Prologis Closes Multi-Currency Senior Term Loan Agreement

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7, 2012 /PRNewswire/ -- Prologis, Inc. (NYSE: PLD), the leading global owner, operator and developer of industrial real estate, today announced that it has entered into a senior term loan agreement with nine relationship lenders including Bank of America, N.A., as Administrative Agent. The company may obtain loans in U.S. dollars, euros, Japanese yen, and British pounds in an aggregate amount not to exceed euro 487.5 million (approximately $634 million). An accordion feature included in the loan agreement would permit a maximum increase to euro 987.5 million (approximately $1.3 billion), subject to obtaining additional lender commitments.

"The new facility enables us to maintain meaningful natural currency hedges at attractive financing terms. This facility addressed our Japan term loan that was scheduled to mature in 2012 and allowed us to refinance other corporate bank loans with longer term financing," said Phillip D. Joseph, Jr., managing director and treasurer.

The loan agreement is scheduled to mature on February 2, 2014; however, the company may extend the maturity date three times, in each case up to one year, subject to satisfaction of certain conditions and payment of an extension fee. Pricing under the facility is based upon the public debt ratings of the company's operating partnership and is currently at LIBOR plus 150 basis points. This represents a weighted average price reduction of approximately 67 basis points compared to the corporate bank facilities that were refinanced by this new facility.
