The Ball Foundation's commitment builds on Ball's long-time support of the American Red Cross and will help IFRC and its member societies to more quickly deliver humanitarian aid to people in need. The grant will support the work of 190 National Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, including the American Red Cross, empowered by a network of more than 17 million volunteers worldwide.

"Ball operates in more than 100 locations in 34 countries and we are proud to partner with the IFRC to ensure that these communities and others are prepared if they are affected by disasters," says Chris Chavez, executive director of The Ball Foundation. "By working together with the Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, Ball and its employees will be able to make a difference in people's lives when they need it the most."

Ball Corporation and The Ball Foundation have contributed nearly $2 million in cash and in-kind donations to Red Cross efforts over the past two years. In 2017, Ball also has partnered with several customers to donate millions of cans of clean drinking water for disaster relief victims in North America and Mexico.

By participating in the IFRC's Disaster Relief Emergency Fund and the American Red Cross Annual Disaster Giving Program, The Ball Foundation provides reliable funding in advance of disasters to enable immediate response when disaster strikes so communities are safer and more sustainable over the long term.

"The Ball Foundation's contribution comes at a critical time when we are responding to an increasing number of disasters and health emergencies around the world," said Dr. Jemilah Mahmood, IFRC's Under Secretary General for Partnerships. "We are very grateful for The Ball Foundation's generous support in helping us meet the needs and improving the lives of the world's most vulnerable people. "
