

Company Overview

Boardwalktech was the first company to develop a now patented positional cell data management technology. We were also the first company to deliver a digital ledger database designed specifically for collaborative, multi-party enterprise applications-- both disruptive offerings in the market. Our vision is to provide digital ledger Blockchain technology and products for the extended enterprise which our customers can use to run mission critical applications managing the digital exchange of information internally and with customers, channels, and suppliers. We're well on our way- today, we have companies of all sizes in all industries running mission critical processes managing billions of cells of data as part of their digital information exchange with thousands of trading partners.
