With the integration of Veritone iDEMS, public safety agencies gain a CJIS-compliant, centralized platform for ingesting, managing, analyzing, and sharing digital evidence from almost any source. By partnering with Strategic Communications, Veritone empowers agencies to streamline complex investigations, accelerate case workflows, and enhance evidence security with the latest in AI-driven capabilities.

"Veritone is proud to be a foundational partner for investigations within Strategic Communications' public safety offering," said Jon Gacek, General Manager of Public Sector for Veritone. "This collaboration brings our comprehensive iDEMS suite to even more agencies, giving investigators unprecedented tools to manage, analyze, and protect digital evidence throughout the investigative lifecycle."

"This collaboration advances our mission of delivering comprehensive, innovative solutions for our customers," said Kathy Mills, CEO and President of Strategic Communications. "Partnering with Veritone allows us to deliver a robust, end-to-end investigation solution for our customers, helping agencies drive efficiency, accuracy, and transparency as they modernize their operations."

Strategic Communications is known for its expertise supporting state and local government agencies through cloud migration, cybersecurity, and digital transformation, with access to an extensive portfolio of approved state and federal contracts and a legacy of successful project delivery. The combined strengths of Veritone and Strategic Communications make the enhanced JPS TRUST solution a powerful force multiplier for agencies striving to improve operational outcomes and community impact.
