DETAILS:

Unemployment claims management can be a challenging process for any organization, but also presents some unique challenges for the staffing industry. Wrought with forms and deadlines, compliance and efficiency are further complicated by changing legislation, an often dispersed employee base and turnover. To help organizations identify and implement unemployment claims management best practices, Renhill Staffing will share details of its successful implementation of Equifax Workforce Solutions CaseBuilder™ during this complimentary webinar.

Equifax Workforce Solutions director of Claims Services, Jennifer Redden, will join Tami Stansley, risk manager for Renhill Staffing, to explore case study analysis on the features, benefits and results obtained using CaseBuilder. Drawing on industry and implementation experience, Redden and Stansley will discuss how organizations can improve the timeliness and uniformity of claims responses by tailoring dashboards and reminders, tracking deadlines, detecting errors, enabling corrections and keeping track of changes. Stansley will also describe how she uses CaseBuilder to manage unemployment cost control and stay aware of urgent items on her agenda, and will offer insight into the results Renhill Staffing has seen since implementing the solution. Attendees will learn firsthand how to increase transparency through reporting insights and review features while optimizing the claims management process.

Attendees: HR professionals interested in learning how to streamline unemployment claims management, improve employee service and ensure compliance are encouraged to attend this complimentary one-hour presentation.
