

Professional Diversity Network, Inc. Announces New Federal Partnership

CHICAGO, July 13, 2016 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Professional Diversity Network, Inc. ("PDN") (NASDAQ:IPDN), which operates America's premiere network for professional women, through its www.napw.com platform, and provides access to employment opportunities for diverse professionals through its www.prodivnet.com platform and affiliated sites, announced today that it has formed a new partnership with the Bureau of the Fiscal Service ("BFS"), a branch of the Department of Treasury.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- PDN has partnered with BFS to help enhance federal workforce diversity
- BFS joins growing ranks of PDN's federal agency partners
- Federal agency attention to employment diversity reflects growing trend

The Company announced today a new partnership with BFS, an agency formed in 2012 to help streamline the federal government's financial services operations across most agencies. BFS now joins PDN's growing ranks of federal agency partners, including the Transportation Security Administration ("TSA"), Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"), National Institutes of Health ("NIH"), Consumer Fraud Protection Board ("CFPB") and Department of the Treasury ("Treasury").

Jim Kirsch, Executive Chair of the Company's Board of Directors, noted that the new partnership with BFS continues PDN's focus on federal government contracts. "Part of our strategic plan includes partnering with federal agencies in their efforts to enhance diversity within the federal workforce. The federal government has long been on the leading edge of diversity in employment – enacting, enforcing and following the laws which support a more diverse workforce – and our federal partnerships not only help to solidify our brand within the marketplace but actually help to stimulate demand for our services in both the public and private sectors. From a brand perspective, we believe that partnerships like ours with BFS demonstrate to other employers that we are well-positioned to supply them with diverse candidates."

"As the public face of PDN, I am in this market every day, where I see the demand for diversity Jim mentioned," said Star Jones, the Company's President. She continued, "This demand is reflected everywhere from our daily news to the cover of this month's Harvard Business Review, which dedicated its issue to the topic of workplace diversity. Our new partnership with BFS is particularly exciting because of the type of candidates BFS seeks, which include candidates in critical areas such as accounting, business and finance, and IT. These are all traditionally under-served areas in terms of diversity. I am beyond proud to be part of this Company, which, I believe, has created the partnerships and infrastructure to supply the demand for these critical BFS employees as well as from other organizations in both the public and private sectors."
