Andersen Welcomes Managing Director Jordan Lamm to Valuation Practice in Chicago

SAN FRANCISCO--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Andersen's newest addition to the Valuation practice is Managing Director Jordan Lamm in Chicago. Jordan has over 30 years of experience in financial services, with more than 25 years in financial reporting and tax valuations.

Rosa De Luna-Frede, Chicago Office Managing Director commented, "Jordan's extensive experience in leading large-scale multinational and international valuation projects is ideal for our Chicago client-base and builds on the momentum of our national valuation practice."

Jordan assists businesses of all types with valuation needs including for financial reporting, gift, estate, federal and international tax. In addition, he has expertise in supporting companies with quality of earnings assessments for strategic and M&A purposes. Jordan is recognized for his deep expertise in business valuation, forecasting and execution of financial plans, identifying and implementing service offerings, and key tangible and intangible assets.

"We look forward to Jordan joining the Andersen team," commented Dan DePaoli, U.S. Country Managing Director. "His leadership experience in developing strong relationships and teams, his intense focus on integrity, and his in-depth knowledge of tax valuations will help advance our practice to the next level."

Prior to joining Andersen, Jordan was a Principal and Head of Americas Valuation Services for KPMG where he was responsible for providing business and intangible asset valuation services to consumer and industrial markets companies.

Jordan received his Bachelor of Science in Finance from Northern Illinois University, and his Master of Management in Finance from Northwestern University.
