

Andersen Launches Tax Transformation and Innovation Practice with the Addition of Three Managing Directors

SAN FRANCISCO--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Andersen is proud to announce the launch of its Tax Transformation and Innovation practice, and welcome new Managing Directors Mark Tucker, Ashish Sadarangani, and Mark Schutzman. This new practice is designed to support organizations of all sizes in rethinking how tax responsibilities are fulfilled. By combining deep tax knowledge with advanced technology and process innovation, Andersen's Tax Transformation and Innovation team works with middle market companies, family-owned enterprises, multinational corporations, and alternative investment funds to deliver solutions that drive efficiency, reduce risk, and unlock strategic value.

"The operational burden necessary to comply with today's tax laws continues to increase at an unprecedented rate," said Mark Vorsatz, global chairman and CEO of Andersen. "The combination of regulatory complexity, global reporting requirements, and rapid advances in technology creates both challenges and opportunities for our clients. With the launch of this new team, Andersen is positioned to help our clients transform their tax operations in a manner that supports their future objectives. Mark, Ashish, and Mark bring complementary skill sets, proven leadership, and a shared commitment to helping clients succeed in today's environment."

Mark Tucker leads Andersen's Tax Transformation and Innovation practice with more than 15 years of experience in global tax operations and technology. Having spearheaded large-scale transformation initiatives while at a Big Four firm, Mark specializes in operating model design, data management & automation, and the deployment of tax technology platforms that create lasting value for tax functions.

Ashish Sadarangani brings more than two decades of experience helping clients execute integrated finance and tax transformation solutions. With a deep understanding of ERP systems, he specializes in guiding organizations through the implementation of automation, analytics, and governance models that enhance accuracy, transparency, and scalability in their tax operations.

Mark Schutzman is a seasoned advisor with decades of experience guiding companies on the operational effectiveness of tax processes. He has led national practices in tax managed services, technology, and transformation. Mark is a recognized thought leader in tax technology and transformation and established the tax technology consulting practice at a Big Four firm.

"We are enthusiastic about launching this practice at such a pivotal time for the tax profession," said Dan DePaoli, U.S. country managing director of Andersen. "Companies are increasingly seeking holistic solutions that not only address compliance but also position the tax function as a source of insight and strategic advantage. This team will help us meet that demand by combining Andersen's global tax expertise with leading-edge innovation."

The launch of the Tax Transformation and Innovation practice reflects Andersen's ongoing commitment to investing in talent, expanding capabilities, and delivering best-in-class solutions to meet the evolving needs of clients across a broad spectrum of industries, ownership structures, and sizes.
