Scanlon brings over 12 years of experience on the boards of multiple companies, including benefits administrator Wageworks, transportation

& logistics service provider Landstar and financial technology partner Cyndx. Prior to his board work, Scanlon served as CFO at multiple technology and financial services companies, as well as serving as CEO of Fidelity National Financial.

“George and I have served on two Boards together previously, Ceridian and Wageworks. In both instances the companies achieved superior results,” said Stuart Harvey, Board Chairman. “George’s influence and experience in corporate governance, compliance, financial reporting, and integrating new products and acquisitions will undoubtedly add value to Weave for years to come.”

Scanlon was also named a member of the Audit Committee, where he will bring his more than two decades of CFO experience to the financial reporting and controls of Weave, alongside his expertise in investor communications.

“I’m proud to be joining the impressive board at Weave,” Scanlon said. “The fundamentals of the business and the growth opportunity in the space are compelling. In fact, my own periodontist office uses Weave to communicate with its patients. I’ve witnessed firsthand how the communications platform helps offices save time and operate more efficiently. That’s an exciting business to be a part of.”

This addition follows months of positive momentum for Weave, reporting its first quarter total revenue of $33.3 million in May, up 30% year-over-year.
