Ingram Micro Strengthens its Communication and Collaboration Cloud Services Offering in Hong Kong with the Addition of Dropbox Business

HONG KONG, CHINA -- (Marketwired) -- 12/07/16 -- Ingram Micro Inc. (NYSE: IM) today announced it has strengthened its communication and collaboration offering in Hong Kong with the addition of Dropbox Business to the Ingram Micro Cloud Marketplace, a cloud services platform that enables resellers to purchase, provision, manage, and invoice cloud technology with ease.

Dropbox Business is a leading provider of file sharing and collaboration services that empowers end customers to maintain complete control over vital company files and user activity for greater work efficiency and business growth. Business teams can work anywhere using Dropbox Business and safely sync, store and share files. Built on a highly scalable and secure infrastructure with multiple layers of protection, including safe data transfers and encryption, Dropbox Business allows users to collaborate across multiple devices, from one centralized console.

With Dropbox Business, team members can work together like they're sitting right next to each other -- even when they're halfway around the world. Dropbox Business works with hundreds of third-party applications -- everything from Microsoft Word and Excel to Photoshop and Acrobat, and runs on Windows, Android, iOS, Mac, and Linux.

The Ingram Micro Cloud Marketplace enables channel partners to bundle Dropbox Business with Microsoft Office 365, and deliver a complete and secure collaboration solution that not only increases cross-sell opportunities but also streamlines business communications and productivity across industry verticals.

"Ingram Micro makes cloud success easy, delivering everything a business needs to thrive in this dynamic IT business landscape," said Biga Luk, Managing Director, Hong Kong, Ingram Micro. "We are pleased to strengthen our existing cloud portfolio and deliver one of the most highly adopted collaboration platforms to support efficient business growth in the cloud."
