Ameresco Names Leila Dillon Vice President Marketing and Communications

FRAMINGHAM, Mass.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Ameresco, Inc. (NYSE:AMRC), a leading energy efficiency and renewable energy company, today announced the appointment of Leila Dillon as Vice President Marketing and Communications.

Ms. Dillon joins Ameresco with more than 20 years of experience in leading corporate marketing and communications, platform strategy, and business development initiatives for global technology companies. Prior to joining Ameresco, she served as Vice President Marketing and North American Distribution Channel for Bigbelly, Inc., a leading provider of Smart City, Internet of Things (IoT), and smart waste management solutions.

“Ameresco is uniquely positioned as a leading independent provider of comprehensive energy efficiency and renewable energy solutions,” said Leila Dillon. “I am excited to broaden my IoT and Smart City knowledge base with a core focus on energy solutions, savings and generation. This is an important topic for today and for our future, and I feel fortunate to have the opportunity to pursue this growing market with Ameresco.”

With a core focus in IoT, Smart City, Cloud, Mobile and Telecommunications, Ms. Dillon is a recognized leader for women in technology. Focused on the municipal and higher education markets, she is on the Program Committee for the IoT Solutions World Congress, has chaired global buildings & infrastructure programs, and has led international plenary sessions on women leadership in IoT, Smart City PaaS, and multi-purposed smart infrastructure platforms.

“We are thrilled to have Leila join our team,” said Nicole Bulgarino, Executive Vice President, Ameresco. “As a technology marketing executive, she brings proven expertise and leadership that will add value to Ameresco as we continue to strengthen our initiatives and position our future success.”
