Professional Diversity Network April Jobs Report Explores Unconscious Bias

Outlines best practices to help eliminate blindspots in the workplace

CHICAGO, April 6, 2015 /PRNewswire/ -- Today Professional Diversity Network, Inc. (Nasdaq: IPDN) released its latest Diversity Jobs Report (DJR) and Diversity Jobs Index (DJI), which analyzes the employment situation for women, minorities, veterans, the disabled and LGBT professionals for the month prior. The DJR reveals that, for the first time in 2015, the employment levels for diverse groups increased or remained flat across the board. This development mirrors the national employment trend for all Americans, which has consistently improved over the past year.

In addition to analyzing the employment situation for diverse Americans, the DJR discusses "unconscious bias" in the workplace and outlines best practices for addressing blindspots when recruiting, hiring and promoting diverse talent. The latest report also includes a special section with best practices for attracting and retaining top Hispanic talent.

Other report highlights include:

- Positive Index growth: The DJI is 50.91, indicating a .02% increase in demand for diverse talent compared to the month prior.
- Bias among women: What women think of each other when it comes to leadership. Could unconscious bias be the culprit?
- Fixing the blindspot: Six practical ways employers can address inherent bias to improve workplace diversity and inclusion.
