Paychex Flex Wins 2016 TekTonic Award

Paychex Flex recognized as a comprehensive cloud-based platform to support integrated HCM

ROCHESTER, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Paychex, Inc., a leading provider of integrated human capital management solutions for payroll, HR, retirement, and insurance services, has won a 2016 TekTonic Award from HRO Today magazine for Paychex Flex. The award recognizes Paychex Flex as a best-in-class mobile and cloud-based technology suite for comprehensive, integrated human capital management services.

Paychex Flex offers a robust technology and service model that supports business success throughout every phase of the employer and employee journey. The platform streamlines administrative tasks with a seamless integration between payroll, time and attendance, human resource applications, benefits administration, and reporting. Paychex's single sign-on provides clients and their employees access to a feature-rich user experience accessible across devices with extensive mobile capabilities.

"Paychex Flex helps HR professionals maximize their HCM programs by tailoring a set of tools, capabilities, and services that meets the unique needs of their organization and employees," said Michael Gioja, senior vice president of IT, product management and development at Paychex. "We're thrilled to receive the TekTonic Award as recognition of the value Paychex Flex delivers to clients now and our commitment to continuous enhancements in the future."

Based on input from the HR community including providers, customers, and influencers, the TekTonic Awards recognize innovation and disruption in the world of HR technology. Winners were announced last night during the annual HRO Today Forum in Chicago.
