expenses incurred and fees charged by the Settlement Administrator in connection with providing notice and administering the Settlement, and the fees, if any, of the Escrow Agent.

1.17 “Person” means a natural person, individual, corporation, partnership, limited partnership, limited liability partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, joint stock company, estate, legal representative, trust, unincorporated association, government, or any political subdivision or agency thereof, or any other business or legal entity.

1.18 “Plaintiffs’ Counsel” means Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel and Ashby & Geddes, P.A.

1.19 “Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel” means Bernstein Litowitz Berger & Grossmann LLP and Labaton Sucharow LLP.

1.20 “Plan of Allocation” means the proposed plan of allocation of the Net Settlement Fund set forth in the Notice.

1.21 “Released Claims” means Released Plaintiffs’ Claims and Released Settling Defendants’ Claims.

1.22 “Released Persons” means Released Settling Defendants’ Persons and Released Plaintiffs’ Persons.

1.23 “Released Plaintiffs’ Claims” means all claims and causes of action, including Unknown Claims, that (a) were alleged, asserted, set forth, or claimed in the Complaint against the Settling Defendants or (b) could have been alleged, asserted, set forth, or claimed in the Complaint or in any other court, tribunal, or proceeding by Plaintiffs or any other member of the Class, individually, or as a member of the Class directly in their capacities as current or former CPG stockholders, against the Settling Defendants arising out of or relating to the allegations, transactions, facts, matters, representations, or omissions involved, set forth, or referred to in the Complaint, including without limitation all such claims relating to (i) the Merger or any element, term, condition, or circumstance of the Merger or the sale process leading up to the Merger; (ii) any actions, deliberations, negotiations, discussions, offers, inquiries, solicitations of interest, indications of interest, bids, due diligence, or any act or omission in connection with the review of strategic alternatives available to CPG or the Merger, including the process of deliberation or negotiation concerning the Merger; (iii) the consideration received by Plaintiffs and the Class in connection with the Merger; and (iv) any fiduciary obligations of the Settling Defendants (as directors or officers) relating to the Merger, the process of deliberation or negotiation leading to the Merger, or the disclosures respecting the Merger. For the avoidance of doubt, the Released Plaintiffs' Claims do not include (a) any claims against TCE, including, but not limited to, any claims against TCE for aiding-and-abetting the Settling Defendants' alleged breaches of fiduciary duty, any claims against TCE for unjust enrichment, or any claims against TCE relating to (i) the Merger or any element, term, condition, or circumstance of the Merger or the sale process leading up to the Merger; (ii) any actions, deliberations, negotiations, discussions, offers, inquiries, solicitations of interest, indications of interest, bids, due diligence, or any act or omission in connection with the review of strategic alternatives available to CPG or the Merger, including the process of deliberation or negotiation concerning the Merger; (iii) the consideration received by Plaintiffs and the Class in connection with the Merger; or (iv) any fiduciary obligations of the Settling Defendants (as directors or officers) relating to the Merger, the process of deliberation or negotiation leading to the Merger, or the disclosures respecting the Merger; or (b) any claims based on conduct after the Effective Date (“Excluded Plaintiffs’ Claims”).

1.24 “Released Plaintiffs’ Persons” means (i) Plaintiffs, all other Class Members, and Plaintiffs’ Counsel, and (ii) their legal representatives, heirs, executors, administrators, trusts, trustees, parents, affiliates, subsidiaries, officers, directors, partnerships, partners, agents, employees, Immediate Family Members, insurers, reinsurers, predecessors, successors, predecessors-in-interest, successors-in-interest, and assigns of any of the foregoing.

1.25 “Released Settling Defendants’ Claims” means all claims and causes of action, including Unknown Claims, arising out of or relating to the Action other than claims relating to the enforcement of the Settlement, including without limitation, all actions taken by Plaintiffs in connection with the initiation, prosecution, and settlement of the Action. For the avoidance of doubt, the Released Settling Defendants' Claims do not include claims based on conduct after the Effective Date.

1.26 “Released Settling Defendants' Persons” means (i) the Settling Defendants; and (ii) their legal representatives, heirs, executors, administrators, trusts, trustees, Immediate Family Members, insurers, reinsurers, predecessors, successors, predecessors-in-interest, successors-in-interest, and assigns of any of the foregoing. For the avoidance of doubt, the Non-Settling Defendant is not a Released Settling Defendants' Person.

1.27 “Releases” means the releases set forth in Paragraphs 3.2 and 3.3 of this Stipulation.

1.28 “Scheduling Order” means an order scheduling a hearing on the proposed Settlement and approving the form of and method of giving notice of the Settlement, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

1.29 “Settlement” means the settlement contemplated by this Stipulation and the Exhibits.

1.30 “Settlement Administrator” means the firm selected by Plaintiffs, subject to the approval of the Court, to administer the Settlement and provide notice to the Class.

1.31 “Settling Defendants' Counsel” means Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz and Morris, Nichols, Arsht, & Tunnell LLP.

1.32 “Settlement Fund” means the Settlement Amount, plus any and all interest earned thereon, held in the Escrow Account.

1.33 “Settlement Hearing” means the hearing (or hearings) to be held by the Court to determine, among other things, whether: (i) Plaintiffs and Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel have adequately represented the interests of the Class; (ii) the proposed Settlement should be approved by the Court as fair, reasonable, adequate, and in the best interests of the Class; (iii) the Action should be dismissed with prejudice as against the Settling Defendants and all of the Released Claims against the Released Persons should be fully, finally, and forever released, settled, and discharged; (iv) whether and in what amount any Fee and Expense Award should be paid to Plaintiffs’ Counsel out of the Settlement Fund; and (v) the Judgment approving the Settlement of the Action should be entered in accordance with the terms of this Stipulation.

1.34 “Summary Notice” means the Summary Notice of Pendency of Stockholder Class Action and Proposed Settlement, Settlement Hearing, and Right to Appear, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit C, to be published as set forth in the Scheduling Order.

1.35 “Taxes” means any taxes (including any estimated taxes, interest, penalties, or additional amounts) arising with respect to income earned by the Settlement Fund, including with respect to (i) any income earned by the Settlement

Fund for any period during which the Settlement Fund on deposit in the Escrow Account is not treated, or does not qualify, as a “qualified settlement fund” for federal or state income tax purposes, and (ii) the payment or reimbursement by the Settlement Fund of any amounts described in clause (i).

1.36 “Tax Expenses” means expenses and costs incurred in connection with determining the amount of, and paying, any Taxes owed by the Settlement Fund (including, without limitation, expenses of tax attorneys and/or accountants and mailing and distribution costs and expenses relating to filing (or failing to file) any tax returns).

1.37 “Unknown Claims” means, as appropriate, (i) any Released Plaintiffs’ Claims that any Plaintiff or any other Class Member does not know or suspect to exist in his, her, or its favor at the time of the release of the Released Settling Defendants’ Persons, or (ii) any Released Settling Defendants’ Claims that any Settling Defendant does not know or suspect to exist in his favor at the time of the release of the Released Plaintiffs’ Persons, which, if known by him, her, or it, might have affected his, her, or its decision(s) with respect to the Settlement. With respect to any and all Released Plaintiffs’ Claims and Released Settling Defendants’ Claims, the Settling Parties stipulate and agree that Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants shall expressly waive, and each of the other Class Members by operation of law shall be deemed to have waived, any and all provisions, rights, and benefits conferred by any law of any state or territory of the United States or other jurisdiction, or principle of common law or foreign law, which is similar, comparable, or equivalent to Cal. Civ. Code § 1542, which provides:

A GENERAL RELEASE DOES NOT EXTEND TO CLAIMS THAT THE CREDITOR OR RELEASING PARTY DOES NOT KNOW OR SUSPECT TO EXIST IN HIS OR HER FAVOR AT THE TIME OF EXECUTING THE RELEASE AND THAT, IF KNOWN BY HIM OR HER, WOULD HAVE MATERIALLY AFFECTED HIS OR HER SETTLEMENT WITH THE DEBTOR OR RELEASED PARTY.

Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants acknowledge, and each of the other Class Members by operation of law are deemed to acknowledge, that they may discover facts in addition to or different from those now known or believed to be true with respect to the Released Plaintiffs' Claims and the Released Settling Defendants' Claims, but that it is the intention of Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants, and by operation of law the other Class Members, to completely, fully, finally, and forever extinguish any and all Released Plaintiffs' Claims and Released Settling Defendants' Claims, known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, which now exist, or heretofore existed, or may hereafter exist, and without regard to the subsequent discovery of additional or different facts. Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants also acknowledge, and each of the other Class Members by operation of law are deemed to acknowledge, that the inclusion of "Unknown Claims" in the definition of Released Plaintiffs' Claims and Released Settling Defendants' Claims is separately bargained for and is a key element of the Settlement.

II. SETTLEMENT CONSIDERATION

2.1 In connection with the Settlement and in consideration of the Releases set forth herein, the Settling Defendants shall cause to be paid into the Escrow Account the total sum of seventy-nine million U.S. dollars ($79,000,000.00) (the “Settlement Amount”) by the insurance carriers who have committed to fund the Settlement Amount solely from the proceeds of their policies (the “Insurance Carriers”). The Settlement Amount shall be paid within thirty (30) calendar days after the later of (a) the entry of the Scheduling Order by the Court or (b) Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel’s delivery to Settling Defendants’ Counsel of payment information to effectuate a transfer of funds to the Escrow Account, including wiring instructions that include the bank name and ABA routing number, account name and number, a contact for verbal confirmation of same, the name and address of the payee, and a signed W-9 reflecting a valid taxpayer identification number for the qualified settlement fund in which the Settlement Amount is to be deposited. Within two (2) business days of receipt of the payment details, Settling Defendants’ Counsel shall provide Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel with contact information to coordinate oral confirmation of the payment information.

2.2 The Released Settling Defendants’ Persons shall not be responsible for the payment of any amounts in connection with the Settlement other than the Settlement Amount. The Released Settling Defendants’ Persons (except the Insurance Carriers) shall bear no personal responsibility for any payment in connection with this Stipulation or the Settlement.

2.3 If Settling Defendants fail to cause the full payment of the Settlement Amount in a timely manner, Plaintiffs may exercise their right under Paragraph 11.1 of this Stipulation to terminate the Settlement.

III. SCOPE OF THE SETTLEMENT

3.1 Upon entry of the Judgment, the Action against the Settling Defendants shall be dismissed with prejudice. Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants shall each bear his, her, or its own fees, costs, and expenses, except as expressly provided in this Stipulation, provided that nothing herein shall affect the Settling Defendants' claims for advancement or indemnity of their legal fees, costs, and expenses incurred in connection with the Action and this Settlement, or any claims that any Settling Defendant may have against any of their respective insurers, co-insurers, or reinsurers.

3.2 Upon the Effective Date, Plaintiffs and each and every other member of the Class, on behalf of themselves and any and all of their respective successors-in-interest, successors, predecessors-in-interest, predecessors, representatives, trustees, executors, administrators, estates, heirs, assigns and transferees, immediate and remote, and any Person acting for or on behalf of, or claiming under, any of them, and each of them, together with their predecessors-in-interest, predecessors, successors-in-interest, successors, and assigns, each of the foregoing in their capacities as such only, shall have fully, finally, and forever released, settled, and discharged the Released Settling Defendants' Persons from and with respect to every one of the Released Plaintiffs' Claims, and shall thereupon be forever barred and enjoined from commencing, instituting, prosecuting, or continuing to prosecute any Released Plaintiffs' Claims against any of the Released Settling Defendants' Persons. This Release shall not apply to any of the Excluded Plaintiffs' Claims.

3.3 Upon the Effective Date, the Settling Defendants, on behalf of themselves and any and all of their respective successors-in-interest, successors, predecessors-in-interest, predecessors, representatives, trustees, executors, administrators, estates, heirs, assigns and transferees, immediate and remote, and any Person acting for or on behalf of, or claiming under, any of them, and each of them, together with their predecessors-in-interest, predecessors, successors-in-interest, successors, and assigns, each of the foregoing in their capacities as such only, shall have fully, finally, and forever released, settled, and discharged the Released Plaintiffs' Persons from and with respect to every one of the Released Settling Defendants' Claims, and shall thereupon be forever barred and enjoined from commencing, instituting, prosecuting, or continuing to prosecute any Released Settling Defendants' Claims against any of the Released Plaintiffs' Persons.

3.4 The foregoing releases are executed in accordance with the provisions of 10 Del. C. § 6301, et seq., of the Uniform Contribution Among Tortfeasors Act. Accordingly, Plaintiffs agree, and all other Class Members shall be deemed by operation of law to agree, pursuant to 10 Del. C. § 6304, that any damages recoverable against any other alleged tortfeasor, including the Non-Settling Defendant, will be reduced by the greater of (a) the Settlement Amount, and (b) the pro rata share of the responsibility or liability for such damages, if any, of the Settling Defendants, should it be determined that any of the Settling Defendants are joint tortfeasors. This language is intended to comply with 10 Del. C. § 6304 so as to preclude any liability of the Settling Defendants to any joint tortfeasors for contribution or any other claim in which the alleged injury arises out of or relates to the claims asserted in, or arises out of or relates to the subject matter of, the Action, including any Excluded Plaintiffs' Claims. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Stipulation shall preclude Plaintiffs from asserting any of the Excluded Plaintiffs' Claims.

3.5 As a condition of the Settlement, the Settling Parties shall obtain as part of the Judgment a bar order ("Bar Order") in a form substantially similar to the following:

Upon the Effective Date, any claims (i) against the Released Settling Defendants' Persons, or (ii) by the Released Settling Defendants' Persons against any other Person, in which the injury claimed is the claimant's actual or threatened liability to Plaintiffs or any other Class Member, arising out of or relating to the subject matter of the Action, including without limitation any third party claims for contribution in accordance with 10 Del. C. § 6304 and any similar laws and statutes, are hereby barred; provided, however, that any contractual claims by a Settling Defendant for indemnification of legal fees and other litigation costs and expenses arising out of the Action shall not be barred.

IV. CLASS CERTIFICATION

4.1 Solely for purposes of the Settlement and for no other purpose, Settling Defendants stipulate and agree to: (a) certification of the Action as a non-opt out class action pursuant to Delaware Court of Chancery Rules 23(a), 23(b)(1), and 23(b)(2) on behalf of the Class; (b) appointment of Plaintiffs as Class Representative for the Class; and (c) appointment of Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel as Class Counsel for the Class.

4.2 The certification of the Class shall be binding only with respect to this Stipulation. In the event that this Stipulation is terminated pursuant to its terms or the Effective Date otherwise fails to occur, the certification of the Class shall be deemed vacated and the Action shall proceed as though the Class had never been certified.

V. PROCEDURE FOR APPROVAL

5.1 As soon as practicable after execution of this Stipulation, the Settling Parties shall jointly submit this Stipulation, together with the Exhibits, to the Court and shall jointly apply to the Court for entry of the Scheduling Order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

5.2 In accordance with the Scheduling Order, the Settlement Administrator shall mail, or cause to be mailed, by first class U.S. mail or other mail service if mailed outside the U.S., postage prepaid, the Notice, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit B, to each Class Member at their last known address appearing in the stock transfer records maintained by or on behalf of CPG (“Stock Transfer Records”). Prior to execution of this Stipulation, Settling Defendants’ Counsel provided Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel with the Stock Transfer Records containing the names and last known addresses for all record holders of CPG common stock during the Class Period. All stockholders of record who held CPG common stock on behalf of beneficial owners and who receive the Notice shall be directed to forward the Notice promptly to such beneficial owners. Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel shall use reasonable efforts to provide notice to such beneficial owners by making additional copies of the Notice available to any record holder who, prior to the Settlement Hearing, requests the same for distribution to beneficial owners. In accordance with the Scheduling Order, Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel shall also cause the Summary Notice to be published in the Investor’s Business Daily. Any and all costs and expenses related to providing Notice shall be paid from the Settlement Fund, regardless of the form or manner of notice approved or directed by the Court and regardless of whether the Court declines to approve the Settlement or the Effective Date otherwise fails to occur. In no event shall the Plaintiffs, the Released Settling Defendants' Persons, or any of their attorneys have any liability or responsibility for the costs and expenses associated with providing the Notice.

5.3 The Settling Parties and their attorneys agree to use their individual and collective best efforts to obtain Court approval of the Settlement. The Settling Parties and their attorneys further agree to use their individual and collective best efforts to effect, take, or cause to be taken all actions, and to do, or cause to be done, all things reasonably necessary, proper, or advisable under applicable laws, regulations, and agreements to consummate and make effective, as promptly as practicable, the Settlement provided for hereunder and the dismissal of the Action with prejudice as against the Settling Defendants. The Settling Parties and their attorneys agree to cooperate fully with one another in seeking the Court's approval of this Stipulation and to use their best efforts to effect consummation of the Settlement.

5.4 If the Settlement embodied in this Stipulation is approved by the Court, the Settling Parties shall request that the Court enter the Judgment, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit D.

VI. STAY PENDING COURT APPROVAL

6.1 Pursuant to the Court's Order Granting Plaintiffs' Motion to Sever and Stay, Plaintiffs' claims against the Individual Defendants are stayed pending the Court's consideration of the proposed Settlement. In accordance with the Order Granting Plaintiffs' Motion to Sever and Stay, Plaintiffs agree not to initiate any other proceedings against the Settling Defendants asserting any Released Plaintiffs' Claims pending the occurrence of the Effective Date. The Settling Parties also agree to use their best efforts to seek the stay and dismissal of, and to oppose entry of any interim or final relief in favor of any Class Member in, any other proceedings against any of the Settling Defendants or the other Released Settling Defendants' Persons that challenge the Settlement or otherwise assert or involve, directly or indirectly, a Released Plaintiffs' Claim against the Released Settling Defendants' Persons.

6.2 Notwithstanding Paragraph 6.1 above, nothing herein shall in any way impair or restrict the rights of any Settling Party to defend this Stipulation or to otherwise respond in the event any Person objects to the Stipulation, the proposed Judgment to be entered, the Fee and Expense Award, or the Plan of Allocation.

6.3 Notwithstanding Paragraph 6.1 above, the Settling Defendants agree that they will continue to participate in the document discovery and depositions as if they were named parties. The Settling Defendants also agree that, at the request of Plaintiffs or TCE, they will participate as witnesses in any trial in this Action and will not use the terms of this Stipulation as a basis to avoid their participation as witnesses at any trial in this Action.

VII. CONDITIONS OF SETTLEMENT

7.1 The Effective Date of the Settlement shall be deemed to occur on the occurrence or written waiver of all of the following events, which events the Settling Parties shall use their best efforts to achieve:

- (a) the payment of the full Settlement Amount into the Escrow Account in accordance with Paragraph 2.1 above;
- (b) the Court's certification of the Class as a non-opt-out class;
- (c) the Court's entry of the Judgment substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit D, including Releases substantially in the form set out herein and the dismissal with prejudice of the Action as to the Settling Defendants without the award of any damages, costs, or fees, except as provided for in this Stipulation; and
- (d) the Judgment becoming Final.

7.2 Upon the occurrence of the Effective Date, any and all remaining interest or right of the Settling Defendants or the Insurance Carriers in or to the Settlement Fund, if any, shall be absolutely and forever extinguished and the Releases herein shall be effective.

VIII. ATTORNEYS' FEES AND EXPENSES

8.1 Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel intend to petition the Court for a Fee and Expense Award, which application will be wholly inclusive of any request for attorneys' fees and expenses on behalf of any Class Member or his, her, or its counsel in connection with the Settlement. The Settling Parties acknowledge and agree that any Fee and Expense Award in connection with the Settlement shall be paid from the Settlement Fund and shall reduce the Settlement consideration paid to the Class accordingly. Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel's application for a Fee and Expense Award is not the subject of any agreement among Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants other than what is set forth in this Stipulation.

8.2 The Fee and Expense Award shall be paid from the Settlement Fund to Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel immediately upon award by the Court, notwithstanding the existence of any timely filed objections to the Fee and Expense Award or any appeal or potential for appeal therefrom, or collateral attack on the Fee and Expense Award, the Settlement, or any part thereof, subject to Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel's obligation to make refunds or repayments to the Settlement Fund, plus accrued interest at the same net rate as is earned by the Settlement Fund, if the Settlement is terminated pursuant to the terms of this Stipulation or if, as a result of any appeal or further proceedings on remand, or successful collateral attack, the Fee and Expense Award is reduced or reversed and such order reducing or reversing the award has become

Final. Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel shall make the appropriate refund or repayment in full no later than thirty (30) calendar days after: (a) receiving from Settling Defendants' Counsel notice of the termination of the Settlement; or (b) any order disapproving, reducing, reversing, or otherwise modifying the Fee and Expense Award has become Final.

8.3 Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel, in their sole discretion, shall allocate the Fee and Expense Award amongst Plaintiffs' Counsel in a manner which they, in good faith, believe reflects the contributions of such counsel to the institution, prosecution, and settlement of the Action. The Released Settling Defendants' Persons shall have no responsibility for or liability whatsoever with respect to the allocation or award of any Fee and Expense Award to or among Plaintiffs' Counsel. The Fee and Expense Award shall be payable solely from the Settlement Fund.

8.4 This Stipulation, the Settlement, the Judgment, and whether the Judgment becomes Final, are not conditioned upon the approval of an award of attorneys' fees, costs, or expenses, either at all or in any particular amount, by the Court. The Fee and Expense Award may be considered separately from the proposed Settlement. Any disapproval or modification of the Fee and Expense Award by the Court or on appeal shall not affect or delay the enforceability of this Stipulation or the Settlement; provide any of the Settling Parties with the right to terminate the Settlement; affect or delay the binding effect or finality of the Judgment and the release of the Released Claims; or prevent the occurrence of the Effective Date.

8.5 Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel warrants that no portion of any such award of attorneys' fees or expenses shall be paid to Plaintiffs, except as may be approved by the Court.

IX. THE SETTLEMENT FUND

9.1 The Settlement Fund shall be used to pay: (a) any Taxes and Tax Expenses; (b) any Notice and Administration Costs; (c) any Fee and Expense Award awarded by the Court; and (d) any other costs or fees approved by the Court. The balance remaining in the Settlement Fund (the "Net Settlement Fund") shall be distributed pursuant to the proposed Plan of Allocation or such other plan of allocation approved by the Court.

9.2 Except as provided herein or pursuant to orders of the Court, the Net Settlement Fund shall remain in the Escrow Account prior to the Effective Date. All funds held by the Escrow Agent shall be deemed to be in the custody of the Court and shall remain subject to the jurisdiction of the Court until such time as the funds shall be distributed or returned pursuant to the terms of this Stipulation and/or further order of the Court.

9.3 The Escrow Agent shall invest any funds in the Escrow Account exclusively in United States Treasury Bills (or a mutual fund invested solely in such instruments) and shall collect and reinvest all interest accrued thereon, except that any residual cash balances up to the amount that is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (“FDIC”) may be deposited in any account that is fully insured by the FDIC. In the event that the yield on United States Treasury Bills is negative, in lieu of purchasing such Treasury Bills, all or any portion of the funds held by the Escrow Agent may be deposited in any account that is fully insured by the FDIC or backed by the full faith and credit of the United States. Additionally, if short-term placement of the funds is necessary, all or any portion of the funds held by the Escrow Agent may be deposited in any account that is fully insured by the FDIC or backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.

9.4 The Settlement Fund is intended to be a “qualified settlement fund” within the meaning of Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-1, and Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel, as administrators of the Settlement Fund within the meaning of Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-2(k)(3), shall be solely responsible for timely and properly filing or causing to be filed all informational and other tax returns as may be necessary or appropriate (including, without limitation, the returns described in Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-2(k)) for the Settlement Fund. Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel shall also be responsible for causing payment to be made from the Settlement Fund of any Taxes owed with respect to the Settlement Fund. Upon written request, Settling Defendants shall cause the Insurance Carriers to provide to Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel the statement described in Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-3(e). Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel, as administrators of the Settlement Fund within the meaning of Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-2(k)(3), shall timely make such elections as are necessary or advisable to carry out this Paragraph, including, as necessary, making a "relation back election," as described in Treasury Regulation § 1.468B-1(j), to cause the qualified settlement fund to come into existence at the earliest allowable date, and shall take or cause to be taken all actions as may be necessary or appropriate in connection therewith.

9.5 All Taxes and Tax Expenses shall be paid out of the Settlement Fund, and shall be timely paid, or caused to be paid, by Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel and without further order of the Court. Any tax returns prepared for the Settlement Fund (as well as the election set forth therein) shall be consistent with the previous Paragraph and in all events shall reflect that all Taxes on the income earned by the Settlement Fund shall be paid out of the Settlement Fund as provided herein. The Released Settling Defendants' Persons shall have no responsibility or liability for any such Taxes or Tax Expenses or the acts or omissions of Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel or its agents with respect to the payment of Taxes, as described herein.

9.6 The Settlement is not a claims-made settlement. Upon the occurrence of the Effective Date, no Settling Defendant, Released Settling Defendants' Person, or any Person who or which paid any portion of the Settlement Amount shall have any right to the return of the Settlement Fund or any portion thereof for any reason whatsoever.

9.7 Notwithstanding the fact that the Effective Date of the Settlement has not yet occurred, Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel may pay from the Settlement Fund, without further approval from the Settling Defendants or further order of the Court, all Notice and Administration Costs actually incurred and paid or payable. Such costs and expenses shall include, without limitation, the actual costs of printing and mailing the Notice, publishing the Summary Notice, reimbursements to nominee owners for forwarding the Notice to their beneficial owners, the administrative expenses incurred and fees charged by the Settlement Administrator in connection with providing notice and administering the Settlement, and the fees, if any, of the Escrow Agent. In the event that the Settlement is terminated pursuant to the terms of this Stipulation, all Notice and Administration Costs, Taxes, or Tax Expenses paid or incurred, including any related fees, shall not be returned or repaid to the Settling Defendants, their Insurance Carriers, or any of the other Released Settling Defendants' Persons, or any Person who or which paid any portion of the Settlement Amount.

X. SETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION

10.1 Plaintiffs shall retain a Settlement Administrator to provide notice of the Settlement and for the disbursement of the Net Settlement Fund to eligible Class

Members. The Released Settling Defendants' Persons shall not have any involvement in or any responsibility, authority, or liability whatsoever for the selection of the Settlement Administrator.

10.2 Settling Defendants shall cooperate with Plaintiffs in providing notice of the Settlement and administering the Settlement, which cooperation shall include, but not be limited to, the Settling Defendants causing TC Energy Corp. to provide the Merger Records in accordance with Paragraph 10.3 below and the Settling Defendants making reasonable efforts to identify all Excluded Stockholders (defined below) that do not relate to either of the Settling Defendants.

10.3 For purposes of distributing the Net Settlement Fund to eligible Class Members, within five (5) business days after the Court's entry of the Judgment, the Settling Defendants, at no cost to the Settlement Fund, Plaintiffs' Counsel, or the Settlement Administrator, shall make reasonable efforts to cause TC Energy Corp. to provide to Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel or the Settlement Administrator in an electronically-searchable form, such as Excel, the following information (the "Merger Records"):

(a) the names, mailing addresses and, if available, email addresses of all registered holders of CPG common stock listed on CPG's stockholder register ("Registered Holders") who held shares of CPG common stock at the Closing and therefore received or were entitled to receive the Merger Consideration, other than the Excluded Stockholders (“Merger Record Holders”) and the number of shares of CPG common stock held by the Merger Record Holders at the Closing and for which the Merger Record Holders received or were entitled to receive the Merger Consideration;

(b) For each of the persons and entities listed on Exhibit E hereto and any additional Persons that are identified to be excluded from the Class by definition (“Excluded Stockholders”), the following information: (i) the name of the Excluded Stockholder; (ii) an indication of whether the Excluded Stockholder was, at the Closing, either (a) a Registered Holder of CPG common stock listed or (b) a beneficial holder of CPG common stock whose shares were held via a financial institution on behalf of the Excluded Stockholder (“Beneficial Holder”); (iii) the number of shares of CPG common stock beneficially owned by the Excluded Stockholder at the Closing and for which the Excluded Stockholder received or were entitled to receive the Merger consideration (“Excluded Shares”); and (iv) for each Excluded Stockholder that is a Beneficial Holder, (a) the name and DTCC number of the financial institution where his, her, or its Excluded Shares were held and (b) the account number(s) where his, her, or its Excluded Shares were held; and

(c) the allocation or “chill” report generated by the Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation, including its subsidiary the Depository Trust Company (“DTCC”), in anticipation of the Merger to facilitate the allocation of the Merger

Consideration to CPG stockholders (the “DTCC Allocation Report”), which shall include, for each DTCC participant to which DTCC distributed the Merger Consideration (a “DTCC Participant”), the DTCC Participant’s DTCC number and the number of shares of CPG common stock reflected on the DTCC Allocation Report used by DTCC to distribute the Merger Consideration.

10.4 In addition to the information to be provided under Paragraph 10.3 above, the Settling Defendants, at the request of Plaintiffs, and at no cost to the Settlement Fund, Plaintiffs, Plaintiffs’ Counsel, or the Settlement Administrator, shall make reasonable efforts to provide such additional information or to cause TC Energy Corp. to provide such additional information as may be required to distribute the Net Settlement Fund to eligible Class Members and to ensure that the Net Settlement Fund is paid only to eligible Class Members and not to Excluded Stockholders. Furthermore, to facilitate the distribution of the Net Settlement Fund to eligible Settlement Class Members, the information to be provided to DTCC may include, without limitation, “suppression letters” from DTCC Participants concerning any Excluded Shares, instructing DTCC to withhold payment on those Excluded Shares and containing other terms as DTCC may reasonably require.

10.5 The Settling Defendants and other Excluded Stockholders shall not have any right to receive any part of the Settlement Fund for his, her, or its own account(s) (i.e., accounts in which he, she or it holds a proprietary interest), or any additional amount based on any claim relating to the fact that Settlement proceeds are being received by any other stockholder, in each case under any theory, including but not limited to contract, application of statutory or judicial law, or equity.

10.6 The Net Settlement Fund shall be distributed to eligible Class Members in the accordance with the proposed Plan of Allocation set forth in the Notice or such other plan of allocation as may be approved by the Court. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Stipulation, the Plan of Allocation proposed in the Notice is not a necessary term of the Settlement or of this Stipulation and it is not a condition of the Settlement or of this Stipulation that any particular plan of allocation be approved by the Court. Plaintiffs and Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel may not cancel or terminate the Settlement (or this Stipulation) based on this Court's or any appellate court's ruling with respect to the Plan of Allocation or any other plan of allocation in this Action. The Settling Defendants shall not object in any way to the Plan of Allocation or any other plan of allocation in this Action and shall not have any involvement with the application of the Court-approved plan of allocation.

10.7 The Net Settlement Fund shall be distributed to eligible Class Members only after the Effective Date of the Settlement and after: (a) all Notice and Administration Costs, all Taxes, and any Fee and Expense Award have been paid from the Settlement Fund or reserved; and (b) the Court has entered an order authorizing the specific distribution of the Net Settlement Fund (the "Class Distribution Order”). At such time that Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel, in their sole discretion, deems it appropriate to move forward with the distribution of the Net Settlement Fund to the Class, Plaintiffs’ Lead Counsel will apply to the Court, on notice to Settling Defendants’ Counsel, for the Class Distribution Order.

10.8 Payment pursuant to the Class Distribution Order shall be final and conclusive against all Class Members. Plaintiffs, Settling Defendants, and the other Released Settling Defendants’ Persons and their respective counsel, shall have no liability whatsoever for the investment or distribution of the Settlement Fund or the Net Settlement Fund, the determination, administration, or calculation of any payment from the Net Settlement Fund, the nonperformance of the Settlement Administrator or a nominee holding shares on behalf of a Class Member, the payment or withholding of Taxes (including interest and penalties) owed by the Settlement Fund, or any losses incurred in connection therewith.

10.9 All proceedings with respect to the administration of the Settlement and distribution pursuant to the Class Distribution Order shall be subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court.

XI. EFFECT OF DISAPPROVAL, CANCELLATION, OR TERMINATION

11.1 Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants shall each have the right to terminate the Settlement and this Stipulation by providing written notice of their election to do so (“Termination Notice”) to the other parties to this Stipulation within thirty (30) calendar days of: (a) the Court's refusal to approve this Stipulation or any part of it that materially affects any Settling Party's rights or obligations hereunder; (b) the Court's declining to enter the Judgment in any material respect, including if the Court does not enter a Bar Order as part of final approval of the Settlement consistent with Paragraph 3.5 above; or (c) the date upon which the Judgment is modified or reversed in any material respect by an appellate court. In addition to the foregoing, Plaintiffs shall have the unilateral right to terminate the Settlement and this Stipulation, by providing written notice of their election to do so to Settling Defendants within thirty (30) calendar days of any failure of Settling Defendants to cause the full payment of the Settlement Amount into the Escrow Account in a timely manner in accordance with Paragraph 2.1 of this Stipulation. Neither a modification nor a reversal on appeal of the amount of fees, costs, and expenses awarded by the Court to Plaintiffs' Counsel nor any order modifying or rejecting the Plan of Allocation shall be deemed a material modification of the Judgment or this Stipulation.

11.2 In the event that the Settlement is terminated pursuant to the terms of Paragraph 11.1 of this Stipulation or the Effective Date otherwise fails to occur for any other reason, then (i) the Settlement and this Stipulation (other than this Paragraph 11.2 and Paragraphs 4.2, 5.2, 8.2, 9.2, 9.3, 9.5, 9.6, 10.8, 12.1, 13.1, 13.2, 13.13, 13.4, 13.5, 13.6, 13.7, 13.9, 13.10, 13.11, 13.12, 13.13, 13.14, 13.15, and 13.14 of this Stipulation) shall be canceled and terminated; (ii) any judgment entered in the Action and any related orders entered by the Court shall in all events be treated as vacated, nunc pro tunc; (iii) the Releases provided under the Settlement shall be null and void; (iv) the fact of the Settlement shall not be admissible in any proceeding before any court or tribunal; (v) all proceedings in the Action shall revert to their status as of immediately prior to the execution of the Term Sheet on January 11, 2022, and no materials created by or received from another Settling Party that were used in, obtained during, or related to settlement discussions shall be admissible for any purpose in any court or tribunal, or used, absent consent from the disclosing party, for any other purpose or in any other capacity, except to the extent that such materials are otherwise required to be produced during discovery in the Action or in any other litigation; (vi) the Settling Parties shall jointly petition the Court for a revised schedule for trial; (vii) the Settling Parties shall proceed in all respects as if the Settlement and this Stipulation (other than this Paragraph) had not been entered into by the Settling Parties; and (viii) within thirty (30) calendar days after joint written notification of termination is sent by Settling Defendants' Counsel and Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel to the Escrow Agent, the Settlement Fund (including accrued interest thereon, and change in value as a result of the investment of the Settlement Fund, and any funds received by Plaintiffs' Counsel consistent with Paragraph 8.2 of this Stipulation), less any Notice and Administration Costs actually incurred, paid, or payable and less any Taxes and Tax Expenses paid, due, or owing shall be refunded by the Escrow Agent directly to the Persons who made payments pursuant to Paragraph 2.1 above in such amounts as directed by the Settling Defendants. In the event that the funds received by Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel consistent with Paragraph 8.2 of this Stipulation above have not been refunded to the Settlement Fund within the thirty (30) calendar days specified in this Paragraph, those funds shall be refunded by the Escrow Agent immediately upon their deposit into the Escrow Account directly to the Persons who made payment pursuant to Paragraph 2.1 above in such amounts as directed by the Settling Defendants.

XII. NO ADMISSION OF LIABILITY

12.1 It is expressly understood and agreed that neither the Settlement nor any act or omission in connection therewith is intended or shall be deemed or argued to be evidence of or to constitute an admission or concession by: (a) Settling Defendants as to (i) the truth of any fact alleged by Plaintiffs; (ii) the validity of any claims or other issues raised, or which might be or might have been raised, in the Action or in any other litigation; (iii) the deficiency of any defense that has been or could have been asserted in the Action or in any litigation; or (iv) any wrongdoing, fault, or liability of any kind by any of them, which each of them expressly denies; or (b) Plaintiffs that any of their claims are without merit, that any of the Settling

Defendants had meritorious defenses, or that damages recoverable from the Settling Defendants under the Complaint would not have exceeded the Settlement Amount.

12.2 The Settling Defendants and the Released Persons may file this Stipulation and/or the Judgment in any action that has been or may be brought against them in order to support a claim or defense based on principles of res judicata, collateral estoppel, release, good faith settlement, judgment bar or reduction, or any other theory of claim preclusion or issue preclusion or similar defense or counterclaim or in connection with any insurance litigation.

XIII. MISCELLANEOUS

13.1 Each of the Settling Defendants warrants that, as to the payments made or to be made on behalf of him, at the time of entering into this Stipulation and at the time of such payment he, or to the best of his knowledge any Persons contributing to the payment of the Settlement Amount, were not insolvent, nor will the payment required to be made on behalf of them render them insolvent, within the meaning of and/or for the purposes of the United States Bankruptcy Code, including §§ 101 and 547 thereof. This representation is made by each of the Settling Defendants and not by their counsel.

13.2 In the event of the entry of a Final order of a court of competent jurisdiction determining the transfer of money to the Settlement Fund or any portion thereof on behalf of Settling Defendants to be a preference, voidable transfer, fraudulent transfer, or similar transaction and any portion thereof is required to be returned, and such amount is not promptly deposited into the Settlement Fund by others, then, at the election of Plaintiffs, Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants shall jointly move the Court to vacate and set aside the Releases given and the Judgment entered in favor of Settling Defendants and the other Released Persons pursuant to this Stipulation, in which event (i) the Releases and Judgment shall be null and void; (ii) Plaintiffs and Settling Defendants shall be restored to their respective positions in the litigation as provided in Paragraph 11.2 of this Stipulation; (iii) Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel shall refund the Fee and Expense Award consistent with Paragraph 8.2 of this Stipulation; and (iv) any cash amounts in the Settlement Fund (less any Taxes paid, due, or owing with respect to the Settlement Fund and less any Notice and Administration Costs actually incurred, paid, or payable) shall be returned as provided in Paragraph 11.2 of this Stipulation.

13.3 This Stipulation shall be deemed to have been mutually prepared by the Settling Parties and shall not be construed against any of them by reason of authorship.

13.4 The Settling Parties agree that in the event of any breach of this Stipulation, all of the Settling Parties' rights and remedies at law, equity, or otherwise, are expressly reserved.

13.5 This Stipulation may be executed in one or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed to be an original and all of which shall constitute one and the same document. Any signature to the Stipulation by means of facsimile or electronic scanning shall be treated in all manner and respects as an original signature and shall be considered to have the same binding legal effect as if it were the original signed version thereof and without any necessity for delivery of the originally signed signature pages in order for this to constitute a binding agreement.

13.6 The headings herein are used for the purpose of convenience only and are not meant to have legal effect.

13.7 Each counsel or other person executing this Stipulation on behalf of any Settling Party warrants that he or she has the full authority to bind his or her principal to this Stipulation.

13.8 Plaintiffs and Plaintiffs' Lead Counsel represent and warrant that none of Plaintiffs' Released Plaintiffs' Claims have been assigned, encumbered, or in any manner transferred in whole or in part.

13.9 This Stipulation shall not be modified or amended, nor shall any provision of this Stipulation be deemed waived, unless such modification, amendment, or waiver is in writing and executed by or on behalf of the Settling Party or Settling Parties against whom such modification, amendment, or waiver is sought to be enforced.

13.10 Any failure by any Settling Party to insist upon the strict performance by any other Settling Party of any of the provisions of this Stipulation shall not be deemed a waiver of any of the provisions hereof, and such Settling Party, notwithstanding such failure, shall have the right thereafter to insist upon the strict performance of any and all of the provisions of this Stipulation to be performed by such other Settling Party. Waiver by any Settling Party of any breach of this Stipulation by any other Settling Party shall not be deemed a waiver of any other prior or subsequent breach of this Stipulation, and failure by any Settling Party to assert any claim for breach of this Stipulation shall not be deemed to be a waiver as to that or any other breach and will not preclude any Settling Party from seeking to remedy a breach and enforce the terms of this Stipulation. Each of the Settling Defendants' respective obligations hereunder are several and not joint, and the breach or default by one Settling Defendant shall not be imputed to, nor shall any Settling Defendant have any liability or responsibility for, the obligations of any other Settling Defendant herein.

13.11 This Stipulation is and shall be binding upon, and shall inure to the benefit of, the Settling Parties (and, in the case of the Releases, all Released Persons as third-party beneficiaries) and their respective legal representatives, heirs, executors, administrators, predecessors, successors, predecessors-in-interest, successors-in-interest and assigns of any of the foregoing, including without limitation any corporation or other entity with which any party hereto may merge, reorganize, or otherwise consolidate.

13.12 Notwithstanding the entry of the Judgment, the Court shall retain jurisdiction with respect to the implementation, enforcement, and interpretation of the terms of the Stipulation, and all Settling Parties submit to the jurisdiction of the Court for all matters relating to the administration, enforcement, and consummation of the Settlement and the implementation, enforcement, and interpretation of the Stipulation, including, without limitation, any matters relating to awards of attorneys' fees and expenses. Each Settling Party (i) consents to personal jurisdiction in any such action (but no other action) brought in the Court; (ii) consents to service of process by registered mail upon such Settling Party or such Settling Party's agent; and (iii) waives any objection to venue in the Court and any claim that Delaware or the Court is an inconvenient forum.

13.13 The construction and interpretation of this Stipulation shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware and without regard to the laws that might otherwise govern under principles of conflicts of law applicable hereto.

13.14 Without further order of the Court, the Settling Parties may agree to reasonable extensions of time to carry out any of the provisions of the Stipulation.

13.15 Whether or not the Stipulation is approved by the Court and whether or not the Stipulation is consummated, or the Effective Date occurs, the Settling Parties and their counsel shall use their best efforts to keep all negotiations, discussions, acts performed, agreements, drafts, documents signed, and proceedings in connection with the Stipulation confidential.

13.16 All agreements made and orders entered during the course of this Action relating to the confidentiality of information shall survive this Settlement.

13.17 This Stipulation and the following exhibits (“Exhibits”) constitute the entire agreement among the Settling Parties with respect to the subject matter hereof:

- (a) Exhibit A: Scheduling Order With Respect to Notice and Settlement Hearing;
- (b) Exhibit B: Notice of Pendency and Proposed Settlement of Stockholder Class Action, Settlement Hearing, and Right to Appear;
- (c) Exhibit C: Summary Notice of Pendency and Proposed Settlement of Stockholder Class Action, Settlement Hearing, and Right to Appear;
- (d) Exhibit D: Final Order and Judgment;
- (e) Exhibit E: Schedule of Excluded Stockholders Related to The Settling Defendants.

These Exhibits are incorporated by reference as if set forth herein verbatim, and the terms of all Exhibits are expressly made part of this Stipulation. No representations, warranties, or inducements have been made to or relied upon by any Settling Party concerning this Stipulation or its Exhibits, other than the representations, warranties, and covenants expressly set forth in such documents.

13.18 The Settling Parties intend this Stipulation and the Settlement to be a final and complete resolution of all disputes asserted or which could be asserted by Plaintiffs and any other Class Members against Settling Defendants with respect to the Released Plaintiffs' Claims. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and their counsel and Settling Defendants and their counsel agree not to assert in any forum that this Action was brought by Plaintiffs or defended by Settling Defendants in bad faith or without a reasonable basis. Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants represent and agree that the terms of the Settlement reached between Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants were negotiated at arm's-length and in good faith by Plaintiffs and the Settling Defendants, and reflect a settlement that was reached voluntarily based upon adequate information and sufficient discovery and after consultation with experienced legal counsel.

13.19 While retaining their right to deny that the claims asserted in the Action were meritorious, Settling Defendants and their counsel, in any statement made to any media representative (whether or not for attribution) will not assert that the Action was commenced or prosecuted in bad faith, nor will they deny that the Action was commenced and prosecuted in good faith and is being settled voluntarily after consultation with competent legal counsel. In all events, Plaintiffs and their counsel and Settling Defendants and their counsel shall not make any accusations of wrongful or actionable conduct by any Settling Party concerning the prosecution, defense, and resolution of the Action, and shall not otherwise suggest that the Settlement constitutes an admission of any claim or defense alleged.

13.20 No opinion or advice concerning the tax consequences of the proposed Settlement to individual Class Members is being given or will be given by the Settling Parties or their counsel; nor is any representation or warranty in this regard made by virtue of this Stipulation. Each Class Member's tax obligations, and the determination thereof, are the sole responsibility of the Class Member, and it is understood that the tax consequences may vary depending on the particular circumstances of each individual Class Member

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, IT IS HEREBY AGREED by the undersigned as of the date noted above.
