Kush Bottles Launches New Website

New site aims to revolutionize the ordering process for the marijuana packaging industry

LOS ANGELES, June 30, 2015 /PRNewswire/ -- Kush Bottles, North America's premier supplier of branded child-resistant packaging solutions and accessories for the marijuana industry, announced today that the company has launched a new ecommerce website.

KushBottles.com features sections with products specific for producers and processors, smoke shops, dispensaries, and consumers.

The site also has information about the company's custom packaging and branding solutions – services aimed at customers that want to build their brand through marketing and packaging design.

Kush Bottles carries a wide range of products and is a single-source solution for dispensaries, smoke shops and producer/processors. The company offers child resistant containers, barrier bags, labels, consumption gear, ancillary items, accessories and more.

"Moving more of our business online will make life easier for our customers and it will allow us to be more efficient as a company," said Nick Kovacevich, Co-Founder and CEO of Kush Bottles. "The new website will not replace the direct customer service we're known for, but it will enable both new and existing customers to have quick and easy access to the newest products and to learn more about the industry and different types of packaging."

The site will also soon have an Investor Relations section, with news and information regarding the company's public filing.

For more information, please visit the Kush Bottles website at: www.kushbottles.com or call the company at: (888)-920-5874.
