

Company Overview

NanoVibronix Inc. is a medical device company that is focused on creating medical products utilizing its proprietary low-intensity, surface acoustic wave technology.

The company's patented technology allows for creation of miniature transducers that transmit low-frequency, low-intensity ultrasound through flexible material surfaces. This unique platform may be utilized for a variety of medical applications requiring low cost therapeutic ultrasound qualities.

The company's patch-based products include the PainShield® and the WoundShield™, which have gained CE Mark certification. The PainShield also carries FDA clearance. NanoVibronix' catheter-based products include the UroShield™ and NG-Shield™ devices that are both CE mark certified.

The Company was founded by Jona Zumeris, Ph.D., an accomplished scientist that invented the Company's proprietary low-intensity, surface acoustic wave technology, which allowed it to develop the first ever wearable therapeutic ultrasound devices.
