"Your source for timely information on under-followed emerging growth companies"

January 2008

Disaster Capital = Opportunity

During the 1990's, technological developments, including innovation in telecommunications and computer networking, spawned a vast information technology industry and revolutionized the way most companies operate. By the end of 1999, the economy had grown continuously since March 1991, the longest peacetime economic expansion in history. Unemployment totaled just 4.1 percent of the labor force in November 1999, the lowest rate in nearly 30 years. Meanwhile, during the latter half of the decade, the NASDAQ's stellar performance created rampant tech stock speculation, and IPO's were creating multi-millionaires overnight for those lucky enough to be associated with any company hemorrhaging cash with a "dot com" at the end of its name. Despite the euphoria of this tech driven boom economy where every retail investor saw himself as the next Warren Buffet, the party would eventually and suddenly come to a screeching halt.

The beginning of the new millennium brought an abrupt wake up call to giddy investors who had become intoxicated with soaring stock prices over the previous three years. After years in hibernation, risk finally reared its ugly head. The tech bubble crumbled, as did cash strapped e-companies whose access to capital evaporated seemingly overnight. In the throws of a hard-hitting recession, the unthinkable happened --- the terror attacks of September 11th, 2001. As devastating as these attack were on our national psyche, it marked the beginning of a new economic surge.

Just two months after the attacks, the Department of Defense brought together a group of venture capital consultants to identify emerging technology solutions that directly assist the U.S. efforts in the new war on terror. By early 2006, this informal group had become an official arm of the Pentagon: the Defense Venture Catalyst Initiative (DeVenCI), a "fully operational office" that continually feeds security information to politically connected VC's, who, in turn, scour the private sector for start-ups that can produce new surveillance and related products.

In essence, the federal government was stepping in and filling the void left by Silicon Valley. The Bush administration was the new source of capital, the new "fed VC's" funding the terrorist catching technology industry. This new paradigm created massive publicly funded deal flow that led not only to growth of start-ups and investment funds, but also to new lobbying firms to connect the private industry with federal funding. In 2001, there were two such security-oriented lobby firms, but by mid 2006, there were 543¹.

The Department of Homeland Security, a brand-new arm of the government created to protect America, would provide the main bolster to the U.S. economy in a post 9/11 world. Between Sept. 11, 2001 and 2006, the Dept. of Homeland security handed out $130 billion to private contractors, which is more than the GDP of Chile or the Czech Republic².

One of the first booms for the homeland security industry was surveillance cameras. In the U.S., approximately 30 million have been installed, shooting over 4 billion hours of footage per year. In addition to the remote surveillance and remote monitoring needs, this much raw footage created the need for analytic software that scans the tapes and creates matches with images already on file. Because facial recognition software can only identify someone who “poses” for the camera front and center, a market for digital image enhancement was created. The demand for optical scanning and biometric ID’s was also growing. Additionally, due to the prodigious amount of digital data floating around, the market for information management, web tracking, and data mining, as well as software that is able to “connect the dots” in this ocean of words and numbers was born. The boom of the homeland security industry, which barely existed prior to September 11, 2001, has arrived, and will not likely disappear anytime soon.

Micro-cap Portfolio

The micro-capital portfolio is a collection of WSR's best ideas and is intended to help speculative investors increase their investment performance. Positions in the portfolio include early stage companies and other micro-capital companies that appear to be significantly under-valued or technically attractive. Early stage companies are typically WSR clients and (in our opinion) have the potential for a three hundred percent return over the next three to five years. Other companies included in the portfolio are generally trading at a significant discount to their peers, breaking out of long-term bases, are turn-around plays, or have recently announced a significant event. Changes to the portfolio are emailed to WSR's subscribers via its Daily Notes publication and are updated each month in The Emerging Growth News.

Axiom Technologies, Inc.OTC:AXGI

Axiom Technologies, Inc. -- On December 3rd, 2007, KABC Los Angeles reported that an armed man stole the wedding ring off the finger of an 83-year-old woman, and it was all caught on tape. According to the article: "The owner of the Hampshire Jewelry store says the suspect stole about $17,000 worth of jewelry from the store on Saturday, including her 83-year-old mother's wedding ring. Here's a clean-cut man, 32 to 33 years old, coming in and genuinely acting like he's interested in buying an engagement ring and then pulls out a gun and threatens to kill somebody."

The unique part about this story is not the robbery itself, but the amazing clarity of the video evidence left behind. The surveillance video taken at the scene of the crime captured a remarkably clear image of the incident and the face of the suspect. Axiom Technologies, Inc. was the provider of this video surveillance hardware. The clarity of the video was possible as a result of the line resolution of the DVR, which was co-developed by Axiom Technologies. Axiom Technologies has exclusive rights to this technology in the United States.

Axiom's primary products include MAXIMUM Surveillance Software, which is the key solution providing interoperability for numerous digitalized security and surveillance products from diverse manufacturers. The Company's Digital Video Recorders (DVRs) and Network Video Products (NVPs) are targeted at the Security and Surveillance segment of the gaming industry. The Company's newest product "Tagger Trap" is a state of the art graffiti detection product, which detects and alarms local police of graffiti activity. The estimated cost of graffiti clean up in North America is projected at $1.0 billion annually. Millions of dollars have been budgeted in the past year by large metro police departments to detect and apprehend graffiti taggers. Click here to obtain additional information...

BlueFire Ethanol, Inc.OTCBB:BFRE

BlueFire Ethanol, Inc. OTCBB:BFRE BlueFire Ethanol, Inc., a leader in the development of waste-to-ethanol technology, applauds the Congress and President Bush for passing the Energy Bill which provides for revisions to the Renewable Fuels Standard (RFS) and increases the mandate for renewable fuels to 36 Billion gallons by 2022, 16 Billion of which would come from cellulosic ethanol.

BlueFire intends to build a multinational company that leads the world in producing biobased transportation fuels. Its business will encompass development activities leading to the construction and long-term operation of production facilities while maintaining technological advantage and ownership of the process technology and all its improvements. Ethanol will be produced from biorefinery facilities opportunistically constructed on or near landfills, waste collection and waste separation sites. Each facility will deploy the proprietary technology, which uses all cellulosic waste materials traditionally disposed of in landfills as feedstock.

Ecosphere Technologies, Inc.OTCBB:ESPH

Ecosphere Technologies, a diversified clean technology and services company, recently announced its preliminary third quarter and year-to-date 2007 results. The Company's revenues for the third quarter of 2007 were approximately $7,000 and for the nine months were approximately $668,000. The third quarter was spent negotiating a term sheet and definitive agreement as well as supplying extensive due diligence material to the buyer of Ecosphere's robotic coating removal technology. As a result of these efforts in the third quarter, the approximate $8 million landmark sale of its patented ship stripping robotic technology closed on October 9, 2007.

Ecosphere's un-audited revenues and gains, before related direct costs of approximately $3 million, for the 10 months ended October 31, 2007 were approximately $8.6 million up 310% over the comparable period in 2006 of approximately $2.1 million. It also equates to an increase of 258% over full year 2006 revenues of $2.4 million. Ecosphere has not yet finalized its net earnings for the 10 months ended October 31, 2007 as the fourth quarter results will be reported pursuant to the completion of the 2007 10-KSB annual report.

Ecosphere Technologies, Inc., through its subsidiaries, develops and commercializes water and renewable energy technologies in the United States. It produces mobile filtration systems that are affixed to shipping containers or integrated into rugged off road vehicles to respond to natural or manmade disasters, as well as for industrial and military applications. The company also offers a line of patented robotic vehicles that remove paint and other coatings from ships using ultra high pressure water, reducing the discharge of contaminated residue or grit into the air and ocean.

In addition, Ecosphere Technologies develops Ecos Lifelink, a micro utility that provides clean water, power, Internet, and telecommunication services to remote areas using solar and wind energy. Further, it is developing Ecos Com Cube, which provides cellular telephone, VOIP, and Internet connection services to residents of remote and off-grid areas of developing countries using renewable energy generated by the solar panels and wind turbines. The company was founded in 1998. It was formerly known as UltraStrip Systems, Inc. and changed its name to Ecosphere Technologies, Inc. in 2006. Ecosphere Technologies is based in Stuart, Florida.

Northern Oil & Gas, Inc.OTCBB:NOGS

Northern Oil & Gas, Inc. a Nevada corporation focused on drilling exploratory and developmental wells in the Rocky Mountain regions of the United States recently announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire approximately 4,500 additional net acres in Mountrail County, North Dakota. This acreage is near EOG Resources' recent exploration successes in the Parshall Field, North Dakota's largest Bakken reservoir found to date. The acquisition increases Northern leasehold assets in Mountrail County to approximately 13,000 net acres. The acquisition increases Northern's gross leasehold interest in Mountrail County to 45,000 acres.

Northern also announced it has begun to acquire leasehold assets in Burke and Divide Counties in North Dakota. Northern has accumulated approximately 7,500 net acres in the horizontal drilling play targeting both the Bakken and Winnepegosis resource formations. The acreage is near recent discoveries in the Bakken and Winnepegosis.

The primary target of Northern Oil is the Middle Bakken formation in the Williston Basin. Northern Oil's secondary target is conventional, 3D driven, oil and gas exploration and development throughout the Rocky Mountain Region. The new acreage located in the Appalachia Basin will give the Company an opportunity to participate in the early stage development of a prolific North American natural gas play. With companies such as Talisman Energy, Chesapeake Energy and Range Resources active in the region, Northern Oil & Gas believes there are ample opportunities for partnerships to develop.

Northern Oil and Gas, Inc. is an exploration and production company based in Wayzata, Minnesota. The company currently controls approximately 25,000 net mineral acres in the Williston Basin and 10,000 net mineral acres in the Appalachia Basin.
