flyExclusive Expands Raleigh Presence with New One North Hills Office to Support Continued Growth

RALEIGH, N.C.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- flyExclusive today announced it has leased office space in the One North Hills Tower in Raleigh, North Carolina, marking a significant step in the company's long-term growth strategy as it prepares for continued expansion in 2026 and beyond.

The new Raleigh office will strengthen flyExclusive's ability to attract top talent, enhance cross-functional collaboration, and accelerate execution as the company enters its next phase of disciplined growth. flyExclusive already has nearly 30 team members based in Raleigh. By February the company plans to occupy additional temporary office space that will accommodate approximately 50 employees, with the permanent office scheduled to open by June that will accommodate around 125 people.

"Raleigh sits at the center of an exceptionally strong talent market and gives us the scale and proximity we need to move faster as a business," said Jim Segrave, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of flyExclusive. "This expansion supports how we operate today, will improve how we deliver for our customers and where we are headed as a company."

The One North Hills office is located approximately 1 hour and 15 minutes from flyExclusive's headquarters in Kinston, North Carolina. Kinston will remain core to the company's future. flyExclusive confirmed that its world-class MRO (maintenance, repair, and overhaul) capabilities—including paint, interior, avionics, and maintenance—will continue to be based in Kinston, along with maintenance leadership. The company is also advancing major investments at The NC Global Transpark in Kinston, including a new simulator training center, a 121,000-square-foot hangar project to support the rapid growth of the maintenance business, and the evaluation of a second paint booth to support that business that is consistently booked months in advance.

"This move strengthens the entire company," Segrave added. "It positions us to collaborate better, grow faster, and continue building what we believe will be the premier private jet operator in the industry."
