

May 6, 2008

Intel International Science & Engineering Fair Opens in Atlanta May 12

Finalists to Display Projects May 15 at Georgia World Congress Center

ATLANTA--(BUSINESS WIRE)--

More than 1,500 high school students from 51 countries will arrive in Atlanta next week to compete in the world's largest science fair, the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair, presented by Agilent Technologies. The finalists will compete for nearly $4 million in awards and scholarships, including the top honors - three $50,000 Intel Young Scientist scholarships.

WHEN: May 12-16, 2008

Media Activities	Date/Time
Opening ceremonies hosted by Intel Corporation Chairman Craig Barrett	Monday, May 12, 7-8:30 p.m. EDT
Finalists available for media interviews -- by request only	Tuesday, May 13, 10-11:30 a.m. EDT
Public Day - All finalists at their projects	Thursday, May 15, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. EDT
Intel ISEF winners announced at gala	Friday, May 16, 10 a.m.-1 p.m. EDT

WHERE: Georgia World Congress Center
285 Andrew Young International Blvd., Atlanta

WHO: 1,557 young scientists from 51 countries

CONTACT: To schedule an interview with an ISEF finalist or Intel spokesperson, please contact:
Kara Gaffney
646-204-6343
kara.gaffney@bm.com

NOTE: Intel invests more than $100 million annually to promote education and technological literacy across the globe. To learn more about Intel's commitment to education around the world, visit www.intel.com/education. Society for Science & the Public, a non-profit organization dedicated to public engagement in scientific research and education, owns and has administered the International Science and Engineering Fair since its inception in 1950. To learn more about Society for Science & the Public, visit www.societyforscience.org.

Source: Intel Corporation