UiPath Leadership to Ring Opening Bell at New York Stock Exchange to Mark Five-Year IPO Anniversary

Milestone celebrates the company's evolution into a leader in agentic business orchestration

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- UiPath (NYSE: PATH), a leader in agentic business orchestration, today announced that its leadership team will ring the Opening Bell[®] at the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) in celebration of the company's five-year anniversary as a publicly traded company. The NYSE bell-ringing ceremony symbolizes a key milestone in UiPath's evolution as a leader in agentic business orchestration, helping enterprises move beyond mere experimentation to enterprise-wide AI deployment.

"Five years ago, we went public with a clear conviction that work—and the way it gets done—was ready for transformation," said Daniel Dines, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of UiPath. "This milestone is an opportunity to not only reflect on how far we've come, but also to envision what comes next. Working alongside our customers, we've helped reshape enterprise operations through agentic AI, automation, and business orchestration, unlocking new ways of working. We are now positioned at the center of the agentic enterprise, combining intelligent systems with the scale, governance, and deterministic execution required to deliver meaningful outcomes."
