Anuj Kadyan to Join CBRE as Chief Technology & Transformation Officer

DALLAS--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- CBRE Group, Inc. (NYSE: CBRE) today announced that Anuj Kadyan will join the company as Chief Technology & Transformation Officer on May 15. Mr. Kadyan is currently a senior partner at McKinsey & Company, where he serves as co-leader of the Technology Services practice.

Mr. Kadyan has advised the world's leading AI, cloud and technology companies on their core strategies, M&A and commercial operations. In addition, he has led large-scale technology and AI transformations for major companies in other industries. Over the past 17 years, he has worked for McKinsey in the U.S., Europe and Asia.

“CBRE will benefit significantly from Anuj’s extensive experience across technology, transformation and strategy. This combination will be especially powerful in helping us to further differentiate our products and to operate our business more efficiently,” said Bob Sulentic, CBRE’s chair and chief executive officer.

“This is an exciting time to be joining CBRE,” Mr. Kadyan said. “Data, insight and scale – combined with the right strategy – are attributes that will define success in the future. CBRE is the sector leader across all these attributes, and I look forward to working with the team to help the company fully capitalize on them to drive growth and great client outcomes.”

Mr. Kadyan joined McKinsey in 2009 and has worked in the New Jersey, Atlanta, London, and Delhi offices, serving clients across continents. Prior to his current role, he led the Telecom, Media & Tech Practice in India and was the managing partner for the Gurugram office.

He has an MBA from Northwestern University Kellogg School of Management and a bachelor’s in engineering from the National Institute of Technology in India.
