Futurestep Expands EMEA Technology Expertise with Senior Hires

Joanne Cumper and Ian Mosby join to grow Futurestep's Advanced Technology Practice

LONDON--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- The Futurestep division of Korn Ferry (NYSE:KFY), the preeminent global people and organizational advisory firm, has today announced that Joanne Cumper and Ian Mosby have been appointed to its Advanced Technology Practice.

Ms. Cumper joins Korn Ferry Futurestep's Advanced Technology Practice in London as a Managing Consultant for its Digital business across EMEA. She brings nearly two decades of experience, working predominately in the Technology, Media and Telecoms sector recruiting sales, marketing and leadership level positions. Joining from a Search firm, Ms. Cumper will focus on delivering specialists for digital roles across EMEA, working with all industry sectors for digital transformation as well as pure play, consulting and data/insight.

Mr. Mosby will assume the position of Managing Consultant for Korn Ferry Futurestep's London office, also sitting within its Advanced Technology Practice. He has a wealth of experience across IT/Professional Services and will focus on technology driven transformation, operational excellence, risk and regulation. He joins from a specialist executive and leadership firm where he led the Consulting and Professional Services practice. Prior to this, Ian was part of the People and Programmes practice at Deloitte MCS providing Organization Transformation Services to clients in the UK and globally.

"These appointments are a reflection of the investment we are making in the business across EMEA," said Phil Coulter, EMEA Market Leader, Advanced Technology, Korn Ferry Futurestep. "Our business is expanding rapidly and it's important that we support that growth with the best talent. Both Joanne and Ian bring a wealth of experience and knowledge with them that will help us to continue to drive our momentum in the region, and ensure we deliver excellent service to our clients."

Both Ms. Cumper and Mr. Mosby will report directly into Phil Coulter.
