(Nasdaq: PESI) today announced that PNC Bank N.A. has provided the company with a $7.0 million Term Note as part of the restructuring of the Company's $25 million credit facility with the bank. The new $7.0 million Term Note is a four-year loan, amortized over seven years, which bears an interest rate of prime plus one percent. Both the new Term Note and the existing $18 million revolver capacity will become due on July 31, 2012. Dr. Louis F. Centofanti, Chairman and CEO, commented, "Following the recent sale of several industrial facilities, we paid down our entire term note payable to PNC. Reloading our term note at this time allowed us to reduce our revolving line of credit by a similar amount and provides us additional borrowing capacity based on our eligible collateral and greater financial flexibility as we ramp up our activities to expand in the nuclear industry. Reflecting the strength of our balance sheet, we are pleased with the terms extended by our lender."
