

SoundThinking Honors Law Enforcement During National Police Week 2025

Summary: SoundThinking joins the nation in honoring fallen officers and expressing gratitude to all who serve during National Police Week, reaffirming its commitment to the law enforcement community.

FREMONT, CA, May 13, 2025 – SoundThinking, Inc. (Nasdaq: SSTI), a leading public safety technology provider, joins the nation in honoring the courage, dedication, and sacrifice of law enforcement officers during National Police Week from May 11, 2025 to May 17, 2025. This annual observance offers an opportunity for Americans to remember fallen heroes and express their appreciation to those who continue to serve with integrity.

National Police Week is a solemn reminder of the ultimate price paid by officers in the line of duty. According to the National Law Enforcement Memorial Fund, 148 officers lost their lives while serving in 2024, adding to the more than 24,000 names engraved on the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial in Washington, D.C. Each name represents a life cut short, a family forever changed, and a community grateful for their service.

"We are humbled to stand alongside the law enforcement professionals who work tirelessly to protect our communities," said Ralph Clark, President and CEO of SoundThinking. "This week, and every week, we honor their courage, remember their sacrifice, and recognize the profound impact they have on the safety and well-being of our cities and neighborhoods. To all who serve – and to the families who support them – we thank you."

SoundThinking backs those who protect and serve, not only with words but through action. The company puts this commitment into practice year-round by delivering mission-critical public safety technologies that provide real-time situational awareness to help keep officers safe and support better decision-making in the field, and by partnering with and contributing to organizations dedicated to the law enforcement community:

- First Responder Therapy Dogs, providing emotional support to officers and their families.
- Detroit Public Safety Foundation, funding essential community safety programs.
- Miami's Do the Right Thing program, recognizing youth who support public safety.
- The Ella French Scholarship Fund, honoring the legacy of fallen Chicago Police Officer Ella French by supporting educational opportunities.
- Philadelphia Police Foundation's Night for Blue, funding critical equipment, wellness programs, and youth engagement efforts for the Philadelphia Police Department.
- National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives \(NOBLE\), advancing training and leadership for over 2,000 public safety professionals at its annual national conference.
- Chicago Police Foundation's True Blue Gala, raising over $500,000 annually to fund CPD technology, training, safety equipment, and community outreach.

"The badge represents a sacred trust between officers and the communities they serve," added Mr. Clark. "We stand with law enforcement not only during National Police Week, but also every day of the year. We remain committed to honoring the fallen, supporting their families, and showing our enduring gratitude to those who serve with honor."

This week, SoundThinking invites all Americans to reflect on the sacrifices made by law enforcement officers, support the families of the fallen, and show appreciation for those who continue to serve with honor. Learn more about how you can support law enforcement at www.policeweek.org.
