Second Quarter 2018 Domestic Industry Box Office is the Largest Box Office Quarter in Cinema History

April, May, June gross revenues set an all-time quarterly domestic industry box office record of an estimated $3.33 billion

Domestic box office sets new record for the month of April of $1.02 billion, and sets new record for the month of June at estimated $1.27 billion

Second quarter domestic industry box office up approximately 22.7% year over year

Year-to-date, the 2018 domestic box office is up approximately 9.6% vs. last year, and 2018 is the fastest year to $6 billion in history

LEAWOOD, Kan.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- "Let's all go to the movies" rang through the second quarter of 2018, with April, May and June recording the highest box office grossing calendar quarter of all time. AMC Theatres® (NYSE:AMC) ("AMC"), the largest movie theatre chain in the United States, commented today on this notable achievement, due to the collective efforts of movie makers and theatre operators.

"There can be no doubt now that when Hollywood makes appealing movies, Americans flock to movie theatres in huge numbers. The record-setting quarter we just completed was the biggest in cinema history," said Adam Aron, CEO and President, AMC Theatres. "We salute the magnificent job being done by our studio partners in creating the fabulous content that we in turn are putting on our screens. Success here is also the result of the continued dedication of exhibitors, led by AMC, to provide the very best movie-going amenities to our guests. Cutting-edge marketing programs are also key drivers for increased movie going, including our AMC Stubs loyalty program and the new AMC Stubs A-List."

The record-setting second quarter was not only the largest second quarter of all time, but with an estimated $3.33 billion, it was also the largest of any individual quarter in box office history, blowing by the previous record of $3.09 billion set in the second quarter of 2015. Final industry box office numbers for the second quarter and month of June will be available later this week.

Looking at the strength across and within the quarter, a record June finished an estimated 20.1% ahead of last year with an estimated record $1.27 billion, May finished 24% ahead of last year, and a record April finished 26% ahead of last year.

June 2018 represents the fifth time in the past 10 months that the Hollywood domestic box office has set a record. September, December, February, April and June each set a record best for those respective months.

Through the first half of 2018, the box office is up an estimated 9.6% versus the first six months in 2017, and 2018 is the fastest year in history to eclipse the $6 billion total box office mark.

The summer of great titles continues in July.
