MultiVu Digital Center Feed: Take-Off of 'Self-Sustaining' Recovery Stalled on the Launch Pad as November Labor Data Disappoints, Says PNC Chief Economist

DATELINE/CITY: Dec. 3, 2010, PITTSBURGH

SUMMARY: PNC Chief Economist Stuart Hoffman, Ph.D., provides expert insight on the latest unemployment data and the implications for both economic recovery and holiday sales. Despite a disappointing November Jobs Report, Hoffman reinforces his forecast of a sustained "half-speed" economic expansion versus a "double dip" recession through original videotape made available by PNC.
