Ameresco Postpones Fourth Quarter and Full Year Earnings Release

FRAMINGHAM, Mass.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Ameresco, Inc. (NYSE:AMRC), a leading energy efficiency and renewable energy company, today announced that it is postponing the release of its financial results for the fourth quarter and full year 2012, as well as its related conference call, because it is evaluating the designation of an interest rate swap used in its hedging strategy to manage interest rate risk.

The Company maintains a portfolio of eight interest rate swaps used to hedge exposure to adverse changes in short-term market rates related primarily to renewable energy project financings. Each of the interest rate swaps has been designated as a fair value hedge using hedge accounting under ASC 815-20-25. Seven of the interest rate swaps have been designated as hedges using the "long-haul" method; one was entered into and designated as a hedge in March 2010 using the "short cut" method. Based on a review of its swaps conducted in connection with entering into new swaps in the fourth quarter of 2012, the Company has retrospectively determined that designation of this particular interest rate swap using the "short cut" method was not appropriate.

Under ASC 815-20-25, for interest rate swaps designated as hedges using either of the "short cut" or "long-haul" methods, the fair value of the swap is recorded in the consolidated balance sheet and any changes in fair value of the swap are recorded as adjustments to other comprehensive income (loss). The analysis underlying the determination to rely upon the "short-cut" method is complex and subject to interpretation. If an interest rate swap designated using the "short cut" is retrospectively determined not to have qualified for that method, then hedge accounting treatment for prior periods is not appropriate. In that event, any changes in fair value would be recorded, as a non-cash item, in other income (expense) in the consolidated statements of income for any periods during which the swap does not qualify as a hedge.

The Company is conducting, but has not completed, an analysis of the materiality of the change in accounting treatment for the interest rate swap entered into in March 2010 for its 2010, 2011 and 2012 financial results and whether any prior period adjustments would be necessary. It also has not completed its analysis of whether any prior period adjustments, if necessary, would require filing amended periodic reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

As a result of its retrospective determination that the interest rate swap did not qualify for the "short-cut" method, the Company expects it will redesignate the swap using the "long-haul" method in the first quarter of 2013. In that case, the swap would be subject to periodic effectiveness testing and qualify, prospectively, for hedge accounting treatment.

Once the Company has completed its analyses, it expects to announce the date that it will release fourth quarter and full year 2012 financial results and host an earnings conference call.
