

SEI Releases 2008 Update of FAS 87 Disclosure Assumptions Research for Pension Plan Sponsors

Findings Can Be Used by Plan Sponsors in Calculation of Pension Expense and Obligations

OAKS, Pa., Dec. 19 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Next year will require the implementation of compliance changes, new funding rules and continued accounting scrutiny, resulting in the need for plan sponsors to more diligently select discount rates and expected return on asset (ROA) assumptions, according to SEI's 2008 update of an annual research study on Financial Accounting Standards No. 87 (FAS 87). The study, released today by SEI (Nasdaq: SEIC), offers plan sponsors guidance for selecting assumptions when providing pension related disclosures in their 2007 annual statements.

The current update of SEI's research can be used by companies in the calculation of pension expense and obligations. Specifically, it provides guidance for the discount rate and ROA assumptions plan sponsors should use for 2007 year-end calculations. Data is derived from the 2007 SEI Plan Sponsor Accounting Database, which consists of data from Standard & Poor's Institutional Market Services database as well as proprietary analysis created by SEI's Institutional Group.

"The changes in spreads and in the shape of applicable yield curves require a close examination of the data and a clear process for selection of these assumptions," said Jon Waite, Chief Actuary for SEI's Institutional Group. "When combined with all of the other changes in pension rules, plan sponsors are in need of transparent and understandable guidance on these and other pension financial management issues."

Now in its sixth year, this research series has drawn on SEI's industry leading knowledge around FAS 87 and defined benefit accounting to provide assumptions that can serve as a barometer in this complicated area. A copy of the research is available by emailing seiresearch@seic.com.
