Sidus Space CEO Carol Craig Represents U.S. Aerospace Sector at 2025 Global Summit of Women in Berlin

Participation Strengthens International Ties and Expands Global Presence

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Sidus Space (NASDAQ: SIDU), (the “Company” or “Sidus”), an innovative space and defense technology company, today announced that its Founder and CEO, Carol Craig, was a featured speaker at the 2025 Global Summit of Women, held July 3-5 in Berlin, Germany. The Summit brought together more than 1,000 leaders from over 60 countries including government ministers, corporate executives, thought leaders, and entrepreneurs, offering a platform for cross-sector collaboration, innovation, and economic empowerment.

Craig joined a distinguished panel of global executives and policymakers to speak on the Women Entrepreneurs Forum, a high-profile panel discussing the future of high-growth companies across diverse industries. The session highlighted how women-led businesses are leveraging technology, resilience, and global connections to reshape markets and drive economic impact. Her presence elevated the visibility of the U.S. space and defense sector on the international stage and expanded Sidus’s global network of strategic relationships.

“Representing Sidus Space at this year’s Global Summit of Women was an honor and a powerful reminder of the critical role international collaboration plays in advancing space and defense innovation,” said Carol Craig, CEO and Founder of Sidus Space. “Our presence in Berlin wasn’t just about visibility, it was a catalyst for meaningful global connections that support our mission of Space Access Reimagined®.”

As the only U.S. commercial space company represented at the event, Sidus stood out for its pioneering role in the future of space access, AI-driven data, and agile satellite manufacturing. Craig’s participation elevated the company’s international profile, opening the door to future partnerships and strategic ties with global investors, policymakers, and technology leaders.

Often referred to as the “Davos for Women,” the Global Summit of Women is a globally recognized platform for fostering cross-border collaboration and promoting solutions that accelerate inclusive economic advancement.
