Ingram Micro Named Cisco Asia Pacific Security Distributor of the Year

IRVINE, CA -- (Marketwired) -- 07/26/16 -- Ingram Micro Inc. (NYSE: IM) today announced it has earned Cisco's Security Distributor Award for Outstanding Performance in the Asia-Pacific-Japan (APJ) region for 2016.

Ingram Micro received the award during a gala dinner at the Cisco® APJ Security Partner Connection 2016 in Angsana Laguna, Phuket, Thailand. The award ceremony was part of a larger Cisco gathering of strategic partners, brought together to review current and future security technology issues and offerings.

"Security continues to play an increasingly important role in technology, and is the primary concern for every enterprise, large or small, regardless of location or business purpose," said John Soumbasakis, executive vice president, Business Development and Strategy, Ingram Micro Inc. "Offering our customers unparalleled security solutions contributes to the foundation of trust we've built with them from the very start. This award illustrates our commitment to their success, and to helping them to always stay ahead of what's next. It also shows our dedication to helping vendor partners such as Cisco achieve their revenue and profit objectives."

This award symbolizes the commitment that Cisco and its channel partners place on having security at the top of the agenda with every customer, city and country. Ingram Micro received this award for its overall revenue performance over the year, combined with its partner enablement and support services to extend the reach of Cisco's security solutions across Asia Pacific.
