Internal Rate of Return (IRR) Calculation

Our unlevered IRR on our Great Bend Regional Hospital investment is the compound annual rate of return calculated based on the timing and amount of: (i) the gross purchase price of the property plus any direct acquisition costs; (ii) total revenues earned during the Company's ownership period and (iii) the gross sales price of the property net of selling costs. Each of the items (i) through (iii) is calculated in accordance with GAAP.

Our levered IRR on our Great Bend Regional Hospital investment is the compound annual rate of return calculated based on the timing and amount of: (i) the gross purchase price of the property plus any direct acquisition and financing costs; (ii) total revenues earned during the Company's ownership period less interest expense (assuming an annual interest rate of 4.00% and a debt-to-assets ratio of 50%) and (iii) the gross sales price of the property net of loan repayment and selling costs. Each of the items (i) through (iii) is calculated in accordance with GAAP.

The calculation of IRR does not include an adjustment for the Company's general and administrative expenses or other corporate overhead amounts. Additionally, no adjustments were made with respect to property operating expenses or capital expenditures as the property was leased on a triple-net basis and no capital expenditures were incurred on the property. The IRRs achieved on the property as cited in this release should not be viewed as an indication of the gross value created with respect to other properties owned by the Company, and the Company does not represent that it will achieve similar IRRs upon the disposition of other properties.
