Orkin Announces Executive Promotion

ATLANTA, Feb. 28, 2011 /PRNewswire/ -- Atlanta-based pest control leader, Orkin, announced today the promotion of Freeman Elliott to president of Orkin's Atlantic Division. Orkin is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Rollins, Inc. (NYSE: ROL).

"Freeman has risen through the Orkin ranks, working in both commercial and residential sales and operations for the company," said John Wilson, president, Orkin USA. "His leadership will allow us to continue to execute our business plans and continue to provide our customers with extraordinary pest control service."

Elliott began his Orkin career as a lawn care technician in 1991, following graduation from the University of Georgia. He quickly moved through the Company, working as service manager, branch manager, national service manager, assistant to the president of Orkin's Atlantic Division and, most recently, vice president of that division. In his new role, Elliott oversees approximately 70 locations in Orkin's Atlantic Division.
