ExxonMobil Pipeline Company Contributes to Springfield Tornado Relief Efforts

$25,000 Donation to be distributed through the American Red Cross

HOUSTON--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- ExxonMobil Pipeline Company (EMPCo) announced today it will donate $25,000 to the Pioneer Valley American Red Cross to provide disaster relief assistance in response to the recent tornadoes that impacted the City of Springfield. EMPCo is a subsidiary of Exxon Mobil Corporation (NYSE:XOM).

"As a member and resident of the Springfield community, our hearts go out to all our neighbors who have been affected by the devastating tornadoes," said Mark Whitt, Superintendent of ExxonMobil Pipeline Company's Springfield Terminal. "While the Springfield community works to recover from the destruction, we want to support the Red Cross as they work to help the people restore and rebuild their community."

ExxonMobil Pipeline Company's donation is being directed to the Pioneer Valley American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund to support tornado relief efforts in the City of Springfield. The Relief Fund provides food, shelter, counseling and other assistance to the victims of this disaster and thousands of other disasters across the country each year.

ExxonMobil Pipeline Company has several facilities in Massachusetts including distribution terminals in Springfield and Everett, a pipeline that operates from Springfield to East Providence, Rhode Island and employs approximately 23 people in the state who support those operations.
