The app enables customers to authorize a pump for payment securely through the use of cloud-based technology. Customers have the option to select Apple Pay as a default form of payment from within the app.

"ExxonMobil wants to make filling up your vehicle even more convenient and the Speedpass+ app has been designed to save you time at the pump," said Matt Bergeron, vice president fuels and lubricants marketing at ExxonMobil, "The Speedpass+ app represents the next generation of payment options at our branded stations."

The Speedpass+ mobile payment app is available as a free download, and may also be linked to checking accounts or other major credit and debit cards, including Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover and ExxonMobil cards—giving customers choice in how to pay. Customers who select Apple Pay, which is secure and easy to set up, will continue to receive all of the rewards and benefits offered by their credit and debit cards.

In addition, customers can obtain receipts by email, at the pump, or both. With either option, the customer's purchase history is recorded in the app for easy reference, which is particularly helpful for tracking business expenses.
