Ingram Micro Commerce & Lifecycle Services Ranks Among Transport Topics' List of Top 50 North American Logistics Providers for 2021

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Ingram Micro Commerce & Lifecycle Services, a leading provider of supply chain solutions and third-party logistics, today announced it was named a 2021 Top Logistics Provider by Transport Topics, a leading industry news source. This marks the third consecutive year the business has received this recognition, which identifies the largest logistics companies in North America.

Ingram Micro's continuous inclusion on the list of top 3PLs is credited to the company's unique ability to provide logistics solutions that address the entire lifecycle of any product. With recent record increases in online shopping, it takes more than a strong forward logistics solution to provide a superior customer experience. Return rates are rising, making reverse logistics solutions — as well as ITAD services for technology products — critical to enabling brands and retailers to recover product value and support the needs of their online shoppers.

"We are extremely proud to be recognized among Transport Topics' Top 50 Logistics Providers once again, a reflection of our ability to innovate and adapt quickly in light of the challenges of COVID-19," said Glen Sutton, senior vice president, Ingram Micro Commerce & Lifecycle Services. "We have maintained focus and flexibility, made strategic investments, added capacity for new customers and expanded our service offerings in anticipation of market demand, especially in the areas of ecommerce and reverse logistics. We experienced record growth in 2020 and are well positioned to continue to support future increases in demand."
