

Gladstone Land Acquires Almond Orchard in California

MCLEAN, Va., Oct. 17, 2016 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Gladstone Land Corporation (NASDAQ:LAND) ("Gladstone Land" or the "Company") announced today that it has acquired an almond orchard in Fresno County, California, consisting of approximately 197 acres for $6.5 million. Upon acquiring the property, the Company entered into a 10-year, triple-net lease agreement with the seller, one of the largest organic almond growers in the world. The lease includes two, 5-year extension options and consists of both a fixed cash rent component plus a variable rent component based on the gross crop revenues earned on the property. The Company anticipates that the annual cap rate on the property will average between 8% and 10% over the life of the lease.

"We are pleased to announce the acquisition of a really nice almond orchard that is just now heading into its peak production years," said Bill Reiman, Gladstone Land's Western Managing Director. "We acquired the property in connection with a sale-leaseback agreement with a vertically-integrated tenant who is an excellent almond farmer and marketer. Due to the age of the trees, we should begin earning significant rental returns from the participating rent component of the lease with next year's crop. We are very excited to add another high-quality almond orchard with a strong tenant to the list of farms we own."

"Our team has been very successful finding high-quality farms with plenty of water that continue to appreciate in value and provide strong returns along the way," said David Gladstone, President and CEO of Gladstone Land. "Such acquisitions have allowed us to increase the monthly distributions on our common stock twice over the past year for a total increase of 6.3%. This farm is another acquisition we're excited about, as the trees are in their prime production period, and we expect the participating rent component to provide us with nice returns that will aid in our goal of increasing distributions to stockholders every year. In the meantime, please eat more almonds; they are a healthy food!"
