Griffon Unit Announces a Contract Award from Saab Grintek Communications

Telephonics Sweden AB awarded contract to supply TruLink(R) Wireless Intercom System to South African Army

JERICHO, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--

Griffon Corporation's (NYSE:GFF) wholly owned subsidiary, Telephonics Corporation, announced today that its Swedish subsidiary, Telephonics Sweden AB, has been awarded a contract valued at $800K with potential to grow to over $3M from Saab Grintek Communications for the supply of the TruLink(R) Wireless Intercommunication Systems to the South African Army.

TruLink is being fielded to enhance the communications of the G5 Towed Howitzer and G6 Self Propelled Howitzer platforms. TruLink provides crews of these artillery vehicles with direct intercommunications capability and flexibility to perform their missions without the restrictions of long cords.

Telephonics' TruLink provides full duplex, wireless hands free intercommunications for use in high noise military environments. TruLink eliminates safety issues associated with the use of long cord/wired communication systems and provides direct links to long-range radios. Military applications of TruLink products include thousands of units fielded for aircraft, helicopters, ground vehicles and maritime craft applications.
