SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jun. 26, 2015 /PRNewswire/ --Arkose Energy Corp. (OTC: RKOS) is an aggressive oil and gas Junior company that is focused on acquiring undervalued properties, using the All in one step philosophy technical expertise and JV strategic partners. Arkose Energy Inc. focus is acquiring marginal properties, utilizing in house drilling equipment and water disposal technology. Our approach is to maximum production with the minimum expenditure, thus utilizing drilling and service equipment as well as treating contaminated well water on site, thus eliminating high trucking and disposal costs.

Arkose Energy Inc. is currently reentering 45 well bores with the objective of stimulating the formation, thus increasing the flow of liquids and hydrocarbons the newly acquired leases are in Eastland County, Texas, and cover 277+/- acres.

Trace Maurin, CEO of Arkose remarked, "We are excited about this transaction and look forward to continuing to build a strong base of production in this region. While the current production is small, there are 45 wellbores to re-work with a modest CAPEX expenditure. As these wells are shallow, the operating expense will also allow us to operate them economically returning a higher ROI. We anticipate production when fully operational to produce in the 40/60 BOPD. Additionally, we feel that there may be deeper zones available for us to drill and develop and tap into new formations and reserves. Our immediate focus will be to acquire properties with similar characteristics offering immediate upside potential and shareholder value."
