Axiom shares trading at a deep discount to revised target value

Axiom Technologies, Inc. (Other OTC: AXGI)
9/28/07 Closing Price: $0.09

On August 1st 2007, we issued an equity note revising our 12-month target value for Axiom Technologies, Inc. down from $2.15 per share to $0.90 per share. This revision was largely predicated on previously unforeseen complications with the Company's deal with CNB, as well as slower than expected sales and licensing revenues from its Maximum product, which were somewhat offset by higher than expected TaggerTrap sales. As of September 28, 2007, shares of Axiom Technologies closed at $0.09 per share, representing a 90% discount from our revised 12-month target value.

As we stated in our equity note, our new target value was calculated based solely on earnings from deals that have already been signed. For this reason, we believe that our revised target value is conservative with room for significant upside given the strong interest expressed to-date from cities around the nation for the Axiom's TaggerTrap systems. We believe that shares of Axiom are vastly oversold, and AXGI represents a significant opportunity for investors seeking value.

On September 6th, 2007, Axiom announced that it had signed a deal with the city of Montebello, CA from implementing a video surveillance and graffiti detection program worth $836,257. In June 2007, the Company announced that it had been selected to provide the surveillance system for the city of Huntington Park in California, with an initial value of $100,000. Earlier in the year, the Company signed a deal with the Silver State Credit Union in Nevada for approximately $400,000 to deliver a NAS storage system. In sum, we calculate that the Company has signed TaggerTrap and system deals worth an estimated $1.4 million in 2007.

In addition to this TaggerTrap and system revenue streams, the Company is also earning $100,000-$150,000 per month from its CNB distribution deal and $150,000-$250,000 per month from a deal with Westec to deliver CCTV cameras.

Using a conservative figure including only revenues from signed deals, we calculate that shares of Axiom are currently trading at 0.33 times revenues, as compared to 3.0 times for its security industry peers as shown in the table below.

| Company | Ticker | Price | Forward P/E Ratio | Price to Revenue Ratio | Price to Book Ratio | Market Cap ($M) |
|---------------------------|--------|---------|-------------------|------------------------|---------------------|------------------|
| ActivIdentity | ACTI | $5.21 | N/A | 3.71 | 1.46 | $238.3 |
| Aladdin Knowledge Systems | ALDN | $22.44 | 18.39 | 3.37 | 2.67 | $325.2 |
| AsiaInfo Holdings | ASIA | $9.35 | 21.74 | 3.31 | 2.2 | $407.7 |
| March Networks | MN.TO | $14.50 | N/A | N/A | N/A | $253.5 |
| Network Engines | NENG | $1.82 | N/A | 0.68 | 1.39 | $79.3 |
| NICE-Systems | NICE | $36.45 | 21.44 | 4.01 | 3.03 | $1,900.1 |
| Verint Systems | VRNT | $26.10 | 18.51 | 2.85 | 2.65 | $840.2 |
| Average | | | 20.0 | 2.99 | 2.23 | $577.7 |

Source: Yahoo Finance as of October 1st, 2007

If shares of Axiom Technologies were to trade at its industry peers' average revenue multiple, this would equate to $0.81 per share. As such, we remain convinced that buying shares of Axiom at these levels represents the greatest investment opportunity in our investment universe.

Historic Chinese Investment Policy Boosting U.S. listed Chinese Stocks

by Paul Hickey

Last week the Chinese government announced that they would start to allow certain Chinese mutual funds to invest in Chinese companies listed overseas, such as the Hong Kong, Singapore and Nasdaq exchanges. With just this news, the Chinese U.S. listed companies had a huge week of gains.

What many Americans don't know is that Chinese people and institutions are restricted from investing their Chinese Yuan (their currency) outside of China. There are millions of individuals and companies in China over the last 10 years that have made billions of dollars in profits but could only invest their money in China. Now, for the first time since China opened its doors, the Chinese will be able to invest outside of China.

Here's a couple quotes from the news wires last week:

"The domestic market is already trading at a current [price-to-earnings ratios) of over 50 times. So offering local investors opportunities to invest in other markets offshore with lower P/Es is obviously going to be in great demand under current market conditions," said Sherene Ban, an Asian portfolio manager for J.P Morgan's asset-management arm.

"Demand for the new Mellon-advised fund (the fund also has a Chinese asset- manager sponsor as required under the rules) was more than double the limit Chinese officials placed on the offering. Chinese regulators originally put a $2 billion cap on initial assets under management. The fund lobbied and wound up getting an increase in the cap to $4 billion.

But word of that approval came well after the closing bell. "We essentially had to return $4 billion," Jiang said. And as agreed beforehand, Mellon and its China-based partners had to quickly close the fund to new investors."

This is just the tip of the iceberg of the investment dollars that will begin flowing out of China to Chinese companies listed in the U.S. And by the way, these funds are restricted to investing in just Chinese companies. If you haven't done so yet, this would be a good time to start looking at putting some of your money into a couple Chinese stocks.

Micro-cap Portfolio

The micro-capital portfolio is a collection of WSR's best ideas and is intended to help speculative investors increase their investment performance. Positions in the portfolio include early stage companies and other micro-capital companies that appear to be significantly under-valued or technically attractive. Early stage companies are typically WSR clients and (in our opinion) have the potential for a three hundred percent return over the next three to five years. Other companies included in the portfolio are generally trading at a significant discount to their peers, breaking out of long-term bases, are turn-around plays, or have recently announced a significant event. Changes to the portfolio are emailed to WSR's subscribers via its Daily Notes publication and are updated each month in The Emerging Growth News.
