MicroBilt and Equifax Help Businesses Make Informed Credit Decisions

Equifax Commercial Credit Data Now Available on CreditCommander.com

ATLANTA, Aug. 8 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Equifax Inc. (NYSE: EFX) today announced that MicroBilt Corporation is linking customers with a portfolio of commercial information solutions from Equifax. Through MicroBilt.com, customers now can access commercial credit risk scores and leverage unique data from the Small Business Financial Exchange (SBFE), which has become the industry standard in helping small business credit grantors make informed credit decisions.

With this offering, companies now can go to a single source for their commercial credit information needs. They can access information on more than 23 million businesses with the Equifax Commercial Credit Report, which includes banking and lease payment information, trade payment histories, public records and business demographics. Another valuable tool offered through the site - Equifax Commercial Credit Risk Scores - assesses the likelihood of new or existing accounts becoming 90 days or more past due within 12 months. This helps companies further evaluate the credit risk of businesses.

"Solution offerings such as MicroBilt.com provide businesses with the information tools and technology to manage risk and strengthen performance," said Michael Shannon, president, North America Commercial Solutions, Equifax. "Through the convenience of MicroBilt.com and the breadth of products now offered on the site, companies can quickly and easily evaluate, manage and grow the right customer relationships."

MicroBilt.com has been providing businesses with credit report access since 1978. More than 50,000 customers visit www.microbilt.com to access consumer and commercial credit reports as well as other decision-critical data such as criminal background, evictions, motor vehicle reports and more. Customers can maximize their company's credit productivity using this centralized Web site for ease of use and access to all credit information.

"By integrating Equifax's industry-leading commercial credit solutions into MicroBilt.com, we have created a robust and reliable go-to credit resource for today's businesses," said Walt Wojciechowski, Chief Executive Officer, MicroBilt. "Our relationship with Equifax Commercial Solutions demonstrates MicroBilt's continued commitment to offering customers the most comprehensive information available to help them sustain competitive advantage."
