Provision Interactive Announces New Design Patent Award

Provision awarded Design Patent on Interactive Top Element for a Kiosk

CHATSWORTH, California, Nov. 20, 2018 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- via NEWMEDIAWIRE -- Provision Interactive Technologies, Inc. ("Provision" or the "Company"), a subsidiary of Provision Holding, Inc. (OTCPINK: PVHO), announced today that the Company was awarded a new design patent for its unique technology. This design patent, US. No. D820,824, is for the Interactive Top Element for a Kiosk and provides the Company with the right to exclude others from making, using, selling, offering to sell and importing this design for 15 years, until June, 2033.

Provision's patented topper design is currently in use and has been deployed in hundreds of retail stores across the U.S. This new patent design award boosts Provision's intellectual property protection in the U.S. and ultimately through the international PCT (Patent Cooperation Treaty) process recognized by countries around the world.

"This new patent design award will provide critical protection for our growth efforts, as we transform the consumer kiosk experience not just in the U.S. but worldwide," said Mark Leonard, Provision Holding President and CEO. "Our technology is unique and valuable, so we are continuing to take aggressive steps toward protecting the Company and its intellectual property while also focusing our energy on generating additional sales and driving shareholder value."
