SANTA ANA, Calif., Feb. 19, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- Kush Bottles, North America's largest supplier of child-resistant packaging and state approved Philips Rx bottles for the marijuana industry, announced the hiring of Mr. Ben Wu as the company's new Chief Executive Officer.

Mr. Wu, a highly decorated Cum Laude graduate of NYU, began his career as an investment banker at Bear, Sterns and Co. More recently, he served as Vice President at Wedbush Capital Management, with a specific focus on working with entrepreneur-oriented, high growth companies.

Dallas Imbimbo, co-founder of Kush Bottles, commented on the new appointment. "Our current management team has done an excellent job in growing our company into the leading provider of child resistant packaging to the marijuana industry," he stated. "As we continue to grow our core business, we wanted an experienced, proven trailblazer to solidify internal operations while spearheading our entry into other markets," he added. "Ben will help propel Kush Bottles forward, expand our range of products and services, improve sourcing and distribution, and increase revenues. We look forward to his contributions, which we know will be significant."

Kush Bottles is known in the marijuana industry as the leading provider of child resistant packaging, as required by law. Their exclusive Philips Rx bottles are state approved, and have been tested and certified child resistant in accordance with ASTM and CPSC standards.

"Kush Bottles is in a very exciting, rapidly expanding market," Ben commented. "As more states adopt some form of legalization and there is an increased emphasis on safety and responsibility, Kush will have tremendous opportunities for continued growth," he added. "We intend to not only be a trusted supplier of safe and approved packaging, but to also be a value-added resource for dispensary operators, helping them stay in compliance with the rapidly changing and highly detailed regulations that govern the industry."
