CTIA Elects Ingram Micro Mobility's Bashar Nejdawi to Board of Directors and Executive Committee

INDIANAPOLIS, IN -- (Marketwired) -- 05/21/14 -- Ingram Micro Mobility, a division of Ingram Micro Inc. (NYSE: IM), today announced its North American president, Bashar Nejdawi, has been elected to the 2014 CTIA board of directors and the 2014 CTIA Executive Committee. Nejdawi will begin his term of both appointments starting May 20, 2014. CTIA-The Wireless Association® is an international nonprofit membership organization that represents the wireless communications industry.

"Bashar is a welcomed addition to our board with his unique perspective on the issues that are most important to the wireless industry, such as securing more licensed spectrum and enacting sensible and clear wireless user tax policies," said Steve Largent, president and CEO of CTIA.

Nejdawi is a seasoned, multi-faceted veteran of the telecommunication and mobility industry. In 2008, he joined Ingram Micro Mobility (formerly BrightPoint) as president of the Mobile Enhancement business, where he was responsible for building a global accessories portfolio. He later became the company's global executive and head of European Sales and Procurement. Prior to his time at BrightPoint, Nejdawi held a number of executive level positions at Motorola over the course of 17 years.

"It is an honor to join the CTIA board, as it helps address the challenges and opportunities in mobility," said Nejdawi. "Our industry is rapidly moving -- with a changing carrier landscape, challenging consumer market and the M2M [Machine-to-Machine] revolution -- being connected and understanding a wide variety of industry stakeholders is essential to forecasting for the future."

Nejdawi holds a bachelor's degree in electrical and electronics engineering from Greenwich University, an MBA from the Thunderbird School of Global Management, a master's degree in engineering telecommunications from Southern Methodist University and a doctorate of management from Case Western Reserve University.
