"With AllSource among our select network of global resellers, BlackSky continues to expand the delivery of real-time geospatial analytics and provide more customers with first-to-know intelligence to make critical decisions," said Brian E. O'Toole, CEO of BlackSky.

AllSource is a leader in the commercial imagery intelligence market with a suite of multi-source information and analytic products and subscriptions. AllSource provides finished geospatial intelligence to customers in government security, energy, insurance and financial industries. As an authorized reseller, AllSource will have access to BlackSky's geospatial intelligence and imagery gathered by its high-resolution satellite constellation. The combined intelligence of both companies will provide context and insight to support timely and informed decisions.

"As a BlackSky reseller, AllSource will be able to utilize the company's rapid revisit rates and AI-driven geospatial intelligence to enable our customers to learn about changes that matter most to them," said Chuck Herring, CEO of AllSource. "AllSource and BlackSky share a drive to support timely and informed decisions, and we look forward to advancing those objectives through our reseller agreement."
