"How This Millennial Turned an 'Orphan Child' Business in to a $50 Million Success"

FARMINGDALE, N.Y., Jan. 13, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- Cemtrex (Nasdaq: CETX), a diversified industrial and manufacturing leader, announced today that its Chairman and CEO, Saagar Govil, was recently featured in an Inc.com piece entitled "How this Millennial Turned an 'Orphan Child' Business in to a $50 Million Success" published on Friday January 8th, 2016.

In the article, Inc.com writer, Kevin Daum, discusses Cemtrex's CEO Saagar Govil, "After graduating college with an engineering degree, he had plenty of offers from fast growing software giants, but he chose instead to work as an engineer in an underperforming company in which his family had invested. [...] Govil dug in and learned the business from bottom up. Thanks to Govil's keen insights and strategies, he worked his way up fast through management, and at the age of 25 in 2012, he earned the top role of CEO. Govil, an active member of the Young Presidents' Organization (YPO), has since grown the company exponentially in the green and environmental technology sector where many others have failed. He has grown revenues and profits while at the same time doing incredible things for the environment."
