SUNation Energy Installs 10,000th Solar System, Surpasses 130 MW of Installed Clean Energy Capacity Across Long Island

Milestone reflects more than two decades of regional solar deployment and an estimated $42 million in cumulative customer energy-cost savings across Long Island

RONKONKOMA, N.Y., March 30, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- SUNation Energy, Inc. (NASDAQ: SUNE) ("SUNation" or "the Company"), a leading provider of sustainable solar energy, battery storage, backup power, and energy services to homeowners, businesses, and municipalities, today announced the installation of its 10,000th solar system, a milestone that reflects more than 20 years of solar deployment across Long Island. Collectively, SUNation's installations now represent more than 130 megawatts of installed solar capacity and an estimated $42 million in cumulative customer energy-cost savings regionwide.

"For more than twenty years, the SUNation team has worked hard to bring solar power to the homes and businesses of Long Island," said Scott Maskin, CEO and founder of SUNation. "Back in the day, Oakdale was SUNation's first home, and it's fitting that we've come full-circle and installed number 10,000 for a great family in the place where our deepest roots are."

"PSEG Long Island congratulates SUNation for this milestone, their 10,000th installation on Long Island," said Michael Voltz, director of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy at PSEG Long Island. "Part of our mission at PSEG Long Island is to provide opportunities for energy efficiency and renewables, and we are proud to have partnered with companies like SUNation to help make Long Island the leader in rooftop solar across all of New York State."

"Islip has always recognized the important role that solar plays in Long Island's energy future," Islip Town Supervisor Angie Carpenter, said. "Our town has been proud to work with SUNation over the years to strengthen our grid and diversify our region's energy generation capacity."

"Congratulations to SUNation, a proud and successful local business in the Town of Islip. They continue to provide alternative energy solutions to Islip residents," Islip Town Councilmember DawnMarie Kuhn, who represents Oakdale, said. "I am happy to see local residents take advantage of alternative energy sources like solar."
